

Role of new environmental commission under attack

by LYNN ASINOF
A News Analysis

Wheeling's new Environmental Commission has apparently changed the balance of power among village advisory boards.

The fledgling commission had its ears pinned back at a recent zoning hearing for its objections to a proposed heliport at Asplundh Tree Expert Co., 412 N. Milwaukee Ave. Two members of the zoning board attacked William Rogers, chairman of the environmental group, for allegedly providing misleading and false information.

The same two zoning board members, chairman Frank Wojek and Hugh Sommerfeld, made it very clear that they wanted no part of the environmental commission during discussion at another village meeting Monday.

THE MEETING WAS called to work out some of the problems in the zoning, planning and environmental reviews of Wheeling developments. Much of the meeting, however, was spent trying to fit the environmental commission into a routine that would prevent it from influencing the zoning board.

"We as a group are not too much influenced by the (environmental) commission's findings," Wojek said. "Right now I have to say the commission is more confusing than beneficial."

Wojek's sweeping statements were apparently based on the environmental commission's report on heliports, the only major recommendations submitted by that group to the zoning board.

The zoning board chairman alluded to the need to "eliminate duplication of communication." In other words, he did not want the environmental commission meddling in his hearings.

SOMMERFELD PICKED up the attack by saying he never again wanted two advisory boards "fighting at a public hearing." Wojek and Sommerfeld, not Rogers, however, initiated the public attack at the heliport hearing.

The zoning board's attitude contrasted sharply with that of the plan commission, which welcomed the environmental board to participate in pre-application conferences with developers. The plan commission has also repeatedly called on members of the environmental group to comment on proposed projects.

Members of the environmental group see themselves as a more free-floating commission, making recommendations to the various boards when environmental problems arise.

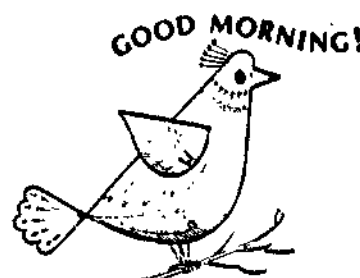

At least one village trustee privately commented that it would be a mistake to restrict the activities of the environmental board. He characterized the group as a trouble-shooter, which could pick up on problems not within the authority of either the plan commission or zoning board.

BY ORDINANCE, neither the zoning board nor the village board can limit the environmental commission's reviews of zoning and planning, unless the ordinance is changed.

The zoning board, however, is making it as uncomfortable as possible for the environmental group to infringe on its previously unchallenged power.

In hopes of preventing outright hostility, members of the environmental commission are holding their tongues. They would prefer to work with the other village commissions, but are apparently determined to continue their work one way or another.

'Town doesn't care,' says Jaycee president

Lack of donors may kill village blood supply plan

by LYNN ASINOF

The Wheeling Community Blood Plan will be stopped if the Wheeling Jaycees cannot collect 700 pints of blood by November.

After two drawings this year, the Jaycees have collected 230 pints of blood, less than one third of the total amount needed. Jaycee Pres. Martin Maracek said the organization will not continue the program if residents do not lend their support.

"In other words, we're not going to be taking the responsibility for trying to get something going for the village," he said. "We are bitter about it. This is our second year. There's just no way we can turn these people on to give blood."

MARACEK SAID chances are "very slim" that the plan will meet its quota of 700 pints with the next two blood drawings. This figure represents four per cent of Wheeling's population, the amount nationally estimated to cover all blood replacement needs.

"We're going to have to have somewhere close to 200 a drawing to make it," Maracek said. The blood drives have been attracting a little more than 100 persons per drawing. Last weekend 102 donors appeared, and 98 pints were drawn after five donors were rejected.

Jim Bronson, blood program chairman, said the blood drives have been particularly frustrating because of the lack of response from village civic organizations.

"I really believe that the other organizations in town think that this is a Jaycee project and they forget about the part that says 'Wheeling Community' in front of it," he said.

THE JAYCEES had been hoping to attract more donors by extending the blood plan to cover the blood needs of donors' parents and their spouses' parents if they live in the continental United States. Previously, the plan just covered the needs of all Wheeling residents.

"That couldn't even bring the people out," Maracek said. "All I can say is that the town doesn't care. They just don't give a darn."

Maracek said many of the Jaycees have donated blood at each of the blood drives scheduled four times a year. Bronson noted that other members of the community have also given "over and over again."

"Address-wise I would have to guess that the Dunhurst section has the largest number of donors," Bronson said. He said if other sections of town had been as generous, the program would have already reached its 700-pint quota.

LAST YEAR the blood plan fell about 270 pints short of its quota. The program, however, was continued because enough blood had been collected to cover the needs of the community. Bronson said the Jaycees hoped for a better response this year, since the plan was more established and more residents were aware of it.

Fewer donors, however, have appeared for this year's blood drawings. After two drawings, the plan has 86 fewer pints of blood than it did after its second drawing last year.

Bronson noted that Wheeling's senior citizens may be affected by the death of the blood plan, since they are not eligible to give blood.

Special education preschool class 'verbal bombardment'

by JILL BETTNER

The big ball.
The big, round ball.
The big, round, red ball.
The big, round, red, bouncing ball.

Learning to translate what he sees into clear, precise verbal descriptions is the first step a child takes in the educational process. For children with language development problems or other learning disabilities, it's often hard to find the right words.

Barbara Lowenthal offers help to such children in School Dist. 21 in a special education class for preschoolers at Twain School in Wheeling.

In a large, bright room overflowing with the children's artwork, books, charts, posters, puzzles, plants, games and toys, Mrs. Lowenthal involves the children in a wide variety of activities. She tries to stimulate three-to-five-year-olds to talk — about everything under the sun.

"This class is like a verbal bombardment," she laughed. "I never shut up!"

MRS. LOWENTHAL works with two groups of youngsters in two-hour sessions, one in the morning and the other each afternoon. The groups are intentionally small, with about five youngsters in each, to allow for very individualized help.

"We try to take each child at the level he's on and help him to feel some success," Mrs. Lowenthal said. "No child will learn if he constantly faces defeat. No matter where he is, he can find some success and then we help him to work upward."

By encouraging the youngsters to verbalize constantly, Mrs. Lowenthal helps the children develop conceptual skills and the word power necessary to effectively express themselves.

Refreshments are served each day and a thirsty child's "More juice!" won't do. The children are required to speak in complete sentences in order to teach them to communicate more effectively.

THE YOUNGSTERS participate in many activities specially designed to acquaint them with concepts they will need to understand to be successful in school.

Cooking class is conducted once a week in a kitchen at the school with the children helping to bake cookies, make candy and this week stir up some lemonade.

The lemonade will be made from scratch and the children will squeeze the lemons, measure sugar and pour drinks for everybody.

The sessions in the kitchen are intended to expand the children's vocabulary, teach number concepts and develop fine motor skills such as the coordination necessary in pouring a liquid.

Other activities also strengthen motor skills such as cutting and pasting artwork, making hats and puppets, and painting.

Mrs. Lowenthal has developed a special version of the motor facilitation program used in kindergarten classes in Dist. 21 to help the preschoolers learn such gross motor skills as jumping, skipping, hopping and walking across a balance beam.

SOME CHILDREN participate in the class only one year, graduating to a regular nursery school or kindergarten. Other youngsters may need the extra help for two or three years and then be placed in special education classes for school-age children.

Parents are required to bring their children to the class and pick them up each day. Mrs. Lowenthal feels the daily parent contact is important.

"Because I talk to the parents every day, if something happens at home and the child is disturbed about it, I know what's wrong and I can try to help him," she said.

This is where another kind of communication comes in. Mrs. Lowenthal added — her relationship with each of the students. A warm, smiling lady, the preschool teacher appears to have the patience of a mother as she reads a story and explain the pictures to the youngsters or shares their excitement as carrot seeds they planted together begin to sprout.

"It's important to be close to the children, especially in a special education class like this," she said. "A child has to love you and know that you love him. Then he can begin to learn something."

Melvin Lace reelected Prospect Hts. school head

Melvin Lace, who was reelected to his third three-year term on the Dist. 23 school board April 13, will continue to serve as president of the board until next April.

Lace was reelected president of the board Monday. He has served as board president for the past five years.

Henry Vallery, school board attorney, was reelected board secretary.

Committee assignments for the upcoming year were also made. Appointed to chair the policy committee was Carl Poch, who will also continue as representative to the Northwest Education Cooperative. Named chairman of the finance committee was Ron Sawatzke.

Other committee appointments include John Stull, chairman of the building and sites committee, Sally Ann Okuno, chairman of the publications committee, Vincent Battaglia, chairman of the planning committee, and Alan Krinsky, chairman of the negotiations committee.

THE BOARD ALSO voted to continue holding regular meetings on the first and second Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the administration offices at Anne Sullivan School, Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, Prospect Heights.

The official canvass of the April 13 election showed incumbents Lace and Battaglia the victors. Lace received 132 votes, Battaglia 127 votes, and challenger Robert Horna, 32 votes.

In other action the board approved a resolution to pay $1,116 as its share of landscaping work for the Kirk Center. Funds from the 1974-75 fiscal budget will be used for the project.

Ex-trustee Grunst dies

Former Wheeling village trustee John Grunst died Monday night.

Grunst, 69, apparently suffered a fatal heart attack about 10:30 p.m. in his home, 1301 Anthony Rd. Both Wheeling and Buffalo Grove paramedics tried to revive Grunst. Their efforts were unsuccessful and he was pronounced dead on arrival at Lutheran General Hospital.

Grunst was appointed to the village board on Nov. 2, 1953. He ran successfully in 1955 for a full term on the board but decided not to seek reelection in 1959. For the past five years or so, Grunst was a school crossing guard at Heritage Park on Wolf Road. He was a retired employee of the A. B. Dick Co.

The traditional mourning bunting was hung on the village hall Tuesday afternoon.

Doctor sentenced for tax evasion.

An Arlington Heights physician was sentenced to 90 days in jail Tuesday for income tax evasion by U.S. District Court Judge William J. Bauer. Dr. Peter L. Sengson Jr., a gynecologist-obstetrician with offices in Arlington Heights and Schaumburg, had pleaded guilty to evading taxes on $50,000 income in 1967 and 1968. Tax evasion charges for 1968 were dropped in return for the guilty plea. Dr. Sengson, who faced up to 20 years in prison, will serve two years and nine months probation after his release from jail. In passing sentence, Judge Bauer said: "People who cheat on their income tax are not only cheating the government but everyone else." Dr. Sengson, indicted Feb. 25, declared a 1967 taxable income of $12,327.58 when his income should have been reported as $22,640.48, the government charged. He reported a $16,544.70 income in 1968 when the total should have been $35,342.04, according to the indictment.

Open meetings law violation?

The village board of Hoffman Estates apparently violated the Illinois Open Meetings Law three times during two closed sessions it held Monday night. The board reportedly discussed a development plan by Kaufman and Broad, Inc., a citizens' lawsuit threatened against K&B and a police department exchange program.

None of the subjects qualifies for a closed meeting under the state law, which provides penalties of up to $100 fine and 30 days in jail for violators.

No more sticker sales

The Buffalo Grove Village Board has decided not to sell any more village vehicle stickers to Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing, Inc., of Chicago, until the legality of the sticker sales is determined. The board passed a resolution Monday directing a halt of sticker sales to the firm. Trustee James Shirley, who introduced the measure, said, "I think it would be improper to let the meeting pass without commenting on the situation." The Herald disclosed last week that Grand Spaulding was allowed to buy the $10 Buffalo Grove stickers, apparently to avoid paying the higher cost of Chicago vehicle stickers, which cost from $20 to $50.

Prospect firemen get raise

Mount Prospect firemen won a 3.5 per cent pay hike in salary negotiations with the village, matching the raises agreed on with village policemen. In Buffalo Grove, village officials have proposed an average 4 per cent increase in salary ranges for municipal employees.

Home rule testimony

Representatives of 30 municipalities, including Des Plaines, will appear today before the Illinois House Executive Committee to oppose a measure that would restrict licensing powers of home rule cities and villages. A proposed amendment to the 1970 state constitution would give municipalities only those licensing powers specifically approved by the General Assembly.

Cook County census

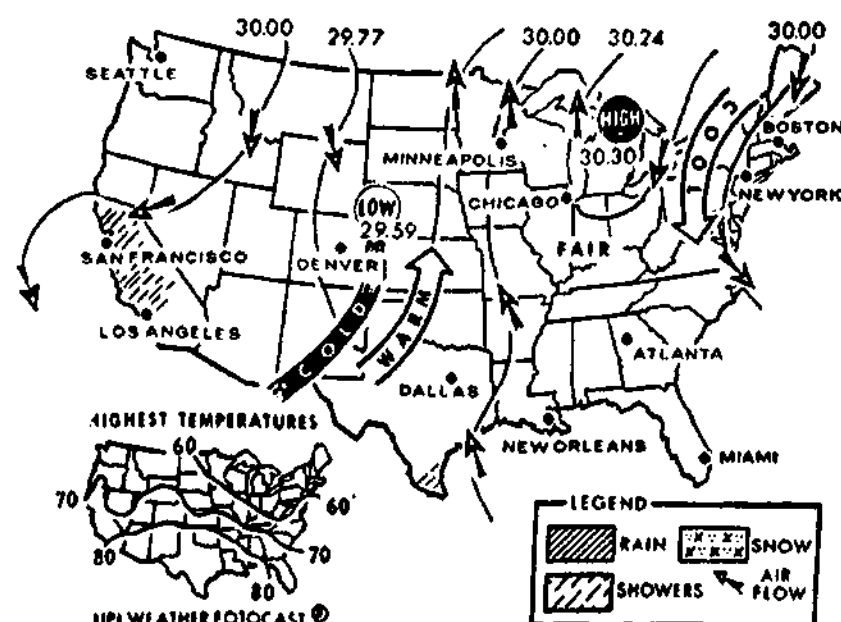

U.S. Census takers are conducting a census of unincorporated Cook County. The special census is being financed by Cook County government in hopes of increasing the per capita motor fuel tax allocation and state income tax rebates the county receives from the state. County officials have estimated there are 150,000 people living in unincorporated areas of the county while income tax distributions are being based on a population of 80,000 to 90,000. The county's unincorporated population level has dropped because of village annexations and special census surveys in many municipalities within the county. Census takers are expected to complete collection of information by the first week in May.

MSD plan honored

The Metropolitan Sanitary District's program of reclaiming strip mined land for farming using liquid fertilizer was named the Outstanding Civil Engineering Achievement of 1974 yesterday by the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Called "the Prairie Plan," the MSD reclamation project is underway in Fulton County 170 miles southwest of Chicago. The award, which MSD spokesmen said is the top award of the civil engineering industry, went to the MSD project over other entries including the new Sears Tower building in Chicago, the National Interstate Highway System, the Bay Area Rapid Transit system in California, and the new Federal Reserve Bank in Minneapolis. Past winners of the award which has been given for 14 years by the society include the Intercontinental Ballistic Missile, John F. Kennedy Airport, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration launch complex, and the St. Louis Arch.

Jayne loses plea to leave prison

by United Press International

Federal Judge Hubert L. Will refused Tuesday to set bail for wealthy horseman Silas Jayne so that he could be free while awaiting the appeal of his conspiracy to commit murder conviction.

Jayne, 66, is serving a 6-to-20-year term in Menard State Prison for his 1973 conviction in the sniper killing of his brother, George, a rival horseman, in Inverness Oct. 28, 1970.

Will dismissed Jayne's petition on grounds that Jayne has not exhausted state remedies.

In his petition, Jayne described himself as a "model prisoner." He said he was in poor health and might die before a decision on his appeal was made.

Jayne also cited the action of Cook

County Circuit Judge Robert E. Meier, who allowed convicted murderer Mario de Stefano to be released on $100,000 appeal bond.

Gutshick hearing continued to May 28

The preliminary hearing of former Oakton Community College trustee Robert Gutshick who is charged with selling LSD has been continued to May 28 in the Niles branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Gutshick was arrested March 28 at Golf Mill Shopping Center in Niles after allegedly selling the drugs to undercover agents from the Metropolitan Enforcement Group. He resigned his seat on the Oakton board April 2 and appeared in court yesterday. The Cook County State's Attorney's office asked for the continuance.

Nixon, economic experts meet

President Nixon met with top economic advisers yesterday to discuss inflation, lagging production and tax-cut proposals, but aides said Nixon still feels there is no chance of a recession this year. Nixon called the session in his Oval Office to review "the entire economic situation." It was his first meeting with his full team of economic experts since last December.

Patricia Hearst's family yesterday released a letter from a New York City man described as a photo expert who said pictures of Miss Hearst taking part in a bank robbery showed that she was an unwilling participant. Peter Davis, who also analyzed Kent State shooting photographs in 1970, said the way the weapon was carried, hand in her pocket, and the fact she could not throw down the weapon without taking off her coat led him to this belief.

'Berserk' robbers turn killer

Police in Ogden, Utah said yesterday two robbers "went berserk," tortured five victims, forced them to drink caustic acid and shot them all in the head, killing three. One of the victims, an 18-year-old girl was left nude on the floor. One survivor sustained a punctured eardrum when jammed in the ear with a pen. Police issued a bulletin for two men wanted for questioning in the HIFI shop slayings.

Link gas to New York building blast

Fire Commissioner John T. O'Hagan of New York, said yesterday the mid-Manhattan explosion that ripped an office building near the United Nations Monday injuring 93 persons, definitely was caused by a gas leak. The blast started in the basement and traveled up the building elevator shafts.

Elite black force hunts 'Zebra' killers

An elite 30-member team of black detectives yesterday began an undercover search for leads to the mysterious San Francisco "Zebra" killers who have shot 18 persons at random in the past five months. Mayor Joseph Alioto, meanwhile, refused to bow to demands by some of the city's leading blacks for an end to the intensive stop-and-search operation in which more than 600 black men have been questioned.

219 students nabbed for library takeover

State police in Storrs, Conn. Tuesday arrested 219 students who refused to end their occupation of the University of Connecticut library building, taken over to dramatize demands for more opportunities and better studies for blacks. The takeover began in the Wilbur Cross Library and six hours later state police arrived on the scene. All students were charged with trespass and will appear in court May 21.

Rabin to be asked to lead Israel

JERUSALEM (UPI) — President Ephraim Katzir will ask Yitzhak Rabin Friday to form a new government to replace Golda Meir's caretaker coalition, making him the first native-born prime minister-designate in Israel's 26-year history, it was announced Tuesday.

Rabin, 52, a 1967 war hero turned diplomat and politician, is the labor minister in Mrs. Meir's outgoing government. He previously served as ambassador to Washington.

"The state in this period needs a stable government and not general elections," said the Labor party's secretary general, Aharon Yadlin. He said he thought Rabin could form a new government within 21 days.

More oil firms report big earnings

From Herald news services

Amid predictions from one industry spokesman that a "vindictive" Congress might lash back, the oil companies continued reporting towering gains in their earnings Tuesday.

First quarter reports were turned in by Exxon, the world's largest oil company, and Texaco, which reported the most stunning gains so far on comparisons made with the first quarter last year.

Texaco's earnings were up 123.2 per cent over the same period in 1973, as the company reported revenues of $4.92 billion, with profits of $589.4 million, or $2.17 a share. Figures last year were revenues of $2.49 billion, and earnings of $264 million, or 97 cents a share.

Exxon's gain was 38.8 per cent, with earnings of $705 million, or $3.15 a share, up from $508 million and $2.27 a share. Exxon's total revenues were $9.945 billion, up more than $3 billion over the initial 1973 quarter.

The figures followed by a day the reports turned in by Gulf Oil and Standard Oil of Indiana.

Gulf, which more than doubled its revenues to $4.516 billion, reported earnings of $290 million, or $1.49 a share — up 76 per cent from the year previous.

Standard Oil of Indiana reported an 81 per cent gain with its earnings of $219 million, or $3.13 a share. Standard's revenues were up 55 per cent to $2.278 billion.

The earnings reports — with more still to come — all reflect the changes in a year in which the widely-publicized energy crisis drove the price of gasoline and other fuels sharply upward.

After similarly healthy reports for the last quarter of 1973, the first quarter reports have been anticipated with predictions from various Congressmen and government officials that they would range from "embarrassing" to "obscene."

Reflecting that mood, Gulf president James E. Lee told a news conference he thought Congress to be in a vindictive mood, and "regardless of the good case we might make," would insist on changing the tax laws to regulate profits in the oil industry.

Lee, saying the profits weren't sufficient to support the capital programs planned, said the consumer eventually would have to pay the cost.

In related developments Tuesday:

• The House Commerce Committee voted 14-12 to include a domestic oil price rollback in a new version of the emergency energy bill vetoed by President Nixon, partly because it contained the same provision.

• The American Automobile Association reported that gasoline supplies and prices seemed to have leveled off nationwide in the past week, with only 2 per cent of stations reporting they were out of fuel. Tightest supplies continued to be in the Northeast, and the best situation in the Rocky Mountain states. Average prices were 54 cents for regular and 58 for premium.

Nixon gets subpoena delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Tuesday won a five-day delay — until next Tuesday — in the deadline for responding to the House Judiciary Committee's subpoena for tapes and documents on 42 Watergate-related conversations for its impeachment inquiry.

Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., the committee chairman, said he and Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, the panel's ranking Republican, agreed to the request for a delay subject to a committee vote at 10 a.m. EDT Thursday, the deadline for a White House response to the subpoena.

Even though the committee might vote to overrule the tentative agreement by Rodino and Hutchinson, the two technically hold full subpoena power in behalf of the committee and could still prevail in their initial decision.

Rodino said James D. St. Clair, the President's chief Watergate lawyer, told John M. Doar, the committee's chief impeachment counsel, Monday that St. Clair was having "a difficult time getting the material together, and the President has not yet reviewed it."

The committee is scheduled to begin hearing impeachment evidence on May 7. Whether that date is met, Rodino said, will depend partly on "whether we get this material."

While announcing approval of Nixon's request for a delay in responding to the subpoena, the White House confirmed that a new committee request for additional Watergate materials had been received by the President's lawyers.

Without detailing the volume of new evidence sought, the White House said it was "more broad in scope" than the previously reported subject areas of the ITT and milk fund cases. Rodino would only say that it also dealt with further evidence involving the Watergate break-in and Senate testimony by former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst.

Meanwhile, returning from Congress' Easter week recess, some Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee said Tuesday they found sentiment at home for Nixon's impeachment had widened and solidified. Republicans on the committee generally reported no significant swing in voter sentiment, however.

Jet crash site reached; all 107 reported killed

DENPASAR, Bali (UPI) — Indonesian army paratroopers hacked their way with machetes to the jungle site of a Pan American World Airways jet crash on the island of Bali just before dark Tuesday and said there were no survivors among the 107 persons aboard. Twenty-six Americans were among the victims.

Earlier, Pan Am received a similar report from two villagers who were the first to reach the site where the Boeing 707 smashed into a mountain as it was coming in for a landing at Denpasar airport — only 37 miles away and so close that the pilot radioed just before the crash he could see the runway lights through the clear night skies.

Officials said the first job facing recovery teams would be to hack a trail out of the heavy jungle for the removal of the bodies.

The plane, Pan Am's flight 812 from Hong Kong to Los Angeles with scheduled stopovers in Bali, Sydney, Fiji and Honolulu, crashed Monday night. Witnesses said they saw flames as the plane hit the mountainside.

Police said the aircraft struck Mt. Mesehe about 340 feet below the summit. The normal approach route to Denpasar airport passes between Mt. Mesehe and nearby Mt. Tingatinga.

Convicted Agnew successor Anderson quits

• Still professing his innocence, N. Dale Anderson quit Monday as Baltimore county executive — a month after his conviction on 32 counts of conspiracy, tax evasion and extortion involving the awarding of contracts to architects and engineers in Maryland. Facing sentencing May 1, Anderson served as county executive since 1966, when he succeeded Spiro Agnew, who was forced from the vice presidency by the same investigation that did in Anderson.

• Still alive and well, Egypt's president Anwar Sadat may have been the intended victim of a bloody assassination attempt last Thursday. According to an account in a Beirut newspaper — being vigorously denied by the Egyptian government — Sadat's motorcade was set upon by machine-gun wielding terrorists on the way to the Technical Military Academy in Cairo, which hours before had been attacked by Arab subversives. The newspaper said 20 persons were killed and dozens injured in the abortive assassination attempt.

• Amid exclamations of, "How beautiful he is," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy brought a touch of American political campaigning to Soviet Georgia Tuesday, as he swept through the colorful central market district of Tbilisi. Accompanied by his two children, Kennedy was trailed by thousands of exuberant Georgians — smiling, clapping, hand-shaking, cheering and straining to get a glimpse of him.

• The American taxpayer got a pat on the back — nothing else, of course — Tuesday from Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Donald Alexander. An analysis of this year's filings showed we came through with "the same thorough, conscientious self-assessment and voluntary compliance as before," and — contrary to predictions — there was no wave of public noncompliance in protest to President Nixon's tax situation.

Lesser-known candidates plan a 'rally'

Some of the lesser-known candidates on the Cook County Republican ticket will meet voters at a meeting of the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization Monday night in Arlington Heights.

Among the better known candidates among the five who will appear at the meeting is Lola Flamm of Evanston, candidate for county clerk. Mrs. Flamm is a member of the Evanston Township High School Board of Education.

Also on hand will be:

- James T. Ryan, Arlington Heights village trustee, a candidate for the Metropolitan Sanitary District board of trustees.

- Vernon F. Frazee of Morton Grove, director of special education in the office of the Illinois superintendent of public instruction, candidate for county school superintendent.

- Dr. E. Marie Johnson of Chicago, a psychological consultant, candidate for the sanitary district.

- Casimir G. Oksas of Chicago, a savings and loan executive, also a candidate for the sanitary district.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

ERA amendment boosted

In a bipartisan effort to boost approval of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and State Rep. Giddy Dyer, R-Hinsdale, addressed a rally in Peoria Monday night.

They urged ERA supporters to bring pressure to bear on the four legislators representing Peoria — all of whom voted against ERA previously — to change their vote when the issue is again raised in the near future.

Hansen names campaign chief

An Evanston Township attorney has been named campaign chairman by Carl R. Hansen, Elk Grove Township GOP committeeman and candidate for president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

He is J. Robert Barr, newly elected Evanston Township committeeman, who succeeded committeeman William Erickson after 23 years.

'Reformers' racing clock

Supporters of a move to eliminate cumulative voting in the election of state representatives in Illinois are racing a May 3 deadline to gather the required signatures for a referendum in November.

The Committee for Legislative Reform announced this week that it is 73,000 signatures short of the 375,000 required to place the question on the ballot in November.

The organization is proposing a constitutional amendment to split legislative districts in two for the election of representatives, and to elect only one representative from each of the new districts. The amendment would reduce the size of the House of Representatives from 177 to 118 members and eliminate cumulative voting in which each voter may split three votes between three, two or one candidate.

Senate hopeful in speech here

Burditt will fight political 'cynicism'

by BOB LAHEY

Republican George Burditt, laboring hard to overcome the advantage of the legendary Illinois name Stevenson in his quest for the U.S. Senate, brought his campaign to Arlington Heights yesterday for an appearance before the annual meeting of the Illinois Retail Merchants Assn.

Burditt told the retailers that name recognition has not been the problem he expected it to be in his travels throughout the state campaigning against Democratic Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III.

But he conceded that voters still know little about "who George Burditt is and why he's running for the U.S. Senate."

In his prepared remarks, Burditt declared he is campaigning for national office "because of the corrosion of moral and ethical standards in this country and particularly in this state, not in spite of it."

Burditt lumped "shoeboxes" (in reference to the late Paul Powell, Illinois secretary of state) . . . the convictions of a former governor of Illinois . . . a former county clerk in Cook County . . . and "Watergate" together as causes of cynicism on the part of the voters. But he said that according to that cynicism is accepting the corruption as a political fact of life.

"I refuse to join in such cynicism," Burditt declared.

REFERRING TO A major concern of retailers — shoplifting — Burditt said, "I ask you to join me in a crusade to bring a new morality designed to cut out the

THE WALLS ARE GOING up on new additions to the three junior high schools in Dist. 21. At Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove, a worker lays concrete blocks for the wing that will accommodate a new vocational education program next fall.

Parking lot addition needed

Village begins planning for new court

Wheeling officials are moving quickly in hopes of bringing a branch of the 2nd Municipal District of the Circuit Court of Cook County to that village in 90 days.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said plans are now being developed for a 100-car addition to the parking lot at the village hall. The additional parking space is needed to accommodate the estimated 75 extra cars that would be brought to the village by the court.

Passolt said he received an official request to locate the court in Wheeling Monday. In the request, Judge Harold W. Sullivan, presiding judge, asked for use of the village council chambers on Friday mornings.

"Because of the steady increase in the (Wheeling and Buffalo Grove) population and the corresponding increase in the number of police personnel, the volume which the court in Arlington Heights has been handling has become unwieldy," Sullivan wrote. "It could alleviate much of the congestion in the Arlington Heights court if the traffic matters for Wheeling and Buffalo Grove could be heard at another location."

WHEELING TRUSTEES gave their blessing to the court, noting that Wheeling officials have been working on the matter for several years. Police Chief Peter Guttilla said the new court will reduce the amount of time Wheeling patrolmen have to spend outside of the village.

The new parking lot will be located just east of the municipal building. Passolt said the lot is being designed to allow the eventual construction of a new fire station behind the lot and next to the hall.

Judge Sullivan said the court will need

Burglary try fails at Your Pie House

An unknown burglar unsuccessfully tried to break into Your Pie House restaurant, 335 S. Milwaukee Ave., Sunday night, Wheeling police said Tuesday. Someone tried to force a door at the restaurant between 5:45 p.m. Sunday and 7:20 a.m. Monday. The burglar could not gain entry, however. Damage to the door was an estimated $40.

45 days notice to move court operations to Wheeling "to accommodate the cases that are already pending in the Arlington Heights court."

Passolt said he hopes that the court could be in operation in about 90 days, but added that there might be some delays. "Once they actually come out and start the parking lot, we can give our 45-day notice right then and there," he said.

The manager said he does not yet have an estimate on the cost of the parking lot addition. He said the area in front of the lot would be landscaped and grassed-in to make it more attractive.

Trustee Don Jackson asked that the village take special pains with the landscaping because "I think it is important that we set a good example." He noted that the village has been seeking improvement of other parking lots in Wheeling.

BOTH WHEELING and Rolling Meadows had petitioned within the last year for a second courtroom facility. Sullivan selected the Wheeling location after agreement with area chiefs of police.

The backlog of court cases in Arlington

Heights has been increasing. The problem was particularly bad several weeks ago when more than 320 cases from the Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Rolling Meadows police departments were scheduled one day.

Trustee Ed Berger noted that while the court is now being planned for only one day a week, this may increase to two days each week within the next year or two.

AFS bottle drive slated Saturday

Members of the Wheeling and Buffalo Grove High School American Field Service (AFS) chapters will conduct a bottle drive Saturday in both communities.

The students plan to go door-to-door asking residents to contribute bottles that may be returned for deposits.

Proceeds from the drive will be used to help sponsor foreign exchange students at the school next year. Last year's drive netted about $500, or nearly half the cost of sponsoring one student.

Village board wrapup

Employee appeal unit near reality

Wheeling employees are one step closer to having a special appeal board to rule on all firings, demotions and suspensions.

The Wheeling Village Board has placed an ordinance creating the board on its passage and directed that it be posted for public inspection. The matter will come for final vote May 6.

The appeal board was first requested by the employees three years ago to provide protection against political firings, demotions and suspensions. The employees said they had no job protection and feared political housecleaning in case of a change in administration.

Prior to the vote, Trustee Ed Berger questioned one section of the ordinance that states if an employee is found innocent or charges are dismissed, the employee will be reinstated "with full consideration." He asked if this provided ample protection for the employee.

Village Atty. Paul Hamer said he interpreted the ordinance to provide that in such case the employee would be granted back pay and reinstated to his original position.

A set of rules and regulations is now being developed to provide the village with guidelines for any disciplinary action. Village Mgr. George Passolt said he hopes the rules will be before the board by May 6.

Approval of a proposed recapture agreement along Hintz Road east of Elmhurst Road was delayed so that legal descriptions of the property affected could be included.

The recapture agreement is proposed as part of Cheran's subdivision, located off Maple Lane. Developer Arthur Hansen will install 1,050 feet of watermain along Hintz Road to provide a loop in the water system. In return, Hansen will get $680 per acre for hook-ups into the main for the 28.4 acres at the time the property benefited by the improvement is developed.

Plan for Bicentennial

Trustee Al Lang has asked that the Wheeling Relations Commission serve as the official village representative during all planning of a Wheeling celebration of the nation's bicentennial in 1976.

Lang noted that the village had used its commissions in planning the Wheeling Diamond Jubilee in 1969. "I feel the Village of Wheeling should participate in the Bicentennial celebration," he said, noting that the relations commission was best suited to serve as a liaison between the board and the community.

Code revisions accepted

Wheeling has accepted the 1973 revisions of the life-safety code, which governs the construction, protection and occupancy of structures.

The village had been using the 1967 regulations. Since several changes have been made in the code, the board adopted the entire revised code.

Zone change hearings set

The Wheeling Zoning Board has been directed to schedule two hearings on requests for zoning changes.

The first request is from William and Georgia Alexander who are seeking a business zoning for the southwest corner of Jeffery and Milwaukee avenues. The two plan to re-open the gas station on that corner, which has been abandoned for several years.

The second hearing will be on a set-back variation that would allow North Shore Distributors, Inc. to build an addition on its building at 411 N. Wolf Rd. This is the second request from the firm, which had to withdraw its original petition because of an error in the legal description.

Open street bids May 6

Bids for the 1974 street maintenance program will be opened at the May 6 meeting of the village board.

Work on the street repairs will begin as soon as the contracts for purchase of concrete and asphalt and striping work are approved by the state and awarded.

The village plans to use the Cutler repaver to put a new surface on sections of Anthony Road, Valley Stream Drive, St. Armand Lane and Cedar Drive. Public works employees will make base repairs to these streets prior to the surfacing.

Dist. 214 wrapup

Film on drug problems bought

All seven members of the High School Dist. 214 board volunteered Monday to present a film on student drug problems to community groups.

In addition, the board agreed to buy three copies of the film, titled "An Addict in Every House," which has been used for a seminar being offered this semester by three Elk Grove High School teachers for faculty and administrators in Dist. 214. The film costs about $300 a copy.

The film was shown Monday at the beginning of the Dist. 214 board meeting. It shows parents and children in drug rehabilitation programs talking about their problems and feelings. Parts of the film were made in Park Ridge and Elmhurst.

Richard Penley, one of the Elk Grove teachers running the drug seminar told the board, "The underlying basis of the film is communication." He added that when presented to groups, the film should be preceded by an introduction and followed by discussion of the issues raised.

Board Pres. Jack Costello, a member of the class, said that he felt the district could use the film for community groups, including elementary school PTA's and other organizations. "You certainly can identify people that you have met in that film," Costello said. "I feel it could be used particularly in grade school districts for parents of small children."

Sabbatical try voted down

John McGee, sociology teacher at Prospect High School, lost by a 4-3 vote his second try to get a sabbatical leave to spend next year in northern Wisconsin.

McGee, who was turned down in a 4-3 vote by the Dist. 214 board last month, asked the board to reconsider his proposal. He said he would use the year at half pay to live and work in the small northern Wisconsin communities on the shores of Lake Superior and to read books relevant to the sociology course to compile a book of readings to be used by students when he returns.

"I've had six very good years in the district," McGee said, "and I'll continue to do a good job one way or another." However, he said he felt the year would help him to be a better teacher by giving him time to sort through materials to be used in the course.

Board Pres. Jack Costello, who was absent at the first vote, said he would vote against the sabbatical even though "I don't know any teacher in the district who has more respect from his students or has my own personal respect anymore than you do, John."

Costello said he voted against the sabbatical because "while I support the concept that a sabbatical need not be attached to further education and to further degrees — I feel this sabbatical does not address itself to the major sociological problem of our society which I consider the inner city rather than the north woods."

Music teachers to be hired

The High School Dist. 214 board has agreed to hire two teachers in order to upgrade the district's orchestra program.

The board agreed with a recommendation from Supt. Edward Gilbert that the two teachers be hired and each assigned to four of the district's schools. The teachers could then work with students to improve the orchestra program in all schools.

Although all the district schools have bands, Gilbert pointed out to the board that when orchestra students from all the district schools are brought together, they form only a 75 or 80 piece orchestra. Both Wheeling and Elk Grove high schools, Gilbert said, have "fairly good" orchestra programs but "none of our schools has an outstanding 200 piece orchestra."

Action called discriminatory

The Dist. 214 board heard Monday from residents who are not happy that students in their area were provided options in a recent boundary change shifting them from Hersey to Wheeling High School.

The group of residents of northern Mount Prospect who live between Palatine and Camp McDonald roads told the board that many of their children will be forced to shift to Wheeling from Hersey because they don't have older brothers or sisters now at Hersey.

When the area shifts from Hersey to Wheeling next year, the board has agreed to allow all students now attending Hersey to finish there and to allow younger brothers and sisters of students now at Hersey the choice of which school to attend.

Parents of children without older brothers and sisters said they believe the action is discriminatory because their children will be separated from their friends by the option. "The kids without the option are in the minority," one woman said.

In addition, Lloyd Demel, a member of the River Trails Dist. 26 board and a participant in the past boundary discussions, asked the Dist. 214 board to reconsider its action because "many people are disappointed" with the board's action and because "I think many people believe that boards will not often hear their needs."

Dist. 214 board members explained they had ordered the boundary change both to relieve overcrowding at Hersey and to increase the enrollment at Wheeling, which is projected to have a declining enrollment during the next several years.

Board members said they would give Demel their enrollment projections and will be following the enrollment figures for the two schools in the future, but said they doubted the decision would change unless projections on enrollment change dramatically.

Dist. 21 wrapup

Lane reelected board head

Jack Lane of Arlington Heights will serve as president of the Dist. 21 school board for the coming year.

Lane was reelected to the board for a second three-year term in the April 13 election. He will head the board until the election next spring.

Lane was named to the post in an organizational meeting of the Dist. 21 school board Monday night. At that time, Kenneth Rodeck of Wheeling was also named to serve as secretary of the board this year.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the board is set for 8:15 p.m., Thursday, May 9.

Omni-House to be backed

Dist. 21 will continue to sponsor Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau next year.

The school board voted Monday night to co-sponsor the Wheeling counseling agency in order to allow the youth services bureau to reapply for financial aid from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

Although Wheeling and Buffalo Grove provide the majority of local funds to Omni-House, the agency also serves Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights.

Bond sale planned

Dist. 21 is planning a bond sale May 23 to obtain the remaining $1,900,000 of a $4.5 million referendum approved by residents in 1971.

The school board Monday authorized the district's attorneys to solicit bids on the bonds on a 10-year retirement schedule approved by the board two weeks ago.

Proceeds from the bond sale will be used to partially finance the construction of additions to the three Dist. 21 junior high schools for a new vocational education program.

In response to new Blair proposals

Walker seeks meeting on RTA crisis

ILLINOIS HOUSE SPEAKER W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, proposes a Downstate public transportation act that would provide for $15 million to $30 million for Downstate mass transportation. Blair earlier announced his support to modify the current Regional Transportation Authority law in accordance with wishes of suburban Chicago legislators.

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Gov. Daniel Walker Tuesday called for a meeting with legislative leaders in an apparent attempt to save the Chicago-area Regional Transportation Authority.

Walker's request came only hours after House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, unveiled the second portion of a statewide transit plan that would threaten the continued existence of the newly created Chicago-area authority.

"The purpose of the meeting," Walker said in a statement, "is to discuss the views of the legislative leaders of parties in both houses on the proposals being made by Speaker Blair and others."

Blair, however, said the meeting indicated Walker is "getting vibes from the people — the wobbles" on the RTA question.

BLAIR WAS ONE of several lawmakers who participated in the drafting of the RTA law during last year's session. Last week, however, he proposed an amendment to the law which would permit any of the six RTA counties to withdraw from the authority.

The second phase of the plan — announced Tuesday — would provide up to $30 million in state grants for public mass transit in downstate counties. Blair said the downstate proposal was "quite frankly" an attempt to win the backing of downstate legislators for his RTA amendment.

Blair already is counting on the support of lawmakers from suburban RTA districts. Voters in those areas soundly rejected the RTA at its March 19 referendum, although a heavy "yes" vote in Chicago carried the proposition to an areawide victory.

"THE CHICAGO-AREA RTA referendum has put every member of the General Assembly on notice that people want local control over the decisions that affect their daily lives," Blair told newsmen. "The people feel, and I agree, that public transportation needs can be identified and addressed on the local level while maintaining a high degree of fiscal responsibility."

Under the downstate transit plan, all counties outside the RTA would be eligible for state grants to be used to improve mass transit services, to start new transit systems where needed, and to help finance street improvements.

Blair said all counties that vote themselves out of the RTA would be eligible for downstate transit grants.

Funds for the program, he said, would come from the state sales tax based on the same formula used in the RTA plan and would be divided among Downstate communities on the basis of population.

As examples of the yearly grants, Blair said, Springfield would receive $462,435 under the plan, Champaign-Urbana would get $456,503, Quincy $228,252, and Joliet, if it withdrew from the RTA, would get $410,732.

"Cities without sufficient revenue to serve the transportation needs of the people will have the resources to get the job done," Blair said. "And we will get this important job done with no tax increase. We can have new, wanted and needed services with no tax increase."

BLAIR SAID THE plan would cost the state at most $15 million more than it is currently committed to under the RTA plan. He said the cost would depend on the number of counties that vote themselves out of the RTA.

He said if the RTA remains intact, it would still receive $80 million from the state and Downstate transit systems would share $15 million. If all five suburban counties and suburban Cook County withdraw from the RTA, Chicago would be eligible for $60 million in transit grants and downstate would share $30 million.

Blair said in that event, the $60 million available for Chicago would not be granted automatically but would come under close scrutiny by lawmakers before being appropriated on a formula that, he said, has not yet been determined.

Transit leaders rap new RTA proposals

by STEVE FORSTYTH

Key Chicago area transportation officials Tuesday condemned new efforts to scuttle the Regional Transportation Authority.

The officials, meeting at a seminar on the future impact of RTA on regional development, were critical of proposals by Illinois House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, to modify the RTA plan approved March 19 in a six-county referendum.

Larry S. Provo, president of the Chicago and North Western Transportation Co., said, "It's a shame this meeting has to be held with a few clouds over it."

Referring to proposed amendments that would allow counties to pull out of the RTA, he said the railroads apparently did not get their point across. "I don't think people will believe the railroads until something terrible happens. They assume things will remain status quo, but this is not true."

"North Western is not going to buy any new equipment. I assume the Rock Island Line would file for abandonment, the Illinois Central would have to do something. I assume wiser heads than those now grabbing headlines will prevail."

Chicago Transit Authority chairman Milton Pikarsky also assailed the plan by Blair to amend the RTA or allow it to die. "It's the RTA proposal passed by voters — the finest piece of legislation of its type ever drafted," he said. "Give it a chance to prove its worth without any major changes."

ROBERT K. WIDDICOMBE, the executive vice president of the Homebuilders Assn. of Chicago, said, "Housing typically goes where people want to go. The more transportation there is, the more housing options you have."

"A practical RTA operation, equitably administered, will create more options in housing. Don't study it to death and don't allow political implications to keep it a problem. Do something, even if it is wrong, because it may not be that wrong and at least we'll be moving."

John Bailey, director of the Transportation Center at Northwestern University, said the opting-out provision could only be harmful to the region. "Getting out is only effective if every county is self-contained," he said. Bailey cited a study that showed a great percentage of the workers in each county traveled to another county for their jobs. He said Du Page county was the highest, with 51 per cent of its workers commuting outside the county.

"Opting out is only sensible if there is another alternative. The car isn't that option," he said. Bailey said 33 per cent of the residents in the six-county RTA area do not have access to cars because they are either too young, too old, handicapped or unable to afford them.

HIGHWAYS CANNOT handle the burden of transportation in the metropolitan region because many of them are already operating at capacity, said Sigmund Ziejewski, regional transportation engineer for the Illinois Department of Transportation.

He said the RTA, in addition to combining mass transit with the highway system, could be valuable in planning because of the RTA's mandate to develop five-year plans.

With those plans, highway interconnections and supplemental freeways can be designed more effectively, Ziejewski said.

The seminar, held at a Loop restaurant, was sponsored by the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry.

Know Your P's and Q's About Plate Collecting?

WANTED: One rare, gilt-edge plate in pure white translucent china—hand-painted with a garland of wild roses. You find this prize plate in a jungle of antiques at a garage sale and buy it for $10.

THE YEAR is 1979. An eager collector wants to buy your wild rose plate for $395! If you sell it, you suddenly make $385, because you knew how to spot a "sleeper" with true artistic worth and rarity.

FICTION? Not altogether. Today, many average people with only average incomes make money buying and selling collector's plates while they enjoy one of the most fascinating of all hobbies.

For instance, a china plate first priced at only $10 in 1969 now brings $245. Another exceptional plate originally priced at $25 in 1965 now sells for $1,050.

WHAT is the secret of success in collecting plates for profit? A suburban Chicago art dealer says, "The amateur collector needs professional guidance. You should know what to look for, when to buy, and much more."

According to this dealer, when you know the guidelines, there's much more than profit in collecting rare plates. There's pride of ownership almost unequalled by any other hobby. There's the joy of discovering stunning porcelain, glass, pewter, or silver plates for dramatic wall displays.

You can choose designs by Pablo Picasso, Grandma Moses, André Rosteau, Andrew Wyeth, and other noted artists. There are all kinds of themes—nature scenes, stirring historical events, childhood vignettes, portraits of world heroes, and much more.

In our servicing rounds from day to day we sometimes find low quality tubes and other cheap components in TV sets. Of course, most folks don't know one electronic part from another and must accept the TV servicers' choice. But be assured that there is a difference just as there is in any other merchandise.

Low quality electronics is expensive in the long run because it wears out faster and adjustments are harder to make and maintain. You need more service.

When you phone 255-0700, you'll notice that Landwehr's Home Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights prices is not the lowest. We use no short cuts nor low quality parts. Our testing equipment is the finest. You will need less service during the life of your set, and you will have the best viewing possible. Our customers will affirm this. Ask them.

Predicts possible fuel shortages

CTA head Pikarsky doesn't want RTA efforts slowed

Efforts to establish a workable Regional Transportation Authority should not be slowed even though gasoline supplies in the Chicago area have increased, CTA chairman Milton Pikarsky said Tuesday.

In a panel discussion on the impact of RTA on development in the region, Pikarsky said, "If we have a severe winter next year, the fuel shortages will be even greater." If recreational driving increases this summer, the shortage could result even sooner, he warned.

Pikarsky was one of several speakers who explained the need for mass transportation, particularly in the suburbs.

ROBERT B. TESKA, vice president of Barton-Aschman Associates, Inc., said transportation congestion in the suburbs far exceeds congestion in the city because there is a simple lack of arterial highways, properly spaced, and the option for more highways is closed in most cases.

"Mass transit is the only option," he said.

Teska said the burden will be on the suburbs themselves to improve their transportation situation. They should do consumer research to see what is needed, conduct their own transit-planning programs, coordinate land-use planning with mass transportation and develop mass transit terminal areas.

Sigmund Zieglowski, regional transportation engineer for the Illinois Department of Transportation, said public transportation accounts for only 13 percent of the daily trips in the Chicago area, but if those trips were added to the highways, 70 to 100 new expressways would have to be built.

In addition, the loss of public transportation would cost persons accessibility to their jobs, would add to air pollution, and would result in the need for more land to be taken up by roads and parking facilities.

BUSES GEARED TO operations of the commuter railroads will be the key to successful transportation in the suburbs, even if the buses had to be provided free, said Larry Provo, president of the Chicago and North Western Transportation Co.

"Once you have a good portal-to-portal transportation, I think you can convince people to use it if the price is right," he said.

Pikarsky said, "There is a need to erase the misconception that highways and mass transportation may be competitive. They are complimentary, and there is a need for a total transportation thrust with coordinating modes to allow each greatest efficiency."

Good public transportation is good for everyone, he said, because it opens up the roadways, reduces pollution and saves fuel. Pikarsky said federal money would have to be made available soon on the same basis that was provided for the nation's highway system.

HE SUGGESTED $600 million a year to start, with a $400 million emergency fund this year along to allow purchase of new equipment for the nation's transportation system.

The suburbs should be attuned to the need for mass transportation, according to Charles Willson, vice president of area development for the Continental Bank, because much of the new office and industrial space in the region is being built there.

More than four million square feet of office space has been built in the Northwest suburbs in the past five years, he said, while growth also has continued in the central business district.

'The Tonight Show' pattern for Sacred Heart program

A parody of "The Tonight Show," featuring takeoffs on television personalities and a variety of songs and dances, will be presented by Sacred Heart of Mary High School students at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the school gym, 2800 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows.

The variety show is being sponsored by the senior class and will include a cast of more than 30 students. Tickets, selling at 50 cents for students and $1 for adults, may be purchased at the school now or at the door.

Junior Gail Mulcahy will open the program with a "Johnny Carson monologue," joined by sophomore Mary Beth Carroll as Ed McMahon. Tonight show guests include an editor for a true confession magazine and Rich Little presenting an imitation of Elvis Presley. Variety acts feature a song written and sung by senior Alice Sylvester and sophomore Anne Sylvester. Junior Toni Lombardi will present two original songs and junior Mary Jo Alfani will perform an acrobatics act.

Proceeds will be used toward the purchase of theatrical equipment for the school.

The program is being planned by student committees including seniors Carol Jarzensky, Mary Alden, Mary Mullin and Joan Griffin under the direction of moderator Kate Warner, a teacher at the school.

Teen problems parley Thursday

Parents, teachers and students will discuss school and teen-age problems at the Prospect High School Teacher-Parent Council meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the school.

Theme for the evening is "Parent Survival Crash Course in Adolescence" and seminars will be held on seven topics. Parents will be able to participate in any two of the seminars.

Seminar topics and their leaders are:

- "English curriculum," with Ron Sims from the school's division of English and Fine Arts.
- "General Education," with Assistant Principal Howard Sandlund.
- "Teen-age values" with a panel of students, college counselor Dave Lindemann and Prospect psychologist Richard Malter.

- "School-Parent Expectations," with Assistant Principal James Kunnen, Dean Don Arseneau and police counselor Steve Leonard.
- "Teacher selection-scheduling-grading," with Principal Edward Spacapan, counselor Jeanne Fowler and Robert Grabitz, from the division of foreign language and social studies.

- "Testing and Counseling," with Clarence Feiereisel, division head of pupil personnel.
- "Work Programs," with Richard Etherton, division head of practical arts.

Herald opinion

Blair RTA plan absurd

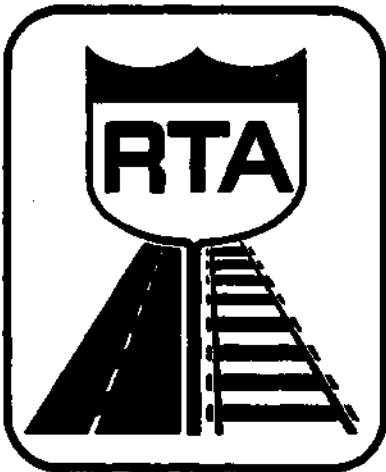

The people of the six counties of Northeastern Illinois approved, in referendum last month, the creation of a Regional Transit Authority.

Though we opposed the form of the RTA on which the people voted, that vote should be allowed to stand.

In a remarkable turnaround, House Speaker W. Robert Blair, one of the authors of the RTA bill, has proposed amendments to it which would surely be fatal to a regional transit authority.

Ignoring the total vote, and citing huge votes against RTA in the five counties outside Cook County, Blair now wants to give those five counties the option to withdraw — without referendum. "I am going to listen to the people," says Speaker Blair.

This is the same Speaker Blair

Bicycle paths needed

I read your editorial praising legislation that will promote bike paths and I am in wholehearted agreement. Being an active cyclist myself, I would like to inject a few additional points that I feel to be important.

With the number of bicycles that are being sold (more bikes sold last year than automobiles), especially to adults, safety and the obeying of traffic rules must be stressed more than ever.

Many adults are seen riding against traffic train their kids to ride the same way. Riding against traffic is both illegal and deadly. If a bike going 15 mph contacts a car going 30 mph head on, a 45 mph impact will result. If the bike is moving with traffic the impact would be reduced to 15 mph and the chances of being pushed away from total impact would be much improved.

Children must be taught correct traffic rules when very young and then both adults and children must practice them each and every day. With the number of bikes on the road cyclists should be subject to traffic citations as are motorists.

It is my feeling that bike paths are good but in most cases they don't go where I have to go. In these cases I take to the street and while I have a right to travel most surface streets, I also have a responsibility to obey all traffic rules. Even so, I know that I will lose any argument I have with a car so I try to ride as defensively as I can.

Though I agree that more bike paths are needed it is also my feeling that more work has to be done to assimilate bicycles into our road system.

There is no set rule as to how this should be done. In one case, depending upon road construction and traffic, it may be adequate to simply post bike route signs. In very congested areas bike route signs may suggest a sense of security and thus lure cyclists into a death trap. In these areas it may be wiser to eliminate auto parking one side of the street to permit more room, make the street one way or paint a yellow line that would designate a bike lane. A one way bike lane would use only 30 inches to 36 inches of road space. Some communities have found a painted boundary to be effective while others have used painted lines in conjunction with actual formed curbing that separates the bike and auto lanes.

All communities should also look at their curb side drain covers. Some of these are slotted and will accept a bicycle wheel. These are deadly when the slots are in line with traffic flow because the front wheel can enter the slots, lock the wheel and thus throw the rider. Last summer these covers accounted for many injuries as well as some deaths. It's expensive to replace these covers, but the round ones can be made safer if the slots are aligned with the width of the street instead of with traffic. The curb side covers can be improved by welding bars across the slots. When this is done correctly the wheel will not actually lock up and the cover will still receive water. This has been done to some

Fence post letters to the editor

To the Arlington Heights Park District:

It has come to my attention that the Arlington Heights Park District is attempting to institute a system of fees and advance reservations regarding the public use of the district's tennis courts. I strongly believe that such a system would be very difficult to administer and would serve no real purpose.

Suggests a tennis plan

I would suggest as an alternative method of regulation that a simple rule be passed and enforced whereby children under 16 must yield the court to adults after six p.m. daily and all day Saturday and Sunday. (Children playing tennis with their parents would not be required to yield.)

During the summer children are free to use the courts throughout the week. Few adults have this chance. It would seem quite fair, therefore, that working, tax-paying adults be given priority use of the park district tennis courts during the limited free time they have available. This privilege would be but one small benefit adults might receive from an otherwise child orientated park program.

I sincerely hope you will give my suggestion consideration.

Clark Mollenhoff's 'Watch on Washington' Kissinger aide blasted

by CLARK R. MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON — One of the most amazing stories in the Nixon administration is the ascendancy of Helmut Sonnenfeldt as a major influence on American foreign policy, despite unresolved charges that he lied to a congressional committee on matters dealing with national security.

Sonnenfeldt, 49, is an expert on Soviet-American affairs. His influence on foreign policy is second only to that of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, and for details of Soviet-American relations, Kissinger leans heavily upon Sonnenfeldt, an old friend.

While the special prosecutor pursued in detail the charges that former presidential aides Dwight Chapin, Egil (Bud) Krogh, Herbert L. (Bart) Porter and Jeb S. Magruder lied about campaign financing, the Justice Department has exhibited no interest in exploring the possibility that Sonnenfeldt committed perjury.

As the controversial Sonnenfeldt has survived, prospered, and been approved by the Senate as counselor in the State Department, he owes it all to the passing of the magic words: "Henry wants him."

As Chapin, Krogh, Porter and Magruder have been convicted in the Watergate affair, Sonnenfeldt sits in on White House conferences with Kissinger and takes a leading role in preparing for Nixon's meetings with Soviet leaders this summer.

Meanwhile, serious questions remain unresolved concerning Sonnenfeldt's truthfulness before congressional committees and his handling of information with high national security classifications.

Those questions were raised but not resolved before two Senate committees — Foreign Relations and Finance — and still are under active investigation by the House Internal Security Subcommittee, where Kissinger has been able to stall the appearance of key witnesses for several months with "executive privilege" assertions.

Several responsible witnesses have testified against Sonnenfeldt, and John Hemenway, a former Foreign Service officer, spelled out the problem succinctly in a letter to the Justice Department asking for a criminal investigation.

"Specifically, Mr. Helmut Sonnenfeldt, an employee of the U.S. Department of State and the NSC (National Security Council), stands accused of 'leaking' highly classified information to foreign agents with whom he had frequent and close association and to other persons."

"These charges were made in the public record... The charges were specific, capable of being decisively proved or disproved, and were made under oath by a number of responsible citizens including Mr. Otto Otepka, retired member of the Subversive Activities Control Board; and Mr. Stephen Koczak, retired U.S. diplomat who currently holds a responsible position with the AFGE (American Federation of Government Employees) of the AFL-CIO. Many corroborating witnesses are available and have been named in the record."

Hemenway noted that Sonnenfeldt denied the charges under oath before the Senate Finance Committee.

Political figures who have abhorred the lack of investigations that was the Watergate cover-up and who have criticized arbitrary executive secrecy in connection with the White House tapes have been unconcerned or silent as the Kissinger branch of the same Nixon administration refuses to answer factual questions and produce witnesses in the Sonnenfeldt controversy.

Newspaper and magazine writers, who rightly pursued the suspected perjury in the Watergate cover-up and who delved into Nixon's tax matters, seem content with inaction on the serious charges against Sonnenfeldt.

Although some of the security violation charges against Sonnenfeldt go back to the late 1950s, his most recent triumphs over his critics are due almost entirely to the fact that Kissinger regards him as an indispensable man in negotiations with the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China.

From all that is known or written, Sonnenfeldt's brilliant talents are as indispensable to Kissinger as Kissinger is to Nixon. As Kissinger becomes more involved in the whole sweep of American foreign policy and running the State Department, he becomes more dependent upon Sonnenfeldt for the detailed staff work in preparation for international meetings.

J. William Fulbright

While Sonnenfeldt is described as "a hardliner" in American-Soviet negotiations, he and Kissinger presided as the major policy planners in the disastrous Soviet grain deals and the much-criticized Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT) agreements.

We are told that Sonnenfeldt's abrasive personality causes periodic clashes with Kissinger, but it was Kissinger who rescued Sonnenfeldt from his most recent Senate confirmation problems by passing the word to Foreign Relations Committee Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., that he wanted Sonnenfeldt as counselor and would personally vouch for his loyalty and integrity.

For Fulbright and Senator George Aiken, R-Vt., the ranking Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee, the fact that "Henry wants him" was enough. They didn't even require Kissinger to appear formally under oath to be precise about just why he wanted and needed Sonnenfeldt, or why the serious charges made under oath should not be resolved with an examination of all available witnesses and documents.

While Kissinger was still President Nixon's special assistant for international affairs, he suggested Sonnenfeldt, then his top White House aide, as an undersecretary of the Treasury in charge of all East-West trade relations. However, that nomination was bottled up in the Senate Finance Committee where Senator Harry Byrd, D-Va., expressed concern over Sonnenfeldt's role in the Soviet grain deals.

Byrd also questioned whether Sonnenfeldt had an adequate background in business and international economics for the Treasury post, and cited the grain deals as indicative of the consequences of a lack of experience in trade matters.

Chairman Russell Long, D-La., heard testimony from two former Foreign Service officers — Hemenway and Koczak — concerning the alleged leaking of classified information to intelligence agents for Israel. They said their allegations could be supported by other witnesses and documents at the FBI, CIA and State Department.

Long made a futile effort to obtain those documents, and finally gave up in the face of an executive branch stall. When he reported the Sonnenfeldt nomination to the floor he explained that it was not his fault that all of the evidence was not explored because the executive branch had refused to cooperate.

Before the Sonnenfeldt nomination came to a vote in the Senate, it was withdrawn and, at Kissinger's urging, Sonnenfeldt's name was submitted a counselor at the State Department. This move brought the nomination under the jurisdiction of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Fulbright.

While Fulbright expressed concern over the allegations against Sonnenfeldt, he prevailed upon his committee to vote approval because "Henry wants him." Fulbright didn't even call the witnesses who wanted to appear against Sonnenfeldt, nor did he require that Kissinger be questioned under oath on the handling of the security questions in the Sonnenfeldt matter.

This laxity of the Senate investigation was called to the attention of the House Internal Security Committee investigating the effectiveness of government security programs.

A preliminary investigation demonstrated to Chairman Richard Ichord, D-Mo., and Representative John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, that there were many unanswered questions.

Although subpoenas were approved for several witnesses, the State Department and the Justice Department have engaged in a stall of several months comparable in many respects to the delays the House Judiciary Committee is getting from Nixon on the White House tapes.

What makes the Sonnenfeldt affair most amazing is the fact that it is taking place at a time when it appeared the press, politicians and political scientists had made new resolves on the dangers of executive secrecy, the importance of executive department accountability to Congress and the corruptive impact when allegedly false testimony is permitted to go unchallenged.

Fill 'er up—with manure?

Methane fuel, made from animal wastes, may replace gasoline for auto engines

by LEONARD LUERAS

HONOLULU — "Instead of a tiger, we have a chicken in our tank."

With that sendoff from its developer, a large sedan powered by a combination of refined chicken manure, pig manure and shredded palm fronds began a historic journey around a campus fountain at the University of Hawaii.

The automobile, which runs on methane gas made from local organic waste, leaves nothing in its wake except nonpolluting water vapor.

Now, for the first time, methane automobile fuel is going to be commercially produced and distributed by Encotech, a Hawaii-based "energy conversion" corporation funded by a group of local investors.

While Encotech's aim is to turn waste into profit, it has received a great deal of research and development aid from scientists at the University of Hawaii who believe in the long-range environmental benefits of nonpolluting fuel.

IN RETURN, Encotech has donated a grant of $19,500 to the University for further study of an organic waste recycling system. Moreover, it has committed in perpetuity a portion of all pretax Encotech profits to sustain research by the University to create other recycled waste products.

At the demonstration, Dr. James H. Koshi, of the University's animal sciences department, and John van Geldern, Encotech's project manager, announced that, if fully implemented, their garbage-to-fuel scheme could eliminate all the sewage being generated by the 678,124 residents of Honolulu within five years.

When the nonpolluting methane gas is in commercial production later this year, it will be sold to drivers at a pump cost of 36 cents per gallon — a little more than half the going price of regular oil-based gasoline.

Along with the price difference, van Geldern contends that methane gas will increase a car's miles-per-gallon performance by about 15 to 30 per cent.

IN OTHER WORDS, if your car is now getting 10 miles per gallon of regular gasoline, you should get about 12.5 miles per gallon on methane gas at 60 per cent of the cost per gallon.

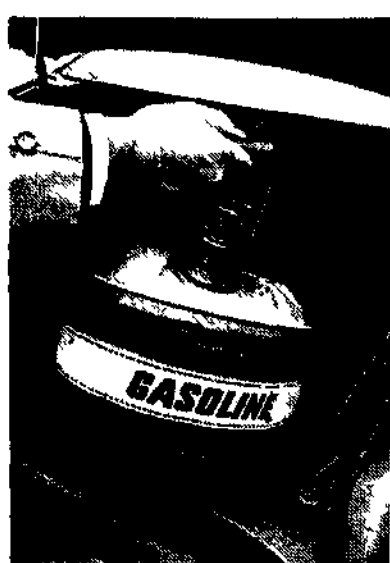

"But the most important thing," van Geldern said, "is it's clean. There's nothing left. Just water vapor."

Koshi and van Geldern explained that "when methane is commercially produced and filtered, it becomes an odorless, colorless, cleanburning 100 octane fuel which produces absolutely no harmful smog-creating exhaust emissions."

"Among the fuel's plus factors," they said "is its low cost and its lack of gums, tars, varnishes or carbon deposits on engines."

"Engines can go farther between oil changes, and some cars have been known to operate over 150,000 miles without the need for a ring or valve job."

In the demonstration at the University of Hawaii, fuel came from an air tank

"The most important thing is that it's clean. There's nothing left but water vapor."

"Engines can go farther between oil changes, and some cars have been known to operate over 150,000 miles without the need for a ring or valve job..."

"By using dry-vapor fuel like this, you get mileage-plus, because dry vapor is totally burned..."

— John van Geldern, project manager located in the trunk just behind the spare tire. The tank was about four feet long and 12 inches in diameter, with a capacity of about 12 gallons under pressure.

"BY USING dry-vapor fuel like this, you get mileage-plus, because dry vapor is totally burned," van Geldern said, adding that "you lose about 30 per cent of wet fuel" via evaporation.

He explained further that besides the air tank, the only conversions required on a normal car are the installation of a two-stage regulator which reduces air pressure, an air filter and a fuel cutoff device for the regular gas tank lines.

The cost of converting an ordinary gasoline-combustion car to a methane gas system, he said, would be between $180 and $200 per vehicle.

However, Encotech is planning to convert combustion systems free of charge and allow the vehicle owner to pay for the conversion over several years as a small part of the over-all methane fuel costs.

Van Geldern said that the methane system is better than a normal gasoline system because "government rated" air tanks used to store methane are 10 times safer than normal gasoline tanks.

"You can't puncture them as easily, they take more heat, and methane-vapor fuel has a much higher flash point than regular gasoline," he said.

ENCOTECH is presently studying 10 sites on the island of Oahu and hopes to break ground on the first of 10 waste-digesting plants by June.

"We should be in operation by August, and by the end of the year we should be producing about 80,000 gallons of methane gas a week," van Geldern said.

If all goes according to plan, Encotech should be up to 800,000 gallons a week by the end of next year.

Apparently, the company's economic prospect is as attractive as its ecological promise. A group of Hawaiian businessmen has invested $3.5 million in the privately held corporation. The methane producing plants should cost around $400,000 each. And company spokesmen feel certain they will begin paying for themselves immediately.

"What it will mean in terms of the individual is less costly and more abundant fuel from a source that cannot be depleted — and a cleaner environment in which to live," said van Geldern.

3 area students in 'Who's Who'

Three students from the Northwest suburbs will be listed in the eighth annual addition of Who's Who Among American High School students.

Students from more than 20,000 public, private and parochial high schools throughout the country are listed for their leadership in academics, athletics, and community service.

Students from this area are Elk Grove High School senior Pat Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Thomas, 290 Brookhaven Dr., Elk Grove Village, Rolling Meadows High School junior Mary Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jenkins, 607 S. Walnut St., Arlington Heights; and Arlington High School senior Jim Karkula, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Karkula, Arlington Heights.

They will compete for one of 10 scholarships of $500 to $1,000 funded by the publishers.

Obituaries

Dr. Leo V. Harnden Jr. James T. O'Donnell

A Memorial service for Dr. Leo V. Harnden Jr., 52, of Lake Forest, will be held at 11:30 a.m. today in the Church of the Holy Spirit, 400 E. Westminister Ave., Lake Forest. The Rev. Fred Phinney will officiate.

A dentist for Dental Services, which has offices in Arlington Heights, Libertyville, Evanston and Lake Forest, Dr. Harnden died Sunday in Lake Forest Hospital, Lake Forest. He was a member of the Chicago Dental Society for 25 years, and was active in the Glenview Boy Scouts of America. He was born in Toledo, Ohio, July 15, 1921.

Surviving are his widow, Barbara, nee Murray; three sons, Paul F. of Allentown, Pa., Robert M. of Madison, Wis., and Stephen M. of Lake Forest; a daughter, Barbara Lee Harnden of Lake Forest; mother, Mrs. Esther R. Harnden of Evanston, and a sister, Mrs. Carolyn Farr of Birmingham, Ala. He was preceded in death by his father, Leo V. Harnden Sr.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Chicago Heart Society or the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society.

Arrangements were made by Wenban Funeral Home, Lake Forest. There will be no visitation.

James T. O'Donnell, 49, a resident of Mount Prospect for the last 13 years, died Sunday in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, after a short illness.

Born in Illinois, April 25, 1924, he was employed as director of purchasing for Emkay Corp., and was also a veteran of World War II.

Visitation is today at time of prayer service at 9:30 a.m. in Friedrichs Funeral Home, 320 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect.

Then the body will be taken to St. Raymond Catholic Church, 360 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect, where a funeral Mass will be said at 10 a.m. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Mr. O'Donnell is survived by his widow, Mary Lou, nee Eigense; six sons, James J. and daughter-in-law, Peggy O'Donnell of Crystal Lake, Kevin, Brian, Colin and Kyle, all of Mount Prospect and Barry of Palatine; one daughter, Bridget O'Donnell of Mount Prospect; one granddaughter, Shannon O'Donnell, and a brother, Maurice.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, Masses or memorial donations to the Leukemia Foundation would be appreciated.

Milton R. Iglehart

Milton R. Iglehart, 66, a retired accountant for Kinney Construction Co. and a resident of Des Plaines for 26 years, was pronounced dead on arrival Monday at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. She was born in Rock Island, Ill., June 23, 1907.

Surviving are his widow, Della L., nee Hadden; a daughter, Mrs. Sharon (Louis) Romanos of Arlington Heights, and three grandchildren, Nadia, Anthony and Benjamin Romanos.

Visitation is Thursday from 3 to 9:30 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines, where funeral service will be held at 11 a.m. Friday.

The Rev. Garry A. Scheuer Jr. of First Congregational United Church of Christ, Des Plaines, will officiate. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Frances Wasik

Mrs. Frances Wasik, 83, nee Szablowski, of Rolling Meadows, died suddenly Monday in her home. Born in Poland, May 25, 1890, she was a member of the Polish National Women's Alliance.

Visitation is today from 4 to 10 p.m. in Haire Funeral Home, Northwest Highway and Vail Avenue, Arlington Heights.

Surviving are a son, Walter Wasik of Rolling Meadows; a daughter, Mrs. Jane Loehndorf of Chicago; six grandchildren; a son-in-law, James Washburne of South Chicago Heights; one brother, John Szablowski, and two sisters, Mrs. Josefa Skwarczewski and Mrs. Rozalia Sнопек, all of Poland. She was preceded in death by her husband, Joseph, and a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Washburne.

Prayers will be said at 9:30 a.m. Thursday in the chapel of the funeral home. Then the body will be taken to St. Colette Catholic Church, 3900 Meadow Dr., Rolling Meadows, where a funeral Mass will be said at 10 a.m. Burial will be in Homewood Memorial Gardens Cemetery, Homewood.

Family requests, omit flowers. Masses preferred.

Susan Speciale

Susan Speciale, 11, of Wheeling, was pronounced dead on arrival Sunday at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. Born Dec. 15, 1962, in Park Ridge, she was a student at Samuel A. Kirk Developmental Training Center in Palatine.

Visitation is today from 3 to 9:30 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines, where funeral service will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday. Officiating will be Mr. Carl E. Davis. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Surviving are her parents, Joseph and Ruth E., nee Makos, Speciale; and two brothers, Timothy and James.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Samuel A. Kirk Developmental Training Center, 520 S. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine, 60067, or the Northbrook Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, 400 Pfingsten Rd., Northbrook, 60062.

Pahl wins second plan group term

Former Elk Grove Village Pres. Jack Pahl has been elected to a second term as vice president of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission. The new president is Ira Bach of Chicago. The NIPC board Thursday also approved a $2.28 million budget for fiscal year 1975, giving specific attention to expanding the Area Officer Program, that puts NIPC staff members in the suburbs for convenience of municipalities.

Four renamed to agencies

Four Northwest suburban residents have been reappointed to governing boards of local agencies by County Board Pres. George Dunne. William Bahmaier, 400 River Rd., Mount Prospect, was named to a three-year term on the Forest River Sanitary District. Mark Dick, 408 Basswood, Hoffman Estates, was reappointed to a three-year term on the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District board. Harold Bergman, 2150 W. Algonquin Rd., Palatine, was given another three-year term on the Palatine Rural Fire Protection District board. Willard Beamesderfer, 10659 N. Meadow Ln., Des Plaines, was named to a three-year term on the Oak Meadows Sanitary District board.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Bidding small slam isn't easy

Some 40 years ago the late Ely Culbertson said, "When a hand belongs in six and I am shown all the cards, the Culbertson system will get there."

What Ely meant was that when you see all the cards your bidding problems will disappear, if you want them to.

The bidding in the box shows how an expert pair stopped at five clubs, when six was a laydown.

They weren't too upset about it. The hand was played in an IMP team match and the other North-South pair landed at the really horrible contract of three no-trump. Still they have asked us to analyze the bidding and show how to reach six clubs scientifically.

We have two suggested methods. The first comes from Oswald who says that 40 years ago he and Dave Bruce would have reached six because North would have gone to six clubs after South jumped to five. We didn't have too much science then, but whichever one of us sat North would have decided the singleton diamond was what the doctor ordered.

Jim Jacoby suggests that South should bid three hearts over three clubs. North would go to four hearts. South would then bid five clubs and North would be sure that his partner was afraid of two diamond losers and would be able to bid the slam.

Rosa Bell Baker

Mrs. Rosa Bell Baker, 90, of Des Plaines, died Sunday in Pleasantview Convalescent Home and Nursing Center, Niles. She was born Aug. 22, 1883, in Logansport, Ind.

Funeral service will be held today at 1 p.m. in Terrillier Funeral Home, Kaleyva, Mich. The Rev. Kenneth Snow will officiate. Burial will be in Corfue Cemetery, Brethren, Mich.

Preceded in death by her husband, William, and two daughters, Pearl Rose and Hazel Potter, survivors include three daughters, Mrs. Lenora Staulcup of Normal, Ill., Mrs. Violet (Russell) Poynter of Des Plaines and Mrs. Opal (Francis) Johnston of New Port Richey, Fla.; nine grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were made by Des Plaines Funeral Home, 1717 Rand Rd., Des Plaines.

John A. Grunst

John A. Grunst, 69, a resident of Wheeling for the last 26 years, died suddenly Monday night in his home. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. He was born in Chicago, June 7, 1904.

Visitation is Thursday from 3 to 10 p.m. in Kolssak of Wheeling Funeral Home, 189 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling. There will be a Masonic service Thursday night at 8 p.m. in the funeral home, under the auspices of the Vitruvius Masonic Lodge, No. 181, A.F. & A.M. of which he was a member.

Mr. Grunst was a retired foreman for A. B. Dick Co., and for the last five years he had served as a crossing guard in Wheeling at Heritage Park on Wolf Road. He had also served on village board from 1957 to 1959.

The body will be in state Friday in Our Saviour Evangelical Free Church, 300 S. Schoenbeck Rd. in Wheeling, from 1 p.m. until time of funeral service at 2 p.m. The Rev. Ted Liedman will officiate. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are his widow, Marcella, nee Rutledge; six sons, Steven Grunst, at home, Howard Kimball of Elgin, Raymond and daughter-in-law, Joyce Reidl of Scottsdale, Ariz., Sam and daughter-in-law, Beverly Reidl of Marengo, Ill., Jerry and daughter-in-law, Mary Reidl of Monroe, La., and Victor and daughter-in-law, Mary Lou Reidl of Elburn, Ill.; three daughters, Mrs. Eleanor (Kenneth) Smothers of Phoenix, Ariz., Mrs. Marcella (Earnie) Lanard and Mrs. Violet (Harold) Smith, both of Elgin; 26 grandchildren; father, Charles Grunst of Wheeling, and an aunt Mrs. Amanda Harcourt of Tinley Park, Ill. He was preceded in death by his mother, Ida Grunst.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to Our Saviour Evangelical Free Church, Wheeling.

Insurance firms split on no-fault

by LEA TONKIN

Illinois insurance companies offering auto coverage are split down the middle on the issue of federal versus state no-fault auto insurance legislation.

As debate of the no-fault proposal gets under way this week in Washington, the industry split is reflected in divided Senate opinion.

The Hart-Magnuson bill (S. 354) is among the no-fault auto insurance reform proposals billed as a means of speeding up the payment of claims and offering potential for premium reductions to motorists.

The concept is an alternative to the tort system — in Illinois and the majority of states — under which tort, or fault, must be proven to collect on auto insurance injury claims.

DEBATE ON S. 354, will "probably turn out to be an old fashioned Pier 16 brawl," predicted Thomas Reynolds, chairman of the Illinois Insurance Information Service. "I would hesitate to say whether or not the bill will pass or fail to pass," he said.

Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, floor manager of the no-fault bill now before the Senate, said President Nixon's decision to oppose the measure "adds fuel to the fire of those who argue that the President has lost the ability to govern wisely."

He charged that Nixon has "turned his back on the consumers of the United States and personally decided to continue to support certain segments of the insurance industry and those lawyers... who earn a comfortable living at the expense of automobile accident victims."

Moss made his remarks in the opening round of debate on Monday.

But Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Nebr., leader of opposition to the bill, called the proposal "unconstitutional." Hruska said no-fault would lead to increased insurance premiums and "force" the states to adopt a plan "that does not meet the needs of its citizens."

The outcome of the Senate vote on S. 354 and the eventual House debate and vote on its own versions of no-fault insurance will be substantial. If a federal bill fails to pass, the auto insurance reform initiative again will be left to the states such as Illinois, which have not yet adopted a no-fault measure.

PRES. NIXON has consistently favored the state approach to auto insurance reform. If the federal measure is adopted, it will mean substantial revision of existing no-fault regulations in the 21 states that previously adopted various forms of the concept.

States that fail to draw up and enact no-fault proposals in line with S. 354 standards would be slapped with inequitable federal standards, contended Harry Lamsman, executive vice president of the Long Grove-based Kemper Insurance Group.

Critical of the broad review powers that would be granted the secretary of the Department of Transportation, Lamsman said more equitable provisions can be provided at the state level.

"We prefer state control over what is essentially a state matter," said a spokesman for the Northbrook-based Allstate Insurance firm. "Our big quarrel with S. 354 is a matter of degree," he continued. "We think the proposal goes too far. It would take away the right to sue for pain and suffering for almost everyone," he said.

UNLIMITED MEDICAL payments for auto accident victims in S. 354 is "in effect promising somebody something for nothing," said Charles Lorenz, vice president of Des Plaines-based National Assn of Independent Insurers. "Smaller companies would have to go out of business. This could lead to the concentration of power in the hands of a few companies."

Consideration of no-fault proposals in Illinois will probably wait until the next legislative session. The current session is primarily considering fiscal matters.

Opposition to the no-fault concept is generated by trial lawyer groups. Lining up in favor of federal no-fault plans are State Farm Insurance of Bloomington, Ill., and the American Insurance Assn.

A State Farm spokesman said actuarial studies indicate that bodily injury insurance premiums could be cut substantially in every state with the enactment of the federal measure. "In Illinois, for example, it would cut the cost of bodily injury insurance by 16 per cent," said a State Farm spokesman. The law would not affect collision insurance.

ACCORDING TO Gary Frink, executive director of the National Committee for Effective No-Fault, the actuarial study by Milliman & Robertson "puts to rest once and for all the argument that no-fault will not reduce overall auto insurance costs." The key to cost savings is the payment to all accident victims without regard to fault, and the elimination of lawsuits in cases of minor injury," he said.

The federal bill's (S.354) minimum standards include: unlimited medical, hospital and rehabilitation coverage; $15,000 per person in wage-loss protection; a year's household replacement services coverage at $15 a day; and $5,000 in survivor's benefits. Pain and suffering suits would be restricted to cases involving death, serious injury or more than six months disability. Savings in premiums would vary according to the type of vehicle insured, rating classification and territory.

Atlanta steel firm smells big profits in real estate

by CHARLES S. TAYLOR

ATLANTA — Atlantic Steel Co., third largest producer of steel in the Southeast, is making plans to expand — not into the field it knows best, but into real estate.

The company, which employs 1,600 workers in its steel division, is moving from its present facilities near downtown Atlanta to a rural location at Cartersville, Ga., about 40 miles to the northwest. When it moves, it will vacate 200 acres of some of the most valuable real estate in the nation.

Charles W. Bastedo, senior vice president and general manager of Atlantic Steel, said the company is going to hang onto those 200 acres and develop them into a complex of offices, businesses and high rise apartments, complemented with green areas and small lakes.

IN ADDITION to being near the booming downtown Atlanta area, the acreage occupied by the 72-year-old firm lies near the intersection of two major interstate highways. Bastedo quoted real estate developers as estimating its value at about $150,000 an acre. That would make the tract worth $30 million.

"This is extremely valuable property," said Bastedo. "We considered abandoning the steel business and going into real estate altogether. But we thought about the employees and how many jobs would be lost."

Atlantic Steel is studying proposals from real estate firms throughout the United States for development of the acreage. But if there's a shortage of steel, as some experts expect, and it becomes more profitable to produce it, Bastedo said the real estate project could be delayed.

Atlantic Steel then would continue to operate its two electric furnaces at the Atlanta facility, along with the three planned for the Cartersville plant.

DeSoto reports hike in quarterly sales

DeSoto Inc. of Des Plaines, reported sales for the first quarter of 1974 were $67,447,000, an increase of 8.1 per cent over the comparable quarter of last year. Increases were recorded in four of the five product categories ranging from 6.9 per cent in furniture to 23.6 per cent in wallcoverings. The chemical products category reported a decrease of 7.7 per cent primarily attributable to a continuing shortage of a few raw materials.

G. A. Nichols, president and chief executive officer said net earnings for the first quarter of 1974 were $721,000, a decrease of 50.8 per cent from last year's $1,466,000. Earnings per share for the first quarter of this year were 13 cents compared to 27 cents last year.

Combined Insurance pays 11-cent dividend

Combined Insurance Co. of America, Chicago, declared a regular second quarter cash dividend of 11 cents a share, payable May 17, to shareholders of record April 26.

Bastedo said the move to Cartersville will be accomplished over a 10-year period in four phases, with the final phase to be completed in 1984.

It will cost the firm at least $60 million. Some $30 million will be used to finance the first phase, which consists of constructing a new electric furnace, a continuous caster mill and a rolling mill. Two more furnaces and a second continuous casting mill will be added in the second phase.

DURING THE third and fourth phases, the company's rod, bar and wire mills will be moved piece-by-piece — by railroad and trucks — to the new location.

The company plans to spend $2.5 million for anti-pollution equipment at the new facility, Bastedo said. Pollution problems, along with lack of room for expansion, were two reasons Atlantic Steel decided to move from Atlanta, Bastedo explained.

With the newer facilities and improved technology, Atlantic Steel anticipates a 50 per cent increase in production capability at its 250-acre Cartersville plant. The firm produced 340,000 tons of finished steel products in 1973, a 25 per cent increase over a 10-year period.

For the firm's 1,600 employees, the move means that some will have to sell or rent their present homes to go with the company to Cartersville. For others, it will involve longer commuting. None of the steel workers interviewed complained.

Heart disease may cause your legs, feet to swell

First off, I am 67 and I can't write very well. In my whole life I only went to school 33 days. That's what my report card said. I learned from my kids the little I know.

I go to a doctor, but he only answers bluntness about what's wrong with you. If your feet or whole legs swell so much it is from your heart. If both arms hurt, it is also heart.

But, I saw the card on his desk. When the nurse went out it was left near me. It said arteriosclerotic cardiovascular disease and diverticulitis, coronary artery disease. There was more, but the nurse was coming back. How much time do I have left? Some things I must do.

It looks like you have made the most of your 33 days in school. You can read and write and that is quite a bit under those circumstances.

You can have swelling of the feet and legs from heart disease. When the heart fails to pump effectively, fluid accumulates in the legs. And, you can have pain in the arms from heart disease. Judging from your letter, the diagnoses you were able to read, and your age group, you probably do have fatty deposits in the arteries to your heart. This is quite common in our society in persons of your age group. The other diagnosis, diverticulitis, refers to inflamed small pockets off the colon. The inflammation may quiet down and just leave quite pockets.

I can't tell you what to expect for the future. The truth is that atherosclerosis or fatty deposits in the arteries is an unpredictable disease. I have seen people with this problem live for years with proper treatment, when they followed their doctor's advice. I have also seen apparently healthy persons have a heart attack from the same disease a week after getting a clean bill of health from their doctor. Not because the doctor erred, but because our tests are not that good for identifying this disease when it is silent, with no pain or swelling, or breathing problems.

So, hope for the best. Take your medicine and follow exactly what you are told and hopefully you will do well.

Should an 11-year-old boy be ashamed of having an ulcer? What can I tell people to explain why I get pains? What can I do to get rid of it?

No, there is no reason for anyone to be ashamed of having an ulcer. Did you know that even small babies sometimes have an ulcer?

Just tell people the truth, if you feel you have to explain what your problem is. Of course, there are a lot of things that cause stomach pains besides ulcers, and you need an examination to find out if you really have one. In any case, whatever causes your stomach pain it is not something to be ashamed about. It is important, though, to have a medical examination. If you do have an ulcer then your doctor will want you to be on a treatment program to control the excess acid that aggravates the ulcer.

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

6 psychiatrists on panel in hospital forum Saturday

The final program in a year-long series "Models of Madness: The Spectrum of Contemporary Psychiatry," sponsored by the Forest Hospital Foundation in cooperation with the Northwest Mental Health Center will be held Saturday.

The program will be held from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Forest Hospital Professional Building auditorium, 555 Wilson Ln., Des Plaines.

Six prominent psychiatrists will review the spectrum of contemporary psychiatry. Joining in the discussion will be Dr. Thomas Szasz, well-known author and professor of psychiatry at the State University of New York in Syracuse; Dr. George Winokur, director of the State Psychopathic Hospital in Iowa City, and D. Loren Mosher, chief of the Center for Studies of Schizophrenia, Clinical Research Branch of the National Institute of Mental Health.

Others in the discussion group will be Dr. Carl Kirsch, trainer at the Institute of Bioenergetics in New York City; Dr. Seymour S. Kety, professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School, and Dr. Jules Masserman, professor of psychiatry and neurology at Northwestern University and president of the International Assn. of Social Psychiatry.

The panel will be moderated by Dr. Perry Talkington, outgoing president of the American Psychiatric Assn. A special guest panelist will be Dr. Melvin Sabshin, chairman, Department of Psychiatry, University of Illinois, the Abraham Lincoln School of Medicine.

Adolescents topic at COULD April meet

Chester Foremba of the department of psychology of Children's Hospital in Denver, Colo., will discuss "Adolescents with L.D. (learning disabilities) — Let's Help Them" at the April meeting of the Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities (COULD).

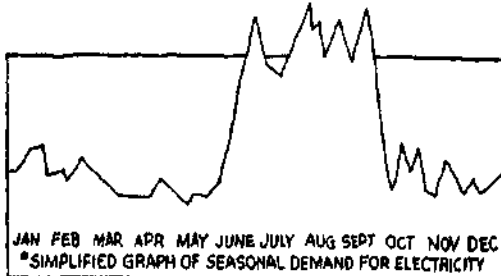

The COULD meeting will be at 8 p.m. Friday at Hersey High School. COULD is a nonprofit organization of persons interested in the problems of children with learning disabilities.

EER and air conditioners

It can mean the difference between wasting energy and cutting your cooling costs by 25%.

You may not realize this, but some air conditioners use a lot more electricity than others to cool the same amount of space. And in the summer, when the heat gets unbearable and millions of people turn on their air conditioners to find relief, this can amount to a significant waste of electricity.

On a normal summer day, as the graph above shows, Commonwealth Edison may have to deliver three to four million kilowatts more than on an average winter day. To meet this summer demand, extra amounts of fuel must be burned. By making sure you buy the kind of air conditioner that gives the same cooling with less electricity, you can save money and save us all critically needed fuel. The thing to check is known as the EER, an engineer's term which stands for Energy Efficiency Ratio. And there's information on every air conditioner that lets you figure it out.

You don't have to be an engineer to find the EER. All the information you need to buy an efficient air conditioner can be found on the metal plate attached to the unit.

MODEL NUMBER ACR20B74P
VOLTS	CYCLE	PHASE
115	60	1
COOLING BTU/HR	AMPS	WATTS

BTUs WATTS
To get the EER, simply divide the BTUs by the watts. If you're comparing two 6,000-BTU models for efficiency, it would look like this:

5 EER
1200/6000 BTUs
7 EER
WATTS

Our recommended energy efficiency ratio for an air conditioner is 7 or more, so the one with an EER of 7 is the one you should buy. Low efficiency units have EERs of around 5 or 6. You save money, too.

You've already found that the second example is the more efficient air conditioner. It will probably cost a little more to buy, but because it's more efficient, it would cost less to operate. In the long run, an efficient air conditioner helps keep electricity rates as low as possible. And right now, an efficient air conditioner helps conserve our country's natural resources.

Mid-Suburban League baseball highlights

Fremd, Forest View triumph to push records to 4-1

As remarkable as it must seem in the crazy, mixed-up weather of the Midwest, the Mid-Suburban League is up-to-date in its 1974 baseball schedule.

The league completed its fifth afternoon of diamond activity Tuesday, and although it admittedly wasn't a good day for baseball, six games did find their way into the record book.

When the firing subsided on this frigid April day, Fremd and Forest View had emerged with identical 4-1 records, the best marks in the MSL.

The teams will go at it again today with Schaumburg at Conant, Rolling Meadows at Palatine, Buffalo Grove at Prospect, Fremd at Hersey, Elk Grove at Forest View, and Arlington at Wheeling.

FALCONS TIP SAXONS

Forest View's Ken Butzen circled the bases with the winning run when his ground ball went through the Schaumburg first baseman and eluded the right fielder.

The four-base double-error came with two out in the top of the seventh inning at Schaumburg and gave the Falcons and pitcher Larry Monroe a 2-1, come-from-behind victory Tuesday.

With the game deadlocked and darkness setting in, Butzen slashed a two-hopper which went right through the first baseman's legs for an error. The ball continued on through the outfielder for another error. Butzen came around and scored despite a close play at the plate.

Monroe and the Saxons' Mark Goergen hooked up in the chilly weather for a classic pitching struggle. The Saxons took a third-inning lead with an unearned run. Dave Groh was safe at second base on a throwing error by Falcon shortstop Thom Culkar and moved to third on a groundout. He scored a moment later on a Monroe wild pitch.

Forest View came back to tie the game in the fifth on a pair of walks and a double into the left field corner by Culkar. The hit, coming with one out in the fifth, was the first of only two off Goergen, who also fanned 10 Falcons.

But Monroe matched the Schaumburg hurler with 10 strikeouts and he too allowed only two hits. The Forest View pitcher won his third game of the young season with a strong finish, whiffing four of the final six Saxons he faced.

The Falcons are now 3-1 in the MSL and the Saxons are 2-3.

VIKINGS WIN FOURTH, 4-

Fremd celebrated the departure of Palatine's ace righthander Buddy Hughes with an error-aided four-run outburst in the fifth inning en route to a 4-0 victory in mid-30 degree temperatures.

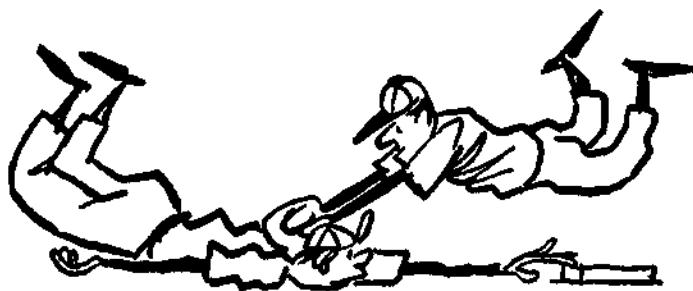

Hughes engaged with Viking fireballer Jeff Hanisch in a scoreless pitcher's duel for four innings, but arm trouble forced the Pirate thrower to the sidelines.

Palatine reliever Jim Sprinkle passed both Bill Krohn and Jeff Brisson to open the Fremd fifth and then threw wide to first on Hanisch's perfect sacrifice bunt, permitting both runners to score.

Viking Bob Burke drew the third pass of the frame and Steve Dwyer responded with a single to right. Jeff Schroeder sacrificed both runners up a base, but a wild heave on a pickoff attempt at third developed into Fremd's third run of the inning. A wild pitch eventually tallied Burke with the final marker.

Hanisch was untouchable through the opening three innings and quelled both Palatine rallies in the fourth and seventh with strikeouts. Limiting the Pirates to three hits, Hanisch walked only three while fanning a pair.

Hughes was touched for just two singles during his four-inning stint, but had to retire after throwing his warmup pitches in the fifth. Fremd boosted its record to 4-1 while Palatine dipped to 3-2.

'CATS CRUSH HUSKIES

Wheeling sent nine men to the plate in the fifth inning to break open a tight ballgame and win going away at Hersey, 8-3.

The Wildcats trailed 3-1 heading into their five-run inning. Then Howie Brauer's single, which was misplayed for a two-base error, started the rally off. During this inning, Wheeling smacked five hits and benefitted from two Hersey errors as well as one mental one.

After Carl Pfister singled in Brauer and Ken Margalski doubled, Hersey decided to walk one of the league's best hitters — 6-foot-4 George Kaage. However, a balk tied the game.

Kaage ended up walking. Then Paul Groot unloaded a line drive double to drive in two more. Ken Slepicka ended the scoring derby with another single.

Willie Kozel, Wheeling's fine left-handed hurler, was plenty tough after that scoring outburst. He retired the side in the fifth and sixth in order and went on to record his second league win against one loss.

Wheeling, 3-2 in the MSL, appeared ready to knock starter and loser Tom Good off the mound in the first inning as Pfister and Margalski singled sharply and Kaage unloaded a booming double. However, Good only allowed one run in that inning and held Wheeling at bay until the fatal fifth. The 'Cats also scored twice in the seventh on a Groot single and a pair of errors.

Hersey, holder of a 1-4 MSL mark, took a 3-1 lead in the fourth. John Caruso broke up Kozel's no-hit bid with an opposite field triple. A double by Good, a single by Dave Carey drove in the runs.

Kozel struck out nine, walked three and gave up four hits, all in the fourth inning. Pfister was 3-for-4 with Groot and Margalski 2-for-4.

TOWNSEND Baffles MUSTANGS

Dar Townsend shook off a rough start and went on to blank Rolling Meadows through the last six frames in leading Arlington to a 9-2 victory over the Mustangs at Pioneer Park.

A couple of errors and Bruce Hanson's single brought two runs across in the first inning, but Townsend yielded just four more hits the rest of the way for his third conference decision of the season without a loss.

He whiffed a total of 11 Meadows batters. Arlington quickly built up a three-run lead in their half of the first when John Vukovich and Jerry DeSimone opened with singles. Brett Frase reached on an error and another error coupled with George Vukovich's one-base blast brought all three runners across.

Arlington's tissue-paper lead stood up until the fifth inning when Rolling Meadows starter Carl Pedersen pitched himself into hot water.

One out walks to George Vukovich and Townsend, an infield hit by Don Kamps and two more singles by Matt Split and Art Busby along with four stolen bases boosted the Cards' advantage to 6-2.

Arlington batted around in the seventh and added three more insurance runs, John Vukovich's bloop single driving in one and bases loaded walks to DeSimone and Trent Taylor accounting for the other pair.

CONANT WINS FIRST

Conant won its first game of the Mid-Suburban League season by whipping Prospect, 8-4, behind an eight-hit attack and the four-hit pitching of Tim Domek.

Paul Gebhardt of the Cougars drove in three runs with a pair of bases-loaded singles and John Milke sent home a pair with another hit with the bags jammed.

After Prospect jumped out to a quick 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning, the Cougars went to work against Knight starting hurler Mark Keane. Tim Dern singled and after three walks forced in one run. Gebhardt lashed a single good for two more.

The Knights scored again in the fifth to cut the margin to 3-2, but in the bottom of the inning Conant padded the lead. Jeff Ironside doubled, Gary Oslance was safe on an error, and after a walk, Gebhardt again came through with an RBI single. Jim Stump singled for another run and Milke collected a pair of RBIs with his hit.

Prospect took advantage of Domek's wildness in the seventh to tally a couple of runs. After a pair of base hits by Mike Quade and Laddie Janda, Domek passed three straight Knights before he settled down for the final out.

Domek fanned six as he led the Cougars to their first win in five tries. Prospect's record is now lodged at 3-2.

GRENADIERS TRIUMPH

Steve Kliff came in with the bases loaded and no outs in the top of the fourth and put down the heart of Buffalo Grove's batting order to boost Elk Grove to a 6-4 win over the visiting Bison Tuesday.

The score was knotted 3-3 at the time and the Grenadiers came back to tally one in their half of the inning and two more in the sixth.

Kliff came in with the fourth run after reaching on a fielder's choice, scoring on a Scott Scholten single and a subsequent miscue.

The final two on Elk Grove scores were the result of an error, Scholten and John Pahl coming across after reaching on a hit and walk, respectively.

The Bison had gone on top, 3-0, originally, in the first frame, Ken Corchin delivering a key single and an error bringing in two more runs.

Elk Grove's first three runs came in the third and again it was Scholten helping the cause with a single. That brought in one, a bases loaded walk to Glen Stromberg forced in another and a passed ball accounted for the third.

The final Buffalo Grove run came in the seventh when Dave Smithern doubled and was singled home by Mike Kelley. Kliff snuffed out the rally after that to wrack up the decision.

Elder 'happy it's over with'

NEW YORK — Lee Elder can now play in the Masters.

Big deal! Somehow I come away with the feeling this whole thing was never a matter of life or death with him. For some reason, I keep thinking it didn't really matter that much to him whether or not he ever became the first black golfer to be invited to the Masters.

What do I base my opinion on?

On Lee Elder himself. I remember speaking with him about the Masters and he told me it wasn't that important to him whether he ever played there or not. The way he said it struck me as if he meant it.

My reaction is that Lee Elder was much more excited about his sudden-death playoff with Jack Nicklaus in the American Golf Classic six years ago, even though he lost it, than he will be over the Masters' invitation when it comes.

What's he going to do, run around, show it to his friends and say, look, this is my invitation to the Masters?

Every touring golfer lives for the day he wins his first big tournament.

Lee Elder, on the tour six years now, finally did that in Pensacola, Fla., Sunday. He won the Monsanto Open by beating Britain's young, improving Peter Oosterhuis on the fourth playoff hole and along with the $30,045 first prize and satisfaction the victory brought Elder, there also was an obvious measure of relief.

"I'm happy it's over with," he said.

Those are the same words Hank Aaron used two weeks ago although there certainly is no intention here of comparing their individual accomplishments because they are not even in the same class.

True, Elder was under some pressure because members of the media frequently asked him how he felt about playing in the Masters. He was asked so often, like Aaron, he grew tired of hearing the same question. Lately, Elder wasn't asked so much. Jim Dent, a younger black player on the tour, was asked more frequently and he was growing as weary over the question as Elder.

Actually, Lee Elder wasn't sure how he felt about the Masters after Sunday's win in the Monsanto.

He answered both ways, as he has before.

At one point he said he'd have to wait and see what he'd do when he received the Masters' invitation, then, reversed his field.

"I'll definitely accept the invitation to the Masters," he said. "No doubt about it. It's a place I've wanted to play for a long time. Now that it's come about, I'm happy about it. I'm looking forward to going there next year."

If nothing else, Lee Elder's win at Pensacola made a whole lot of people feel better.

For one, it made Cliff Roberts, the autocratic head man of the Masters feel better because he has been saying for years that a black man would be eligible to play if he qualifies and now he can prove it.

For two, it made CBS feel better. The network couldn't help but have some corporate qualms about televising a major event in which the historical absence of any blacks annually pops up as an embarrassing topic of conversation.

For three, Elder's accomplishment makes all the black leaders in the community feel much better. Another major breakthrough.

The fact is Lee Elder's participation in the Masters isn't really going to change things that much there.

The fact is Lee Elder is not the Jackie Robinson of golf either.

Charlie Sifford was the pioneer if anyone was although Ted Rhodes took some of the knocks and abuses before him. Poor Charlie. He'd smoke that cigar of his, they'd keep asking him how he felt about being invited to the Masters some day before he threw his sticks into the closet, and after a time he became so disgusted, he said he didn't care anymore one way or another.

Somewhere along the line, I feel Lee Elder reached that same point — no matter what he says now.

(United Press International)

Schwarz sparkles; Maine East, North fall

Maine West wins in league action

Jeff Schwarz cracked two doubles that sent home five runs Monday as Maine West took an 8-4 Central Suburban varsity baseball win from Glenbrook North. But the news wasn't nearly as joyous for Maine East which blew a six run lead and lost, 9-6, at Deerfield.

In the area's other CSL game, Maine North was a 12-3 loser against Niles East. Further details were not available.

Maine West's Warriors had little trouble disposing of Glenbrook despite five errors that gave the Spartans one unearned run apiece in the third, fourth and seventh innings.

Schwarz doubled in the third and fourth innings for Maine as the Warriors provided senior pitcher Jay Liggett with his third win against two losses.

The first of his two extra base hits scored Liggett and Ed Dolan in the third inning, giving Maine a 4-1 lead. Schwarz cleaned the bases an inning later, knocking in Liggett, Dolan and John O'Connor as West moved to an uncatchable 8-2 lead.

Maine scored first with one run on one hit in the second. After two outs, Tom Thvedt walked and moved to third on Steve Zuccarini's single. Thvedt scored when the GBN catcher threw wild on an attempted double steal.

The Spartans made it a 1-1 game in the third with their first of two unearned runs off Liggett. But with Liggett singling home Mike Kelley and scoring later as part of Schwarz's two-run double, West had its 4-1 lead.

The Spartans scored their second unearned run off Liggett in the fourth. It was Liggett's final inning. He gave just one hit.

In the home fourth, a fielders choice by Liggett scored Kelley, giving West a 5-2 lead that ballooned when Schwarz cracked his three run double to deep left-center field.

Ron Schroeder was Liggett's mound replacement and recorded five strikeouts in three innings. But West had the fun-bles afield and gave GBN five hits off Schroeder. Four never left the infield. The Spartans' only earned run was produced by three bleeder hits in the fifth inning. Kelley had three hits in four at-bats for the Warriors, now 3-4. Liggett joined Schwarz in the two-hit club.

At Deerfield, Maine East sandwiched a four-run third inning around single tallies in the second and fourth. But all that backfired as the hosts scored six runs on two hits in the fifth. The first of Curt Andersen's two three-run homers highlighted that inning. It was his three-run homer in the seventh that beat Maine.

East's second inning run was fashioned when Mike Donatucci was hit by a pitch, stole second and scored on two infield errors. Their other single run crossed in the fourth when losing pitcher Dave Ellin reached second on an outfield error and scored after Mark Mahoney's single.

Deerfield, which made seven errors, had a bunch in the third inning when one hit and two walks produced four Maine East runs. The hit was a single by Jim D'Antonio. He scored after Ellin, Mahoney and Ron Parker.

Ellin pitched the entire game for East, striking out nine batters and walking six. His season record is 1-1.

Saxons win two in varsity tennis

Schaumburg's Saxons picked up two varsity tennis wins on Monday, beating Maine North, 4-1, and Addison Trail, 3-2, in makeup meets originally rained out last month. In the third result, Addison beat Maine, 3-2.

With only a couple exceptions, the scoring was conducted on 10-game pro sets which save time. Cold weather and high winds prevailed.

Schaumburg won all three singles points from Maine. Mike O'Loughlin beat Chris Jenner, 10-3; Tracy Madon beat Ed Legatowicz, 10-8; and Mike Passaglia beat John Varnes, 10-5. The Saxons also won at second doubles, 10-3, with Tim Nenoff and Dennis Yarak taking Norm Mnashoff and Dave Hunter.

Maine North's points were by Mike Pearlman and Bob Jaffe who recorded a 10-5 first doubles win over Schaumburg's Drew Kron and Gary Wright.

Against Addison, Schaumburg's O'Loughlin beat Joe Whetter, 10-2; Madon beat Norm Sturm, 10-4; and the doubles team of Nenoff and Yarak beat Mike Dubois and Kevin Majerchin, 10-6.

Maine North's points against Addison were scored in singles play, Jenner beat Whetter, 6-7, 6-1 and 6-2. Legatowicz beat Sturm, 6-3 and 6-3.

Wind changes affect bass fishing

Fishing is finally beginning to improve in Wisconsin waters as anxious snow-bound fishermen are getting ready for the May 4 general opening.

The jury is still out on the whopping increase in the cost of Wisconsin non-resident licenses, with resort operators worrying that the high cost of fishing, combined with the high cost of gasoline, will hurt their businesses.

Fishermen, meanwhile, are coughing up the $12.50 so they'll be ready opening day. Fishermen with families who like to fish are reminded of the annual family fishing license available there for $18.00. It covers husband, wife and children up to (not including) 18 years of age. A four-day license is available for $5.50 and a 15-day license for $7.50.

Gasoline continues to be available in almost all areas of the state, including Sundays. There is a special Wisconsin Energy Line that has specific information about gasoline. Call 323-7283 to find out where the 24-hour and Sunday operating stations are located.

Crappie fishing is excellent right now in Wisconsin and in Illinois with almost anyone filling up a creel. Bullheads are extremely active in practically all waters and in all weather.

Some walleyes are being taken in the Fox River and the run ought to be in full swing in another week to 10 days if there is no major shift in daytime temperatures. The Wolf River walleyes, meanwhile, are going very well. There was an 11-pounder there Saturday.

Most of the trout waters are running high and, though fishable, are not producing as they were two weeks ago. The Pigeon and Sheboygan rivers in particular have slowed considerably.

In Illinois, the Chain of Lakes was giving up excellent catches of crappies and bullheads, even though the wind

Sportsman's notebook

by Bob Holiday

whipped most of the lakes all day Sunday. Small jigs, bare and baited, take the crappies. Bullheads are hitting worms. A few nice catfish came out of Lake Marie Saturday and Sunday and largemouth bass were getting more consistent.

One of the biggest reasons bass fishermen are having troubles this early in the year is the wind. As it shifts from north back to south and north again, the largemouth change their ways of living.

At those times when the wind is south, the bass begin to get aggressive in searching for food. That's when they leave the deep water and head for the shoreline and shallow channels.

You can take them for a few hours, or days, then, with nearly any good topwater or shallow lure. But as quickly as it turns south, April and May winds can switch around and come out of the north. And the bass go right back to the deep holes. They probably won't be far from where you found them up shallow, but you won't take them with topwater and single or double spin baits. You have to go deep, probably with a plastic worm or the bill-baits and diggers.

Among the new topwater lures growing in popularity are the "alphabet" baits. It started on the B.A.S.S. tournament circuit when several of the professionals turned up with hand-carved "fat" halsa lures. The first one was called the Big O, because it looks more like a letter "O" than it looks like a fish. But it works wonders from the surface to three or four feet down.

Besides the Big O, which is now available in plastic, there is the Top Secret, the Super R, the Big Jim, and perhaps a half dozen more.

There's nothing tricky about using an alphabet lure. It casts beautifully and the action is "built-in." You just crank. The single spin and double spin overhead baits are also very good in the same water. And, once you learn to work them, the tailspins are good at the shoreline.

MARK MAY 10 ON your calendar. Three of the country's best fishermen are going to be at Morton West High School in Berwyn to tell us how to catch fish.

Martin has won seven tournaments and made $37,700 fishing. He likes shallow and top water lures and is a master at finding and surrounding a school of bass.

Mann has a knack for catching bass in all kinds of waters. He was No. 3 in the last year's standing and second the year before. Mann's scented plastic Jelly Worms, that come in flavors like strawberry, grape and blueberry are well known by downstate bass fishermen, but used less frequently by northerners. Mann will cover worm fishing as well as spinner baits.

Probably nobody knows more about walleyes than Al Lindner. Al and his brother Ron, pioneered back-trolling for walleyes and made a couple of bucks selling a special Lindy Rig exactly for that purpose. (They made a couple more bucks recently when they sold their company to Ray-O-Vac, but they still run it.)

The program will also include two films, "Still Waters," an underwater film that covers the entire life cycle of the largemouth bass, and "Monster Bass of Treasure Lake," a dandy, shot at Cuba's famous lake that we "outsiders" can't get at, but which probably has a world record bass in it.

It's a basic "how to" program and well worth the three bucks it costs. Youngsters under 12 are free. Morton West is at 2400 S. Home Ave., in Berwyn. It's Friday, May 10 at 7:30 p.m.

Before then, with any luck at all, the smelt should be coming on strong at the lakefront. Netters are picking up a few even now, but it's a cold business and the waters are still a little too chilly for a first-class run.

Catch it on an evening when the wind hasn't been blowing for a couple of days and there has been some sun. If the skies have been grey and the air cold all day long, stay home that night.

River Trails plans to ease court crunch

A perfect balance between the supply of courts and player demand for them may never be achieved, but the summer program at River Trails Tennis Center, Mount Prospect, is a dramatic attempt to come as close as possible to that elusive ideal.

"If members have to wait more than 15 minutes for a court or if there aren't enough A, B and C players on hand at all times to provide compatible competition, then our design has failed," assistant manager Ann Workman explained.

Mrs. Workman believes a primary summer objective of her club, and consequently that of the sport generally, is eliminating the legendary hassles over "who's got the court?" and frustrations over "who can I play with who's like me or a little better?" She said the River Trails plan is to limit adult summer memberships for its 10 courts to 175, stratify them so the A, B and C player totals are reasonably equal and conduct a broad range of programs tailored to encourage maximum participation and acquaintance-making.

"We think the court crunch common to virtually all park districts in northwest suburbia can be licked at least on a club basis," she added. "When tennis participation nationally jumps from five percent to an estimated eight percent in just a few years, you've got court supply problems that must be faced by private and public bodies alike."

Mrs. Workman predicts that a monitored, on-spot sign-up system for courts, as opposed to the indoor hourly reservation system, will be a particular boon to harried business men and women who can never be sure what time they can spring away from work.

"More than that, it will just naturally cause more players to introduce themselves to each other," she pointed out. "While three-fourths of our players are from Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Park Ridge, a significant one-fourth, including some real stars, come from places like Chicago, Skokie, Aurora and Evanston. The availability of this competition adds a real quality dimension to the club."

"Instead of playing only two sets with how low 'B' business partner on a June or July evening, Joe Doaks may wind up playing sets with five different men, including an 'A' he has never seen before and who will want rematches on a regular basis."

River Trails' summer schedule includes participation in the strong, newly formed Chicagoland Women's Clay Court League, intra-club and other inter-club leagues, two six-week day camps, for youngsters 9 through 14, free lessons for junior members and children of members, challenge ladders in all divisions, the traditional club tournaments, Sunday teas and, for the third straight year, the Illinois State boys' 16-and-under and 18-and-under tournaments.

The club's unique physical features include a fenced-in, well-equipped play area for children, a center-court patio designed for both shade seekers and sun bathers, parking just a few feet from the courts and the same shower and whirlpool facilities available during the indoor season.

River Trails' summer season will officially open with a tea and one-day kickoff tournament in mid-May. However, the clay type courts will be playable in late April.

Seven marks fall in Harper invite Seven meet records fell and three were tied. More were equalled as Southwestern Michigan Junior College claimed victory in Harper's Invitational track meet Saturday.

Southwestern battled Parkland and Triton for team honors, coming up victorious when they swept the three mile run and captured the closing event, the mile relay. Harper finished tenth.

Pat Tobin of SWM placed first in the three mile, setting a new meet record time of 15:16.2. Teammates John Roscoe and brother Tim Tobin ran right behind. Roscoe grabbed an easy win in the six mile, a new event, in the time of 32:12.5, and Pat Tobin won the mile in 4:27.

Triton athletes broke three meet marks. Craig Teich threw the javelin 170-2. Scott Witt flung the discus 153-5, and Mike Findley triple jumped 46-4½.

Other records were toppled in the shot put and the long jump. Rich Girt of Black Hawk put the shot 53-4, breaking his own mark, and Randy Williams of Parkland long jumped 23-2½. The pole vault, high hurdles, and 440 standards were scoreless.

"It was a pretty good meet," said the man who ran it, Harper head coach Bob Nolan. "The performances were good, especially in the field events. The only field record that wasn't broken was the high jump. The mark is 6-6 and they went 6-2."

Nolan was a little disappointed in his Hawks' effort. Pole vaulter Paul Streater was the only Harper trackman who scored, notching a fourth place with a 13-6 leap.

"I thought we might have placed higher, maybe in the middle of the pack," said Nolan. "But we had some close calls in the preliminaries — we were just edged out — and that's where you have to do it."

"But it was a good meet. It went right down to the last event."

The final team standings were: Southwestern Michigan 68, Parkland 60, Triton 48½, Black Hawk 34, Wright 31, DuPage 29, Joliet 8, Morton 5, Thornton 4½, Harper 2, Oakton, Kishwaukee and Trinity were scoreless.

ONE OF THOSE DAYS. Wheeling left fielder John Carlberg can't hold on to a fly off the bat of a Rolling Meadows Mustang during action last week.

Backing up the play is center fielder Ken Margaliski. Things went right in a big way for the visiting Mustangs, who scored six in the seventh to beat the Wildcats 9-6.

Two 'Chick' Evans golf tournaments set in August

The 19th Annual "Chick" Evans Amateur Golf Classic will be played this year at Indian Lakes in Bloomington Aug. 13-15.

This will be a (0-7) handicap event.

Tom Jacobsen, 1973 winner of the "Chick" Evans Championship, and named 1973 Illinois Amateur Golfer of the Year, will defend in this 72-hole event.

Indian Lakes has the distinction of being selected for the 1974 Local U.S. Open qualifications.

Play in the "Chick" Evans Classic will be over the 6995 yard Iroquois course. This assures a challenging tournament with a good strong field shooting for the honors.

As is customary with Evans, he will be on hand to personally greet contestants, and to thank them for the part they are playing to help needy and worthy young men obtain college educations.

This is the objective of the Association, the net proceeds from all "Chick" Evans tournaments being used for this purpose. Obtain "Championship Entry Form" by writing Chick Evans Amateur Golf Association, P. O. Box 11444, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

A second tournament, the first Annual "Chick" Evans Teenage Tournament, will take place Aug. 5-9, at Mount Prospect C. C. Park.

This tournament will offer three flights of 27, 36 and 54 holes for three age groups: (13-14) (15-16) (17-19).

Six low scores in all flights will receive special awards. Winner and Runner-up in 3rd flight will automatically qualify for play in Championship Classic.

Winner and runner-up in all flights will be guests at the Award Presentation Dinner of "Chick" Evans Amateur Golf Championship.

Harper wins tennis invite Lifted by the eight points of its individual champions, Harper College's tennis team captured the Joliet Invitational by a single point Saturday.

Harper's 13 points edged out Lake Land College from Mattoon which had 12. Joliet was right behind with 11 and Kankakee failed to score.

Jeff Rud, who played first singles, Clarke Sanders, No. 4 player, and John McGowan, No. 6, won two matches to earn singles titles. Rud stopped Lake Land's Mark Umbarger (6-2, 6-1) and Joliet's Ray Dracca (6-1, 6-7, 6-4). Sanders bested Lake Land's Bret Reeter (6-2, 6-4) and Joliet's Jim Rogers (6-4, 6-7, 6-3) and McGowan had a default win along with a victory over Joliet's Dave Henschel (3-6, 6-4, 7-5).

Sanders and Jim Richter posted the other two points at second doubles. They outlasted Rich Stombaugh and Reeter (6-6, 7-5, 6-2) and Dave Pozzi and Norm Ruggum (5-7, 6-0, 6-1).

Pat Hill, playing No. 3, defeated Kankakee's Dennis Shah (6-2, 4-6, 6-4) before losing his second round match.

In the loser's bracket, two singles players and a pair of doubles teams notched one-point victories. Curtis Anderson, No. 2 player for Harper, defeated Kankakee's Jim Gunther (6-3, 6-1); Richter, No. 5, handled Kankakee's Andy Rock (6-1, 6-2); Rud and Anderson, playing No. 1 doubles, stopped Kankakee's Frank Blanchett and Gunther (6-0, 6-0); and the third doubles team of Hill and McGowan had a bye.

Just dogs

by Dave Terrill

Including pet in your vacation plans?

Plan Ahead —

Although gasoline is more available, the price of it should have pet owners planning a motor trip this year to want to make the most of every drop, so it's important to know in advance which hotels and motels will welcome guests with dogs.

Instead of driving aimlessly around town seeking lodging at the last moment, pet owners would do well to plan ahead and have a copy of "Touring With Towser" in the glove compartment. The 64-page directory lists thousands of hotels and motels in the United States and Canada that have the welcome mat out for pets and their owners.

The help make sure that pets will continue to be welcome at these hostilities, the book also lists a few basic "rules of the road" pertaining to pet etiquette and advises owners to adhere to them. Helpful tips on pet care and feeding tips are also contained in the book to help make traveling easier for the pet.

To obtain the book, pet owners need send only 50 cents in coin to Gaines TWT, P.O. Box 1007, Kankakee, Ill., 60901. The 50 cents can be recovered immediately by just using two printed coupons on the last page. Even if you don't use the coupons, the book is well worth the price.

Shih Tzu Club meeting —

The Chicagoland Shih Tzu Club will hold its regular monthly meeting next Tuesday, April 30, at 8 p.m., in the Arlington Heights Memorial Library.

The program for the evening will be a special movie on the grooming of this breed. All interested are invited to attend. For information regarding the club, you may call 312/853-3391.

Quiz time —

Quick question from the Gaines Dog Research Center: Should a dog be fed raw eggs to provide extra protein?

Answer: No. Although raw egg white is a nearly perfect protein, it can lead to a deficiency of biotin, a B-complex vitamin. This is because the protein avidin found in raw egg whites — combines with the biotin to make it inactive. If eggs are fed to a dog, they should be cooked.

Rather than supplementing at all, it's wiser to feed your dog one of the complete dog food products. Each provides a complete and balanced diet, containing all the nutrients dogs are known to need and in the correct ratios.

And don't tell your editor that this is a plug for the commercial dog foods — it is, to the extent that commercial dog food people have spent a lot of money in research to come up with a correct balanced dog food, one that is much better than the "hit or miss" methods used by individual dog owners.

Barks & Bays —

If you plan to take the family dog on that vacation trip, have him checked by your veterinarian a few weeks before you leave. Better to have him in good health than to chase around in a strange town looking for medical help.

MAKING THE 100 yard dash look effortless is in :09.9 to take first place at the Harper Invitational Track Meet Saturday. Carter's team was second behind Southwestern Michigan. Bob Nolan's Harper squad placed 10th.

Des Plaines Ace Hardware wraps up 2nd spot

Hoffman Lanes hosted the final night of the Paddock Classic League with Des Plaines Ace Hardware and Kole Real Estate winning all seven points.

Formco Metal Products had already clinched the overall championship going into the position round, but second place was still on the line with Des Plaines Ace Hardware closing out Sullivan Pontiac and Kole Real Estate with their seven point win.

Nameless Five scored the highest team total of the night as they won five of seven points from Commercial Embroidery.

Commercial won the first game with 916 with Nameless Five rolling 1026, and 1029 to total 2908 and take the final two games and the series point.

Rich Carpenter of Nameless Five rolled 167, 227, and 225 for a 619 total. Rich Wagner had 194, 199, and 222 for 615 and Bud Ewert rolled 177, 234, and 189 for 600 even.

For Commercial Embroidery, who totaled 2859 with 963 and 980 the last two games Jerry Rogers rolled 610 with games of 180, 213, and 217. Ron Garisch added 204, 177, and 224 for a 605 series.

Kole Real Estate and Sullivan Pontiac each had a shot at second place, but Kole got the jump on Sullivan winning 995 to 923, and then taking two close games 940 to 932 and 969 to 946 to win the series total and seven points, 2894 and 2801.

Lobby Lobinsky led the league in individual scoring with his 633 series as he rolled 211, 235, and 187 for Kole Real Estate. Al Parkhurst of Kole had 199, 191, and 210 for 600 even while Al Jordan added a 598 series.

Formco and Des Plaines Ace Hardware finished 1-2 in the league, but Saturday belonged to Ace Hardware as they won seven points to insure no rolloff for second place. Des Plaines Ace had games of 924, 946 and 931 for 2801 as they were led by Wally Lofthouse who rolled a 594 series.

Prospect shares second in quad

"He played real well," said Jim Wright of his No. 3 singles player, Tom Wegner. "Other than that, we could have played better."

Wright sort of summed up the Niles West hosted quadrangular Saturday. Lake Forest won the meet with 10 points, followed by Prospect and Barrington with 8 and Niles with 4.

Wegner won all of his matches. He whipped Barrington's Mike Griese (6-2, 6-3), Lake Forest's Glen Arnold (6-2, 6-4) and Niles' Shipiro (6-2, 6-4).

The next best individual finish was by Dan Hanson, who played second singles. He stopped Barrington's Regan Romel (6-7, 6-4) and Niles' Spinks (6-4, 6-4).

The Knights' second doubles team of Dave Hughson and Mike Armenski also won two matches. They edged Lake Forest's Jeff Secombe and Tom Cascarano (6-4, 4-6, 7-6) and handled Niles' Shipiro and Meister (7-6, 6-3).

Meadow drops pair in tennis

Rolling Meadows, owner of just one tennis victory so far this season, saw its dual meet record slip even farther into a hole after Saturday's double duel at Glenbrook South.

The Mustangs lost 4-1 to their hosts, and 5-0 to Culver (Indiana) Military Academy.

Posting the only match win of the day was Ed Sholly, who stopped Greg Minow of Glenbrook in three sets (6-7, 6-3, 7-6). Of the other four matches, Glenbrook won a pair of two-sets — Greg Hanat and Jack Szewacki lost to Bob Galup and Ray Gardner (4-6, 7-6, 6-4) and Greg Nikiel and Joe Dauven lost to Dave Spaulding and Dan Domnalez (3-6, 6-3, 6-3).

Also falling were Chuck Fischer to Bill Iverson (6-3, 6-4) and Bob Herman to Cal Swiger (6-1, 6-0).

The setbacks to Culver came in straight sets. This was how it went:

Jim Hulbert over Fischer (6-1, 6-1), Bill Lakoff over Herman (6-1, 7-6), Bo Mathews over Sholly (6-1, 6-1), Gene Barton and Steve Gatzke over Hanat and Szewacki (6-1, 6-2) and John Volman and Chap Mitzell over Nikiel and Jim Peterson (6-2, 6-0).

'Cat netmen lose

Barrington proved to be too much for visiting Wheeling. The Broncos defeated the Wildcats 5-0 Friday afternoon in tennis.

Absorbing the losses were these 'Cats — Mike Martinez at first singles (6-3, 6-3), Dave Blosser at second singles (6-0, 6-0), John Brennan at third singles (6-1, 6-1), Hal Morris and Shawn Folkes at first doubles (6-2, 6-1) and Bryan Knupp and Kevin McGovern at second doubles (6-3, 6-1).

Ten 'Cat sophomores lost 4-1.

At Fair Lanes

In the Rolling Meadows Classic rolling 500 or better series, were Esther Lova 611-226, Audrey Goldberger 560-210, Esther Shriver 554-188, Elaine Andrews 503-211, Gladys Freeman 522-202, Vi Stietich 520-232, and Mable Helms 502-202.

Palatine netmen gain experience

Palatine head coach John Carlson took his young team to the Rockford West Quadrangular tennis meet to gain some experience. They did just that Saturday.

Dixon proved to be the strongest of the four teams, chalking up 31 points to edge Rockford West's 30. Rockford Boylan had 16 with Palatine last with 13.

Mike Essenberg, a freshman playing fourth singles, beat one of his senior foes — 8-6 over Boylan. He lost 8-3 and 8-4 decisions to Rockford West and Dixon.

Palatine's brother act — Ed and Dana Morganroth — won against Boylan, 8-4. They dropped 8-4 matches to their other foes.

Essenberg and Phil Groesbeck, also a freshman, played second doubles. Although they lost all three tests, Carlson was pleased that his talented underclassmen were in each of them.

Viator golfers rip St. Patrick

The St. Viator varsity golf team recovered quickly from its heartbreaking "overtime" loss to Notre Dame over the weekend to gun down Suburban Catholic Conference rival St. Patrick, 154-103.

The Lions of head coach Ken Peck mastered their home Rob Roy course for five scores that shattered the magic 40 mark en route to the impressive triumph.

Viator's next test at Rob Roy is against highly-touted Mid-Suburban League champion Prospect and Central Suburban League representative Niles East today at 3 p.m.

Maine East wins in golf

Maine East has won its first varsity golf meet of the season, beating Niles East, 177-161, on Monday in Central Suburban play. But the Demons lost to Maine South by one stroke, 176-177, on the Park Ridge Country Club front nine.

Scorers for Maine South were Paul Aschacher 43, Tim Seelos 44, Chuck Stone 45 and Tom Drodz 45. Maine South counted Stiggleman 41, Becker 44, Ebert 45 and Graf 46. Niles East had Rutenberg 44, Hanson 45, Kramer 45 and Gagerman 47.

Maine South led in sophomore play, covering the back nine in 186 strokes. Niles East scored 188 and Maine East 197.

Law protects consumer on unsolicited sales

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

Have you ever received a book or some other item that you hadn't ordered, didn't want and wondered if you're legally bound to pay for it?

Recently this happened to me and since you and I live in the same area it might have happened to you so I thought I'd share my experience in case you're not certain of your legal obligation.

Last Christmas I bought some cash-and-carry gifts from a catalog house. That was the extent of my contact with the company. A month later I received a book (and a bill) which I had not ordered.

I immediately sent a letter to the company informing the firm that I hadn't ordered the book, was not legally bound to return it, pay for it or even notify them that I had received it. No answer. Sure enough, the first of the month I received another bill and I wrote another letter which was ignored. The other day a third notice appeared in the mail. I expect to receive a few more. Who knows, I may have enough to paper my walls. Meantime, I'm curious about what the company will do next. Will keep you informed.

This is definitely an example of Illinois law on "unsolicited goods . . . deemed as a gift to the recipient." I had not ordered the book or agreed to its purchase nor was it intended for another person other than myself; therefore I may keep it.

• The law, as it is today, gives consumers the break they deserve. But it wasn't always that way. To show you what the law used to be and how it worked let me share another experience with you.

Some years ago, I received a Christmas bell ornament through the mail. Under the law at that time I was obliged to return that bell, so I repacked it, took it to the post office, bought postage for it, waited in line and sent it off to the company with a letter stating I had not ordered the ornament.

The following week I received another bell, and another and another — until I had six of them! No amount of correspondence ever corrected the situation so I tore up the bills and decided to wait it out. I never heard from the company after that, but you can see what a nuisance it was to have to return articles one hadn't ordered or be obliged to pay for them!

• Illinois law also takes into consideration a woman's low sales resistance with its protective door-to-door sales provisions, which covers anything from those 32 pieces of shining wonder pots and pans to a sample of what junior will look like in a new photograph. The law states that the sale must be: Not less than $25, must be made in your home and must not have been at your request. If you then wish to cancel, you must do it within 72 hours (three business days after the sale) and notice must be given by registered mail or telegram that will serve as proof and a record of your communication.

Of course, the day after you might sigh while scouring your beat-up pots or pans. You may even suddenly realize, as you stare at junior, that he didn't look that way yesterday and won't look the same tomorrow as he did today and that you missed a chance to capture the illusive-ness of the moment. But at least you'll have a chance to balance your budget, buy junior a new suit first and decide whether or not you need something more than a new frying pan before you twist your hubby's arm or squeeze your budget a little harder.

In America 'forever'

Thai wife values freedom

by ELEANOR RIVES

"You must make people to realize how lucky American women are," said Helene Austin Ross in her gentle, cultured Oriental voice with exquisite French accent. We were sipping black coffee from translucent white china cups, stirring it occasionally with bronze sculptured spoons with wooden stems.

"Here women have all the freedom they ever want," she added, explaining that a Thai woman never gets involved in any activity without her husband's permission. If he objects, she just stays in the house and waits on him.

"American law protects so much the woman," she went on. "In Thailand, if a husband is unfaithful, a woman cannot file for divorce. In rare cases where she succeeds, he need not pay alimony unless he chooses to."

BORN OF A Thai father and a French mother (who always called her "Helene"), she was sent to France for schooling when she was 16 years old, staying in that country about seven years during which time she was graduated from the Sorbonne and was awarded a master's degree in literature.

Then she returned to her family in Bangkok. After a few years as a lady of leisure, France beckoned her again, this time for a stay of eight years — "because I so love Paris."

Returning to Thailand she joined the staff of Krirk College as a French professor and dean of the French Department from 1961 to 1969. She kept the name of Helene and adopted "Austin" as her professional name.

MUTUAL FRIENDS introduced her to Walter E. Ross, an American architect working for a private firm doing military construction in southeast Asia. They were married in 1968 in the Thai City Hall in Bangkok and certified by the American consul.

Because her husband was engaged in work helping America in the Vietnam War, Helene was authorized to come to America, take the examination and become a U.S. citizen immediately instead of waiting the customary five years. It was a 36-hour trip. Walt did not come with her.

"I was so nervous," she said. "To learn everything, I spent four months." She passed.

HELENE KNOWS the date well — April 14, 1969. The following year, she and Walt came to America to live. "Now darling, you are going to be free," he said. "You can say or do whatever you want."

The Rosses have now been here four years, a year in Omaha, two years in Mount Prospect and a year in Des Plaines. Walt is corporate architect for Procon, a subsidiary of Universal Oil Products.

Helene's background left her totally unprepared to assume the duties of an American housewife. The first time she used a washer, the clothes came out stuck together. She had tossed in half a box of detergent. She almost ruined a dishwasher by throwing everything in, plastic or not. A neighbor taught her how to roll her hair. She had never combed her own hair before, being regularly attended by a hairdresser.

THE FIRST time she washed a window, she broke her finger and had to have it in a splint for six weeks.

Cooking was a major problem. "I was so much spoiled in Thailand," she said. "My father would not allow me to enter the kitchen. He said always, 'Study, study, study.'"

Walt taught her American cooking and some of Helene's former students who visit in the summer taught her Thai cooking. Helene laughs now to think that the first time she prepared a rice dish, she used Minute Rice. And Walt showed her how.

Mrs. Ross is vitally interested in American politics and has learned much about the two-party system. She is presently publicity chairman for the Maine Township Republican Women's Club, and she does volunteer work in the office of U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

SHE ATTENDED the two-day Republican Midwest Leadership Conference at the Hyatt House and was thrilled to meet Vice President Gerald Ford, Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and other political figures.

"My only disappointment was to read of corruption in politics," she shook her head. "I thought corruption was only in Europe and Asia. My husband told me perhaps I came here 20 years too late."

Helene Austin Ross would like to visit France again some day, but plans to live in America "forever," and one day to write a book about her life.

It should be fascinating reading.

SWEET IS THE FREEDOM of American women to Helene Austin Ross who just celebrated her fifth anniversary of citizenship. She finds Americans lovely, simple, open-hearted people, but often rushing too much to enjoy life. "In Thailand we were used to a very slow life."

Speaking of . . .

Financing a college education

by KAY MARSH

(Second of two parts)

As discussed in last week's column, much of the financial aid available to the would-be college student is based on need. There are, however, sources open to the student from middle income families caught in the crunch of inflationary pressures and rising college costs.

Many borderline cases may qualify for Basic Opportunity Grants, which are, however, limited to families who can afford to pay no more than $1,150. A million students are expected to get grants up to $800 under this new program which will be expanded next year to cover sophomores as well as freshmen.

Many middle income students will also qualify for substantial bank loans under the Guaranteed Student Loan Program. While some sources expect Congress to eliminate need tests for families with incomes of $15,000 or less, it is often extremely difficult to find a lender agreeable to the maximum permissible interest.

Co-op programs are one of the most exciting recent developments on today's college campus. Approximately 600 colleges today offer formal co-op programs under which the student alternates semesters at work with semesters on campus, taking five years or more to get a degree.

RESERVE OFFICER Training Corps (ROTC) programs are making a comeback at many colleges. Military scholarships, which are also available to women, pay tuition, fees and books, plus $100 a month in return for classes and summer camp attendance during college plus four years of active duty and two years of reserve duty after graduation.

There are also veterans' benefits for veterans and their survivors or dependents. Social Security Educational Benefits help many students whose parents are deceased, disabled or retired.

In Illinois, at least two legislators have said that they will introduce bills that will benefit the middle income student. In February, Rep. John C. Hirschfeld proposed a plan calling for guaranteed, interest-free loans for college to any Illinois high school graduate. He said he fears public higher education will soon become available "only to the very rich and the very poor."

In March, State Sen. David C. Shapiro announced plans to introduce a new bill tentatively titled the Student Supplemental Employment Act. Aimed at students from families in the $11,000 to $17,000 income range, the bill is designed, Shapiro said, to help middle income students "who really want to work" and to provide learning experiences as well as financial help.

FOR THE MIDDLE INCOME student who needs money now, one of the most promising recent developments is an increasing trend for some colleges, especially private institutions, to grant scholarships based on merit instead of need.

While critics contend that "no-need" scholarships penalize the needy student who needs aid more and help the institutions by boosting dwindling enrollments, the fact remains that Case Western Reserve (Ohio), New York University, Texas Christian University and other colleges are initiating programs that base scholarships on academic merit rather than on finances.

Texas Christian University's program bases stipends on high school grades and test scores. Long Island University's C. W. Post College in New York grants scholarships based on merit alone, providing the student goes into an under-enrolled field. New Jersey's Fairleigh Dickinson University offers half-price enrollment to the husband, wife, brother or sister of a student enrolled full-time. Stephens College offers a $1,000 tuition reduction to parents with two daughters concurrently enrolled. Stephens (in Missouri) also recently announced merit scholarships of up to $1,000 for students in the upper 10 per cent of their high school class without regard to financial need.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY'S program was specifically designed to combat a decline in middle-income enrollments. As reported in the Wall Street Journal of March 25, the program starting this fall will award 500 to 600 scholarships averaging $1,000 each to students from the middle income group. Other schools mentioned as having merit programs include the New York Institute of Technology, Adelphi University in New York and the College of Wooster in Ohio.

In conclusion, the best advice to any student, whatever the income, who wants to go to college is to start early, don't give up and explore every possible avenue. Financial aid officers say there is a way, though finding (or funding) it may be a difficult and time-consuming process.

Couple claims 'love at first sight'

"It was love at first sight" for Deborah Louise Zonsius and Jack H. Lane III, who met last spring at IBM training school in Dallas, Tex. They were married March 30 in an 11 a.m. service in First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights.

Both are with IBM in California. Deborah in Los Angeles and Jack in Beverly Hills.

A graduate of Arlington High School and DePaul University in Greencastle, Ind., Deborah is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Zonsius, 811 S. Bristol Lane, Arlington Heights. Jack, son of Jack Lane, Beverly Hills, and the late Mrs. Lane, is a graduate of San Diego State University.

For the double ring service Deborah wore a gown of summer satin and Venice lace. The Empire bodice had a high ruffled collar of daisy patterned lace that cascaded into the A-line skirt and the full bishop sleeves. A band of daisies outlined the hem of her gown and her mantilla veil. She carried phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis.

ANNE ZONSIUS WAS her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Janet Baughman and Linda Adams, Indianapolis, Ind.; Carol Shomo, Evanston; and the groom's sister, Robin LaBonge, Monterey Park, Calif. Their gowns were in aqua and yellow pastel plaid, trimmed in lace, and they carried delphinium, cornflowers and Shasta mums.

John Badger, Los Angeles, was best man, and the bride's brother, David; Marvin Carnow, San Francisco; John G. Klein, Los Angeles; and the groom's brother-in-law, Denis LaBonge, were ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack H. Lane III

The service was followed by a luncheon reception for 125 guests in the Plum Grove Club, after which the newlyweds honeymooned a week in Jamaica. They are now residing in Culver City, Calif.

Marriage is a private affair

To Susan Elaine Green and Dennis James Miller a wedding is a very private affair and for their marriage March 16 only their parents, grandparents, their four attendants and the ministers and their wives were present.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Green of Hoffman Estates, Susan and Dennis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Miller of Northfield, Minn., were married in the Agnes Melby Chapel on the St. Olaf College Campus, Northfield. Rev. Clifford Swanson, college chaplain, and Dr. John Fahning, professor of religion at St. Olaf, performed the candle-light, double ring service at 6 p.m. The couple wrote their own vows.

Attending Susan as maid of honor were her sister, Linda, and Ann Layton, Melrose, Minn. Attending the groom were his brother, Lowell Miller, as best man, and Gene Sanford, New Prague, Minn.

Following the service the newlyweds and their guests dined at the Lavender Inn, after which Susan and Dennis went skiing in Colorado for a week before returning to their classes at St. Olaf. Susan is a '72 graduate of Conant High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis J. Miller

Their cake was made at home

A wedding cake made at home was served to the 70 guests at the wedding reception of Susan Beth Butler and Michael Stuart Williams on March 16. The reception, held in Fellowship Hall of First United Methodist Church of Arlington Heights, followed a 2 p.m. wedding service in the church.

Susan is the daughter of Mrs. Thelma Butler of Arlington Heights and Seth Butler of Palatine, and Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Williams, Wheeling. Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Seth

Butler made the wedding cake.

Susan's sister, Leslie A. Zajicek, Des Plaines, was matron of honor and her husband, Dean, was best man. Ushers were John Skinner, Barrington, and George Holdcroft, Hoffman Estates.

A graduate of Palatine High School, Susan is employed by K-Mart, and Michael, a graduate of Wheeling High, by Harris Moulders, Wheeling. The couple will be taking a belated honeymoon in Michigan this summer.

DETECTING HIGH blood pressure is the aim of Operation Blood Pressure Alert in Arlington Heights Saturday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Arlington Nurses Club members will be at four locations to test those who stop by. President Dolores Shields gets early check from chairman Helen Jensen.

Blood pressure testing set for Saturday in Arlington

Operation Blood Pressure Alert, a comprehensive blood pressure testing program conducted by area nurses clubs in cooperation with the Heart Association of North Cook County, will offer testing in Arlington Heights Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Members of Arlington Heights Nurses Club will be stationed at four locations to check anyone who would like to have their blood pressure checked.

On the north side, they will be at Memorial Library and Northpoint State Bank. On the south side, the nurses will be ready to take readings at the Medicare Pharmacy in Evergreen Plaza and at Heights Cleaners, corner of Arlington Heights Road and Grove.

The tests are conducted under standards established by the Heart Association, whose aim is to identify people with high blood pressure and get them under medical care. This is important because high blood pressure is the major cause of stroke, congestive heart failure and kidney disease. It is also a serious risk factor for heart attack.

What's ailing rubber plants?

Dear Dorothy My rubber plant is looking sicker each day. There are two lower branches, then a long expanse of plain branch and at the top are several large leaves at the very end. The leaves on the middle branch look peculiar, get yellow, then drop off. Any ideas on this curious business?—Genevieve Maxwell.

We've had a rubber plant for so many years I look on it as part of the family and recognize the symptoms. I don't know where you have it sitting or what you've been doing with it, but these plants should never be in direct light or be overwatered. Overwatering can cause root rot. The leaves need sponging off once in a while. If these off-the-cuff tips are of no help, I'd suggest you cut off that one ailing branch. No sense in making the plant overwork to support an appendage with the "pip."

Dear Dorothy Here's a tip you ought to pass on. To make sure the gasket around the refrigerator door isn't worn or damaged, put a dollar bill in the door and close it. If the dollar bill slips out easily, the gasket needs changing.—Marian Houghton

That tip used to work with the old refrigerators, Marian. But with the new magnetic-closing doors, the dollar bill comes out with ease even when the gasket is perfect.

Dear Dorothy "Making the rounds" with my daughter, we stopped at one of her friends' and I noticed something in the baby's room that I thought other young mothers might be interested in. She had installed a pole lamp at the foot of the baby's changing table. Not only can she direct the light away from the baby's eyes, but she can focus it at any point that needs examining — like the baby's bottom, for one instance. These young ones are bright!—Mrs. T. R. Weatherbee

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Salad luncheon for Newcomers

The annual spring salad luncheon for Arlington Heights Newcomers and their guests will be held on Tuesday, May 7, at St. Simon's Church, 717 Kirchhoff Road. Donation is $2.50 and baby sitting will also be available at $1 per child.

Entertainment will be provided by the chamber choir from Arlington High School who will perform selections from "Godspell."

Tickets are to be purchased in advance from board members or by calling Mrs. William Clancy, 394-9470. Proceeds from the luncheon will be donated to the Arlington Heights paramedics for training equipment.

Anyone who has lived in Arlington Heights for 18 months or less may become a member of the club. Information is available by calling Mrs. Lawrence Hedeen, 233-7187.

Meadows Juniors list allocations for '73-74 year

Toward a $4,000 goal to purchase choir robes for Rolling Meadows High School Choral Department, Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club reports that it has now raised $1,250 for Project Choir Robe.

Another $1,225 was recently allocated to local and federation projects. Local projects included Clearbrook, Northwest Mental Health, Human Resource Center, scholarships, paramedics, Rolling Meadows Library and Community Chest. Funds were also allocated for tulip bulb planting at Rolling Meadows High School, for band uniforms at Carl Sandburg School, towards food for a needy family and to WTTW TV station.

Federation allocations included various scholarships, forest plantings, Pennies for Art, Park Ridge School for Girls, Latin American Student Exchange, Cancer, Hope, Care, Brain Research, Project Concern, Illinois Kidney Foundation, veteran's hospitals, American Youth Hostel, Gateway House and drug abuse.

Initiation of new officers will be held at the club's annual meeting May 13 at the Brass Rail in Arlington Heights. Mrs. R. Schneider, president, and eight club members will be attending the annual state convention of the Federation May 7-9 at the Pick-Congress Hotel, Chicago.

Awarded scholarship

Mrs. Daniel Stowell of Arlington Heights is the recipient of one of four scholarships awarded by Chicago Area Chapter of '90s, an international organization of women pilots.

A flight instructor at Chicagoland airport, Mrs. Stowell will use her scholarship toward obtaining her instrument instructor rating.

'You and your money' a Harper workshop topic

A workshop on "You and Your Money" will be held Friday, May 3, at Harper College in the "Expanding Horizons" series for women. The event will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., a tuition of $6.00 includes lunch.

"This is not a conventional 'How to Budget' program," explained Doe Hentschel, director of community services. "The emphasis will be on understanding the current economic situation as it affects the individual consumer."

Speakers will include men and women working in economic and financial fields.

Prior registration is required for the workshop. Interested women may send name, address, telephone, social security number, and a check for the correct tuition (payable to Harper College) to Community Services, Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle Roads, Palatine, Ill. 60067.

Child care is available at an additional charge and registrants should indicate if this service is needed when registering.

Further information is available by calling 397-3000, extension 248.

For a Happy Life

It's fun in April to:

1. Buy a bunch of daffodils and place them in a brown earthenware pitcher.
2. Snack on seeds, raisins and unsalted peanuts.
3. Make a detailed, room-by-room list of all of your possessions, keep in your safety deposit box in case of a household fire.
4. Discard old, dried out bottles of nail polish, medicines, creams, cosmetics.
5. Take the children to a museum, art gallery or historical site which you have never visited.
6. Inspire a group of club women to sit-in and do some observing in your local courtrooms.
7. Divide grocery items in two piles when you get home from shopping, the essentials and the could-have-done-withouts. Study the result.
8. Ponder the old Chinese proverb: "Dig your well before you are thirsty."

Aim for the future... with our variety of savings plans

Individuals, whatever their age, save with our bank for many reasons. For some, the prime reason is the high interest earned. For some, it's specific goals they want to achieve. For others, it's a feeling of security having their savings in a bank where deposits are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The SILVER ARROW Savings Plans enable you to choose a savings program best suited for your individual goals. You can "aim for the future" with the variety of SILVER ARROW Savings Plans available.

Our friendly concern is to provide counsel to make sure you have the most effective savings program. This is what you would expect from our bank "THE BANK FOR ALL GENERATIONS"

TV special on breast cancer

Northwest Suburban Unit of the American Cancer Society announces a special television report on cancer entitled "Why Are You So Afraid of Breast Cancer?" to be shown Sunday evening and repeated Monday on Channel 2, WBBM-TV.

The special is a response to a report on common misconceptions about breast cancer as revealed in a survey conducted by the Gallup Organization, Inc., for the American Cancer Society, according to Jane Ulrich, field representative of the society's Palatine office.

During the program Lee Phillip will talk with eight Chicago area women who have had a wide range of experiences with breast lumps in an attempt to reveal some of the facts and myths of breast cancer. Miss Phillip will also talk with Dr. Harry Southwick, professor of general surgery at Rush Presbyterian St. Luke's Medical Center.

THE HOUR-LONG show will also feature excerpts from the new film "Breast Cancer: Where We Are," narrated by actress/model Jennifer O'Neill, who has had a benign tumor removed from her breast. During the film the technique of breast self-examination is explicitly demonstrated, and the latest methods of breast cancer detection are discussed.

The special will be presented Sunday from 10:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. and again on Monday 4:30-5:30 p.m.

The information presented in this frank and reassuring program on breast cancer is especially important because there is no other disease where the individual himself is so responsible for the outcome, said Miss Ulrich.

While this special is on the air and for one hour afterward, viewers may call 372-0471 to reach trained volunteers who are prepared to answer viewers' questions and requests for literature.

Plan beaded flower class

Beaded flower making, offered by the Des Plaines Historical Society and taught at the museum at 777 Lee St., will be the final craft class in the museum's 1973-74 season. It will be taught by Mrs. Jan Snamon.

Those wishing to enroll have a choice of two classes: the first on Thursday, May 2 at 10 a.m., the second on Saturday, May 4 at 1 p.m. Each class will be limited to 20 persons.

Those wishing to register may call the museum office at 297-4912 before this Friday. The class is open to both members and non-members of the historical society. Cost to members is $5, to non-members $6. All necessary material will be furnished by the historical society.

This is an opportunity to learn an old craft, extremely popular around the turn of the century and now making a comeback. Other crafts will be offered in the 1974-75 series at the museum and anyone interested in a particular craft, either as a student or a teacher, may call the museum and offer suggestions.

Village proposes 4% increase in employees' pay

by JOE FRANZ

Buffalo Grove officials have proposed a 4 per cent average increase in municipal employees' salary scale for the next fiscal year.

VILLAGE Mgr. Daniel Larson said Tuesday the amount of individual pay raises will depend on where employees fall in the salary ranges. In some cases, he said, adjustments have been proposed to the bottom of the range and in others the increases have been proposed for the top of the range.

The amount of an increase each of the 70 municipal employees will receive, according to Larson, also will depend on merit and how long they have worked for the village.

PROPOSED INCREASES to the salary scales fall between 1.6 per cent in one department to 18.2 per cent under another classification. Larson said the large increases have been proposed for job classifications where salaries are much lower than those in neighboring municipalities.

In the cases where lower increases have been proposed, Larson said, the salaries are more in line with other communities. In all instances except four, Larson said, proposed increases only will cover hikes in the cost of living.

It has been proposed that the salary range for a maintenance man be increased by 18.2 per cent at the bottom of the scale and 1 per cent at the top. The proposed salary hike for a chief inspector and general superintendent of public works is 10 per cent at the top with no increase proposed in the starting salary.

AN INCREASE of 7 per cent at the bottom of the scale and 14 per cent at the top also has been proposed for the foreman 2 job classification.

Larson said he has proposed more than a cost-of-living increase for the above job classifications because salaries in those categories are presently far under those of other municipalities. He said the employees holding those jobs are "the lowest paid in the Northwest suburbs." Even if the increases are granted, Larson said the salaries still will be below average.

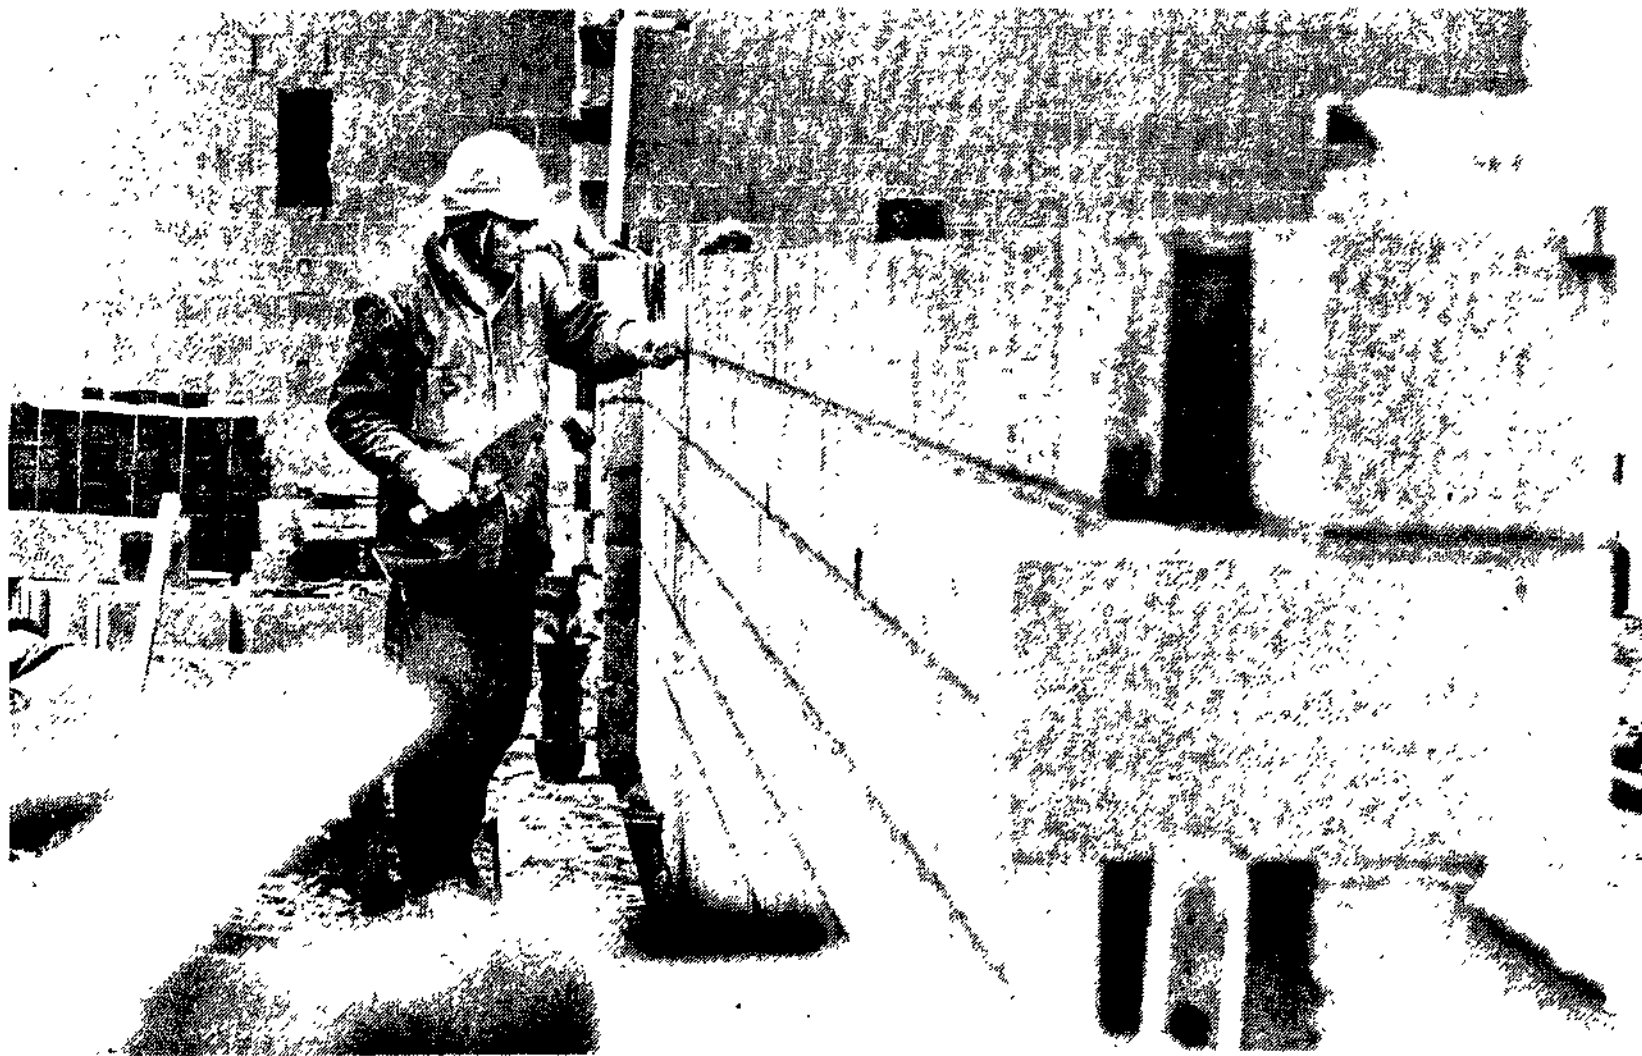

The proposed increases in patrolmen's salaries range from 6 per cent to 7.8 per cent. Under the proposed increase a starting patrolman will make $10,500 and will be able to make a maximum of $14,576.

If the raises are granted police sergeants would make between $13,200 and $16,500, a 2.8 per cent to 7 per cent increase depending on where the individual falls in the pay scale.

LARSON SAID the proposed pay increases do not cover salaries of department heads in the village. He said the heads will be evaluated in the next week or two and pay increases will be determined.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson currently is paid $18,500 a year. Police Chief Harry Walsh is paid $19,000 annually. Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg is paid $18,500 a year and Public Works Director Charles McCoy is paid $18,000 yearly.

Last week Larson refused to release proposed pay increases because of a village board directive. The board Monday night, however, agreed to release the information after being informed of a recent opinion by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott. The opinion states that municipalities have an obligation to discuss salaries at open meetings.

Until legality of sales is determined

No more Grand Spaulding stickers

by JOE FRANZ

The Buffalo Grove Village Board has directed the village staff not to sell any more vehicle stickers to Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc. until the legality of such sales is determined.

The board Monday night unanimously passed a resolution introduced by Trustee James Shirley. In proposing the resolution, Shirley said, "I think it would be improper to let the meeting pass without commenting on the situation."

The Herald disclosed last week that Grand Spaulding, 3300 W. Grand Ave., Chicago, purchased 207 Buffalo Grove stickers this year and 235 in 1973, apparently to avoid paying the city's higher vehicle tax. The arrangement apparently is illegal since Grand Spaulding does not operate a business out of Buffalo Grove.

In addition to asking for a legal opinion from the village attorney and prohibiting the sale of stickers to the firm, at least for the time being, the resolution directs the village staff to search through past village records to find out how many years the stickers have been sold to Grand Spaulding.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson and several other officials have said the village has been selling the company stickers at least since 1971.

VILLAGE ATTY. Richard Raysa told The Herald last week that if Grand Spaulding is not housing the cars in Buffalo Grove, it probably is in violation of the law. Raysa said Monday night, however, he will not comment further until he does more research.

Grand Spaulding owns property at Arlington Heights and Dundee Roads, but does not operate out of that location. Len Krause, president of Grand Spaulding, said last week the practice is legal since the firm owns property in Buffalo Grove.

In order to obtain the vehicle stickers, Grand Spaulding gave a Buffalo Grove post office box number. A random check of state license numbers, however, revealed that all the cars are registered at the Grand Avenue location. Thus, Grand Spaulding gave the village one address and the state another for the same cars.

By purchasing stickers from the village, the firm saved between $10 and $40 per car. Stickers in Chicago cost between $20 and $50, compared to Buffalo Grove which charges $10 a sticker.

INVESTIGATORS from the Chicago city clerk's office are investigating the sale of Buffalo Grove stickers to Grand Spaulding. If the city brings charges and the firm is found in violation, Grand Spaulding could be fined between $25 and $200 for every illegally purchased sticker.

Monday night's resolution also states that the village should cooperate with any governmental agencies that may request information on the sticker purchases. The Cook County State's Attorney's office and the U.S. Attorney's Office also are looking into the legality of the matter.

AFS bottle drive slated Saturday

Members of the Wheeling and Buffalo Grove High School American Field Service (AFS) chapters will conduct a bottle drive Saturday in both communities.

The students plan to go door-to-door asking residents to contribute bottles that may be returned for deposits.

Proceeds from the drive will be used to help sponsor foreign exchange students at the school next year. Last year's drive netted about $300, or nearly half the cost of sponsoring one student.

Oral examinations set for Stevenson seniors

Adlai Stevenson High School seniors are scheduled to participate in oral examinations from 1 to 4 p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday, April 29, May 1 and 3.

Underclassmen at the Prairie View school will attend classes only from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on those three days.

The hour-long annual examinations will be conducted by three teachers and cover a wide variety of subject matter, according to Edwin Ellis, Dist. 125 assistant superintendent.

PART OF THE quiz will be devoted to academic questions in areas the student has particularly studied and will require specific answers, Ellis said. Faculty questions may range from "What is the equation of a line?" to queries about chemical formulas and foreign language translations. All questions will be on topics covered in the curriculum.

"Finding out what the student knows about academic matters is only part of the examinations," said Wayne Schnable, curriculum coordinator. "We give each student an opportunity to tell the examiners what he thinks of the teaching staff, curriculum and extra-curricular activities in which he has participated during his high school career."

According to Schnable, information obtained through the senior oral examinations is added to other research "and is used to develop new fields of study or eliminate repetitious materials."

Dist. 125 Supt. Harold Banser added another reason for the orals. "This gives our graduating seniors an opportunity to experience a serious interview. Whether they are applying for a job or going on to college, it is a unique learning experience."

Ellis said the examination sessions will begin with informal conversation to put the student at ease. Examiners will start with easy questions and progress to more difficult ones. Half the session may be devoted to academic queries and the rest of the time to extracurricular subjects, drugs or whatever the student wants to discuss.

NEAR THE END of the session, the student will be excused while each teacher evaluates the student using a standard scale. Ratings will be given in four areas: ability to integrate knowledge; ability to organize thoughts; ability to express ideas and evaluation of academic preparation.

Students will be rated "honors" or outstanding, "commendable," "satisfactory" or "unsatisfactory."

Students will receive a copy of the evaluation. The evaluation will be discussed by the student and the examiners and the student's comments will be added to the final report.

Only those students who receive honor ratings will have a note attached to their academic records. Otherwise, no grade is given.

Village and Hoffman Estates may start 'swap-a-cop' plan

by TOM VON MALDER

Buffalo Grove and Hoffman Estates may begin swapping policemen as part of a new training program. Dubbed "swap a cop" by Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh, the program could begin within three weeks.

The Buffalo Grove Village Board Monday night gave its unanimous approval to Centex gets approval for model-homes area

The Buffalo Grove Village Board has given Centex Homes Corp. final approval for construction of the model-home area for its Winston Square development near Weiland Road and Ill. Rte. 83.

Mort Kaplan, an attorney for Centex, said the firm plans to start construction of the models as soon as possible. After the models are finished, he said Centex will come before the village for approval of the rest of the development.

The entire development calls for construction of 154 single-family homes and 266 townhouses. The 57-acre tract recently was purchased by Centex from another developer who decided not to build on the property.

the program, which would have a supervisory police officer from each community switch departments for a two-week period. The Hoffman Estates Village Board has just begun to consider the program.

Walsh Tuesday said the program, patterned after similar ones in California, should help supervisory personnel by giving them experience in a community with which they are unfamiliar. "The experience will be good leadership training," he said.

"The officer would be able to function immediately. Their job is to enforce laws and the laws in both village's are about the same," Walsh said. "Supervisory and leadership skills are universal. I don't think the officers will have any problem adapting."

WALSH HAS selected Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki to be Buffalo Grove's first "exchange sergeant." (The program will not involve patrolmen.) Hoffman Estates' choice has not been made.

The policeman in a strange department would retain all his police powers, but he would be primarily a watch commander or supervisor. While he could make arrests (according to a legal opinion obtained by Walsh), participants will be instructed not to initiate any arrest, Walsh said. The policemen would wear their own department's uniform.

Hoffman Estates Village Mgr. George Longmeyer described the program as a "training exercise, an experiment." He said each department could benefit from the observations an "outsider" would make of their department. Participants in the program will have to write up reports, copies of which will be made available to Walsh and Hoffman Estates Police Chief John O'Connell.

The program would continue as long as each department felt it was useful, Walsh said, and it could be expanded to include other area departments.

BOTH WALSH and O'Connell apparently picked up on the idea last May at a two-day seminar held by the Illinois City Managers Assn. in Zion. Police chiefs were invited to those sessions.

At this time, Hoffman Estates' participation in the program is subject to a number of questions. According to Longmeyer, "It's nowhere right now. A memo was given to the Hoffman Estates board last night (Monday) in essence asking them to think it out."

It may vote on the matter May 6, after legal questions on insurance coverage and arrests are answered by their attorneys.

The memo, Longmeyer referred to, was passed out — apparently illegally — during a village board executive session Monday night.

Piano recital today

A piano recital by the students of Suzanne Hynek, an independent piano teacher, will be held today at 7 p.m. and 7:45 p.m. at Town Hall in the lower level of Randolph Shopping Center, Mount Prospect.

Thirty-eight students from Wheeling, Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights will take part in the two performances.

Special education preschool class 'verbal bombardment'

Learning to translate what he sees into clear, precise verbal descriptions is the first step a child takes in the educational process. For children with language development problems or other learning disabilities, it's often hard to find the right words.

Barbara Lowenthal offers help to such children in School Dist. 21 in a special education class for preschoolers at Twain School in Wheeling.

In a large, bright room overflowing with the children's artwork, books, charts, posters, puzzles, plants, games and toys, Mrs. Lowenthal involves the children in a wide variety of activities. She tries to stimulate three-to-five-year-olds to talk — about everything under the sun.

"This class is like a verbal bombardment," she laughed. "I never shut up!"

MRS. LOWENTHAL works with two groups of youngsters in two-hour sessions, one in the morning and the other each afternoon. The groups are intentionally small, with about five youngsters in each, to allow for very individualized help.

"We try to take each child at the level he's on and help him to feel some success," Mrs. Lowenthal said. "No child will learn if he constantly faces defeat. No matter where he is, he can find some success and then we help him to work upward."

By encouraging the youngsters to verbalize constantly, Mrs. Lowenthal helps the children develop conceptual skills and the word power necessary to effectively express themselves.

Refreshments are served each day and a thirsty child's "More juice!" won't do. The children are required to speak in complete sentences in order to teach them to communicate more effectively.

THE YOUNGSTERS participate in many activities specially designed to acquaint them with concepts they will need to understand to be successful in school.

Cooking class is conducted once a week in a kitchen at the school with the children helping to bake cookies, make candy and this week stir up some lemonade.

The lemonade will be made from scratch and the children will squeeze the lemons, measure sugar and pour drinks for everybody.

The sessions in the kitchen are intended to expand the children's vocabulary, teach number concepts and develop fine motor skills such as the coordination necessary in pouring a liquid.

Other activities also strengthen motor skills such as cutting and pasting artwork, making hats and puppets, and painting.

Mrs. Lowenthal has developed a special version of the motor facilitation program used in kindergarten classes in Dist. 21 to help the preschoolers learn such gross motor skills as jumping, skipping, hopping and walking across a balance beam.

SOME CHILDREN participate in the class only one year, graduating to a regular nursery school or kindergarten. Other youngsters may need the extra help for two or three years and then be placed in special education classes for school-age children.

Parents are required to bring their children to the class and pick them up each day. Mrs. Lowenthal feels the daily parent contact is important.

"Because I talk to the parents every day, if something happens at home and the child is disturbed about it, I know what's wrong and I can try to help him," she said.

This is where another kind of communication comes in, Mrs. Lowenthal added — her relationship with each of the students. A warm, smiling lady, the preschool teacher appears to have the patience of a mother as she reads a story and explain the pictures to the youngsters or shares their excitement as carrot seeds they planted together begin to sprout.

"It's important to be close to the children, especially in a special education class like this," she said. "A child has to love you and know that you love him. Then he can begin to learn something."

Parking lot addition planned

Wheeling prepares for new court

Wheeling officials are moving quickly in hopes of bringing a branch of the 2nd Municipal District of the Circuit Court of Cook County to that village in 90 days.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said plans are now being developed for a 100-car addition to the parking lot at the village hall. The additional parking space is needed to accommodate the estimated 75 extra cars that would be brought to the village by the court.

Passolt said he received an official request to locate the court in Wheeling Monday. In the request, Judge Harold W. Sullivan, presiding judge, asked for use of the village council chambers on Friday mornings.

"Because of the steady increase in the (Wheeling and Buffalo Grove) population and the corresponding increase in the number of police personnel, the volume which the court in Arlington Heights has been handling has become unwieldy," Sullivan wrote. "It could alleviate much of the congestion in the Arlington Heights court if the traffic matters for Wheeling and Buffalo Grove could be heard in another location."

WHEELING TRUSTEES gave their blessing to the court, noting that Wheeling officials have been working on the matter for several years. Police Chief Peter Guttilla said the new court will reduce the amount of time Wheeling patrolmen have to spend outside of the village.

The new parking lot will be located just east of the municipal building. Passolt said the lot is being designed to allow the eventual construction of a new fire station behind the lot and next to the hall.

Judge Sullivan said the court will need 45 days notice to move court operations to Wheeling "to accommodate the cases that are already pending in the Arlington Heights court."

Passolt said he hopes that the court could be in operation in about 90 days, but added that there might be some delays. "Once they actually come out and start the parking lot, we can give our 45-day notice right then and there," he said.

The manager said he does not yet have an estimate on the cost of the parking lot addition. He said the area in front of the lot would be landscaped and grassed-in to make it more attractive.

Trustee Don Jackson asked that the village take special pains with the landscaping because "I think it is important that we set a good example." He noted that the village has been seeking improvement of other parking lots in Wheeling.

BOTH WHEELING and Rolling Meadows had petitioned within the last year for a second courtroom facility. Sullivan selected the Wheeling location after agreement with area chiefs of police.

The backlog of court cases in Arlington Heights has been increasing. The problem was particularly bad several weeks ago when more than 320 cases from the Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Rolling Meadows police departments were scheduled one day.

Trustee Ed Berger noted that while the court is now being planned for only one day a week, this may increase to two days each week within the next year or two.

Former Wheeling village trustee John Grunst died Monday night.

Grunst, 69, apparently suffered a fatal heart attack about 10:30 p.m. in his home, 1301 Anthony Rd. Both Wheeling and Buffalo Grove paramedics tried to revive Grunst. Their efforts were unsuccessful and he was pronounced dead on arrival at Lutheran General Hospital.

Grunst was appointed to the village board on Nov. 2, 1953. He ran successfully in 1955 for a full term on the board but decided not to seek reelection in 1959. For the past five years or so, Grunst was a school crossing guard at Heritage Park on Wolf Road. He was a retired employee of the A. B. Dick Co.

The traditional mourning bunting was hung on the village hall Tuesday afternoon.

Des Plaines River group plans parley

The Des Plaines River Basin steering Committee will meet at 8 p.m. May 1 at St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights. The meeting is to review the results of the Soil Conservation Service's flood damage studies in the Buffalo Creek-Wheeling Drainage Ditch and McDonald Creek areas.

Residents will be permitted to give their viewpoints on the problem.

Dist. 214 wrapup

Film on drug problems bought

All seven members of the High School Dist. 214 board volunteered Monday to present a film on student drug problems to community groups.

In addition, the board agreed to buy three copies of the film, titled "An Addict in Every House," which has been used for a seminar being offered this semester by three Elk Grove High School teachers for faculty and administrators in Dist. 214. The film costs about $300 a copy.

The film was shown Monday at the beginning of the Dist. 214 board meeting. It shows parents and children in drug rehabilitation programs talking about their problems and feelings. Parts of the film were made in Park Ridge and Elmhurst.

Richard Penley, one of the Elk Grove teachers running the drug seminar told the board, "The underlying basis of the film is communication." He added that when presented to groups, the film should be preceded by an introduction and followed by discussion of the issues raised.

Board Pres. Jack Costello, a member of the class, said that he felt the district could use the film for community groups, including elementary school PTA's and other organizations.

"You certainly can identify people that you have met in that film," Costello said. "I feel it could be used particularly in grade school districts for parents of small children."

Sabbatical try voted down

John McGee, sociology teacher at Prospect High School, lost by a 4-3 vote his second try to get a sabbatical leave to spend next year in northern Wisconsin.

McGee, who was turned down in a 3-3 vote by the Dist. 214 board last month, asked the board to reconsider his proposal. He said he would use the year at half pay to live and work in the small northern Wisconsin communities on the shores of Lake Superior and to read books relevant to the sociology course to compile a book of readings to be used by students when he returns.

"I've had six very good years in the district," McGee said, "and I'll continue to do a good job one way or another." However, he said he felt the year would help him to be a better teacher by giving him time to sort through materials to be used in the course.

Board Pres. Jack Costello, who was absent at the first vote, said he would vote against the sabbatical even though "I don't know any teacher in the district who has more respect from his students or has my own personal respect anymore than you do, John."

Costello said he voted against the sabbatical because "while I support the concept that a sabbatical need not be attached to further education and to further degrees — I feel this sabbatical does not address itself to the major sociological problem of our society which I consider the inner city rather than the north woods."

Music teachers to be hired

The High School Dist. 214 board has agreed to hire two teachers in order to upgrade the district's orchestra program.

The board agreed with a recommendation from Supt. Edward Gilbert that the two teachers be hired and each assigned to four of the district's schools. The teachers could then work with students to improve the orchestra program in all schools.

Although all the district schools have bands, Gilbert pointed out to the board that when orchestra students from all the district schools are brought together, they form only a 75 or 80 piece orchestra. Both Wheeling and Elk Grove high schools, Gilbert said, have "fairly good" orchestra programs but "none of our schools has an outstanding 200 piece orchestra."

Action called discriminatory

The Dist. 214 board heard Monday from residents who are not happy that students in their area were provided options in a recent boundary change shifting them from Hersey to Wheeling High School.

The group of residents of northern Mount Prospect who live between Palatine and Camp McDonald roads told the board that many of their children will be forced to shift to Wheeling from Hersey because they don't have older brothers or sisters now at Hersey.

When the area shifts from Hersey to Wheeling next year, the board has agreed to allow all students now attending Hersey to finish there and to allow younger brothers and sisters of students now at Hersey the choice of which school to attend.

Parents of children without older brothers and sisters said they believe the action is discriminatory because their children will be separated from their friends by the option. "The kids without the option are in the minority," one woman said.

In addition, Lloyd Demel, a member of the River Trails Dist. 26 board and a participant in the past boundary discussions, asked the Dist. 214 board to reconsider its action because "many people are disappointed" with the board's action and because "I think many people believe that boards will not often hear their needs."

Dist. 214 board members explained they had ordered the boundary change both to relieve overcrowding at Hersey and to increase the enrollment at Wheeling, which is projected to have a declining enrollment during the next several years.

Board members said they would give Demel their enrollment projections and will be following the enrollment figures for the two schools in the future, but said they doubted the decision would change unless projections on enrollment change dramatically.

Dist. 21 wrapup

Lane reelected board head

Jack Lane of Arlington Heights will serve as president of the Dist. 21 school board for the coming year.

Lane was reelected to the board for a second three-year term in the April 13 election. He will head the board until the election next spring.

Lane was named to the post in an organizational meeting of the Dist. 21 school board Monday night. At that time, Kenneth Rodeck of Wheeling was also named to serve as secretary of the board this year.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the board is set for 8:15 p.m., Thursday, May 9.

Omni-House to be backed

Dist. 21 will continue to sponsor Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau next year.

The school board voted Monday night to co-sponsor the Wheeling counseling agency in order to allow the youth services bureau to reapply for financial aid from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

Although Wheeling and Buffalo Grove provide the majority of local funds to Omni-House, the agency also serves Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights.

Bond sale planned

Dist. 21 is planning a bond sale May 23 to obtain the remaining $1,900,000 of a $4.5 million referendum approved by residents in 1971.

The school board Monday authorized the district's attorneys to solicit bids on the bonds on a 10-year retirement schedule approved by the board two weeks ago.

Proceeds from the bond sale will be used to partially finance the construction of additions to the three Dist. 21 junior high schools for a new vocational education program.

Seek $11,214.14

Dist. 21 has submitted an application for $11,214.14 to the National Department of Educational Assistance.

The funds will be used to equip the industrial arts classes in the vocational education program.

$7,780 grant sought

The school board has also submitted an application to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in the amount of $7,780.

The grant will fund a program for drug abuse prevention and early intervention.

'For-profit' operation sought

Behrel to ask city council: delay recycling plan change

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said Tuesday he will ask a city council committee to wait until next September before making any major changes in the city's recycling program.

Behrel said he will make his recommendation to the council's environmental committee to retain its arrangements with the Cleveland Corp. 4½ months so that the entire recycling issue can be studied.

The city council discussed the possibility of turning the city recycling center into a for-profit basis for the past two years. Ald. Irene Birchfield (5th) suggested the city not renew the contract with Cleveland and take over the recycling center themselves.

Behrel said the city will keep more detailed records over the next four months in an effort to get economic information relating to the operation of the center.

"We need to have more factual information regarding this before any final decision is reached," Behrel said.

MRS. BIRCHFIELD suggested prices for scrap glass, metal and newspaper might make it more profitable for the city to sell the materials to private contractors on its own.

The city's present agreement with Cleveland calls for the city to receive between $20-$25 per ton for newspaper, but they must pay about $40 per load to have the glass hauled away.

"By the time you get down with all the costs, the profit works out to peanuts, there isn't that much money to be made," Behrel explained.

Besides the city paying to have the glass hauled away, Behrel said city workers also spend between 35 and 40 hours a month maintaining the recycling center.

ENVIRONMENTAL officer Philip Lindahl said if the city were to take over the recycling center more supervision would be needed to separate different types of glass. Private contractors usually do not accept mixed colors of glass or bottles which still have metal attached.

Behrel said he hopes a final decision on the recycling operation will be made only after more accurate information is available.

Behrel also announced a change in operating hours at the center yesterday. As of May 1 the center will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Until May 1 the center will remain open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Kindergartens gain two new teachers—and they're men

Kindergarten classrooms in two Dist. 62 schools will have something different next September. Two men have been assigned to teach in the previously all-female domain, and will set up their bulletin boards at Central and Orchard Place schools.

The Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 62 board Monday night hired Raymond Mettelka of Stevens Point, Wis., to the kindergarten classroom at Orchard Place.

Ronald Rogers, a currently a sixth-grade teacher at Terrace School, will transfer to Central in September.

Board Sec. Robert Reinke said Tuesday Mettelka comes to the district with the highest of qualifications. "We've been looking for a man for this type of position in the primary level for some time, but we didn't want to take anyone just because he is a man," said Reinke.

Mettelka is presently teaching preschool children with developmental disorders at the Chileda Institute in Stevens Point.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board approved a year's leave of absence for physical education teacher Nancy Puckett and accepted the resignation, effective in June, for Carolyn Rohrbach, a fourth-grade teacher at West School.

An official canvass of ballots for the school board election earlier this month showed that unofficial tallies were a mere five votes off.

Philip Bock, top vote getter of the six candidates running for three positions on the board, came up five votes short in the official tally. Bock's official total was 1,208, with winners Stuart Kisten receiving 1,097 and Wallace Meyer pulling 1,087.

Defeated candidates Mary Kinser, Jay

Kuchel and Robert Meute received 946, 870 and 842, respectively.

Bock, Kisten and Meyer were declared duly elected by the board and sworn into office at the Monday night meeting.

James Kremers was reelected president for a one-year term on the board. Kremers appointed board members to head the following committees: finance, Kathryn Sciez; buildings and grounds, Robert H. Miller; faculty, Kisten; policies, Meyer; public relations, Robert Birchfield.

Mrs. Sciez was named legislative chairman and Birchfield was appointed as the board representative to the tri-county board of directors of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards.

Seniors getting cut-rate cab fares

A special discount taxi fare program for local senior citizens got under way in Des Plaines Tuesday. Senior citizens may ride cabs within the city for 50 cents.

The reduced-rate program, which will be subsidized by the city, will allow the senior citizens to obtain the lower rate on any trip within the city.

DES PLAINE Mayor Herbert Behrel joined with Mrs. Clara Walter yesterday to initiate the city's new discount cab fare program for local senior citizens. Persons over 65 years will now be able to ride cabs within the city for 50 cents. Donald Bowns of the Martin Cab Co. also helped inaugurate the service.

Burglars hit medical center

Burglars broke into a medical building at 420 Lee St., and stole $80 in cash along with a set of stainless steel chessmen and two cassette recorders worth another $339, according to police.

A building manager told police she discovered two broken windows Sunday but did not realize the place was burglarized until Monday, when it was reported to police.

The burglars had gone through drawers and cabinets and pried open a cash drawer, from where the money was taken.

The set of chess pieces was valued at $350 while the recorders were worth $300 each.

Three routed in home fire

Fire early Tuesday caused $5,000 damage to a Des Plaines home when a mattress ignited and routed a mother and her two children from their sleep.

No serious injuries were reported but the woman, Mrs. Joan Boesch, 41, was released after treatment at Holy Family Hospital for slight smoke inhalation.

Firefighters said either a malfunction in an electrical cord or smoking in bed was responsible for the blaze at 1128 Hewitt Dr.

According to reports, the flames broke out in the bedroom of the woman's 16-year-old son several minutes after 2 a.m.

The youngster escaped the bedroom, the mother and girl were roused and the three fled the three-story house.

Firemen said extensive fire and smoke damage was caused to the bedroom while slight smoke and water damages were done to other areas of the house.

City officials to object to state home rule curbs

by STEVE BROWN
Des Plaines officials will join leaders from about 30 other municipalities in Springfield today to object to new state legislation which threatens to curb some of the cities' home rule powers.

The city officials will be protesting a recently introduced resolution which would amend the state constitution regarding municipalities' authority to license certain occupations.

The new resolution which will be examined by the State House executive committee today would allow cities and villages to license only those occupations which were approved by the Illinois General Assembly. Mayor Herbert Behrel said he would send City Attorney James Bouril to represent Des Plaines.

SOME LOCAL OFFICIALS believe the new resolution, which was introduced late last week, is a renewal of effort by the General Assembly to limit home rule authority.

State legislators attempted to pass similar prohibitions last year, but the Illinois Supreme Court ruled House Bill 3636 unconstitutional.

The new legislation, which is known as House Joint Resolution-Constitutional Amendment 30, would also require a state-wide referendum before the measure could become law.

Some legislators argue only the state should have the authority to license some professions such as doctors, engineers and lawyers.

However, representatives of the Illinois Municipal League note that so far no town has attempted to license those professions.

"THERE HAS NOT been the abuse of this licensing," said Ken Alderson, manager of membership services for the Illinois Municipal League.

"If the citizens in a community need to adopt some new type of license to correct the problem, they should have the local option," he added.

Alderson added that the league believes a state-wide referendum would be too costly. He said if the legislators want to limit the authority to license certain professions, they should introduce legislation naming those occupations.

Trudging the TV wasteland

I think I was in fantasyland Monday night. My first mistake was deciding to relax for an evening, so I plopped down before the tube and filled my consciousness with the little black and white images on the screen.

Here's a sampling of what I saw:

- Joe Namath stretched out a la a Playgirl magazine pose wearing panty hose over his hairy legs. This was an advertisement for this particular brand of pantyhose (and I won't embarrass the company by naming it) and for the first time in my life I came to a full realization of what "grossed out" means. My son, the football player, has always idolized Namath. I'm glad he was in bed when this atrocity took place.

- A small item on the news concerning oil company profits for the first quarter of 1974. Two major oil companies (and I won't mention them so as not to embarrass anyone) announced first quarter profits up 81 per cent and 76 per cent respectively over last year's first quarter earnings. Put that in your energy crisis and...

- A commercial stating flatly that Pledge is not as good a product as Behl. Whoever happened to the days when brand X and Y were compared.

- Three or four commercials promoting a new national scandal sheet that is bound to catch on and probably doesn't deserve to. If the caliber of this new publication compares to the commercials that zap the television viewing public it should be one of the worst ever produced. (Unfortunately that rarely makes any difference.)

I think it's time for the television to go into the repair shop for a few months. I get more out of an evening with "Winnie the Pooh" than in fantasy land.

IT'S TIME FOR a word to a few state reps in our area: This is ERA week (Equal Rights Amendment) and pretty soon the issue of ratifying the constitutional amendment will once again be before you. Vote yes.

LITTLE LEAGUE tryouts were held last weekend in town and we almost had one little girl try out. A female took out an application for the South Side Little League but never showed up.

In these days of headlines about court suits over the question of whether or not girls should be allowed in organized baseball, it was a question considered by the coaches, managers and president of the South Side Little League before the tryouts came up.

I talked with Ed Rolo, president of the SSLL, to see what would happen. The coaches and managers, he said, decided if a girl tried out she would be treated like any other player. If she was good, she'd be picked and placed on a team.

He knew the girl in question and said she was a darn good ball player — better than some of the boys he knew.

He said the biggest problem locally was that many of the boys of Little League age just plain don't like girls. But they'd learn to cope, he added.

Ed also mentioned that if the National Little League found out a girl was allowed to play they would take away the South Side charter.

The girl didn't try out so the possible problems never materialized. Maybe we'd be better off with the problems. I'd like to see a couple of good girl ball players giving some of the boys a run for their money.

He's been a serious collector since 8

by JOE SWICKARD

Six years ago, Doug Wiltse decided to start saving his comic books instead of throwing them away.

Today, Doug, a 14-year-old freshman at Prospect High School, is a comic book devotee. His bedroom, at 102 S. Wilshire, Arlington Heights, is a haven for the pulp heroes of print.

Flash, the Fantastic Four, Captain Marvel, Superman, Wonder Woman, Batman and the rest of the incredible host of heroes are sorted by issue number and placed in files in his closets. The rare issues are encased in specially produced plastic bags designed specifically for preserving comic books.

"I like the superheroes a lot. Superman used to be my hero No. 1," Doug said.

But he learned that even super heroes change. Superman has declined, I think," he said.

Why? "They've taken away the suspense. Clark Kent doesn't look like a gentleman anymore. And they've gotten rid of Kryptonite. Now, he's only vulnerable to black magic," he said.

COLLECTORS, SUCH AS Doug, strive to gather consecutive issue numbers. As valuable as an individual issue might be, it increases when it is part of a series. But as luck would have it, Doug missed the issue when Superman managed to convert all the insidious Kryptonite into harmless lead.

Doug estimates he has about 1,000 comic books. He declined to place a value on his collection, but pointed with pride to such items as his oldest comic, "Fawcett's Funny Animals," that features a bunny with powers and abilities far beyond those of mortal hares.

Doug said the first issue of Superman and the first issue of Action Comics have the highest price among collectors. "They're probably the most famous and wanted. A lot of people want them for sentimental value, too," he said.

He said mint condition copies of these comics demand $1,000 and more.

THE CONDITION of the comic can mean the difference of hundreds of dollars to collectors. According to Doug, the cover is the most important part of the comic.

"I save them in plastic bags so they'll look top-notch," he said.

His mother is understanding of her son's avocation. She was the one who bought the filing shelves for his collection. She also said she should get him some more plastic bags.

She has also been known to question his purchases of new magazines at a clip that once reached $5 a month. Doug said he hoped his parents would come through with some subscriptions as a birthday present. "But, there are 80 comics in the DC group alone."

OTHER MEMBERS of his family have aided Doug's collection. An aunt in Florida has promised Doug the stacks of comics that had been saved by his cousin years ago.

"I've written some comic strips myself, with the help of my friends. My sister did the drawings, though. It's fun; a hobby for me. I don't think I could make a living at it — thinking up new stories every month," he said of his possible future in the field.

"I try to read all of them. But with 1,000 of them, that'd take up most of my time I need for other things," he said.

DOUG WILTSE closeted with some of his 1,000-volume comic book collection. Doug, 14, has been a serious collector since he was eight. The files in his closets are sorted by title and issue numbers.

Named to dean's list

Des Plaines student Gary Sakata, 1113 Perda Lane, has been named to the dean's list in recognition of academic accomplishments during the fall semester at Millikin University.

Tom Murphy at 'olympics'

Tom Murphy, WCFL radio disc jockey, will host opening day ceremonies of the Catholic Junior Olympics. Sponsored by St. Mary's School the olympics will be held at Maine West High School April 27 and 28 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is 25 cents.

Seniors are student teachers

Linda Frosthalm and Katherine Gardynski, both of Des Plaines and seniors at Augustana College, Rock Island, were student teaching during the recent quarter.

Linda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Frosthalm of 659 Des Plaines Ave. taught speech correction in the Davenport Public School System.

Katherine taught Spanish at Alleman High School in Rock Island. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gardynski of 90 W. Kathleen Drive.

Achieves dean's list

Des Plaines resident Patricia Tures has been named to the dean's list for the first term of the academic year at the University of Dayton, Dayton, Ohio.

To appear on the dean's list a student must achieve an academic point average of 3.5 or more out of a possible 4.0.

Parents invited to sex education talks

Parents are invited to attend two seminars on the public schools' sex education curriculum at Trinity Lutheran Church, 675 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines.

Glen Helms, principal of Algonquin Junior High School, will be the speaker May 6 at 7:30 p.m. Helms has been instrumental in instructing teachers in the Des Plaines public schools in the teaching of sex education materials.

Speaker May 13 at 7:30 p.m. will be the Rev. Ned Alsass, director of Edison Park Home, a division of Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois. Rev. Alsass will concentrate on what the church and religion have to say to help parents present their children the genuine meaning of sexuality.

Local students make good

Thirty Des Plaines students at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale have been named to the dean's list.

Students with straight A averages are: Marcia Barger, William Bluhm, Penny Freiboth, Jeanne Fuhlbrugge, Mary Gardner, Gregory Hendershot, Iris Neiman, Randall Vonitski and Mary Wolf.

Also named to the list were: Janice Bobernac, Jo Ann Bonaguidi, Kevin Byrne, Karel Celichowski, Joseph Dobson, Marlene Goodman, Judith Greenberg, David Keahn, Scott Klester, Steve Laurie Alan Lipinski and David Manning.

Kenneth Marks, Joan Mitnick, Kimberly Robe, Richard Ryndak, Howard Spiegel, Robert Vokoun, Stephen Ware, Carl Wells and Dolores Zelmeier.

Film on drug problems bought

All seven members of the High School Dist. 214 board volunteered Monday to present a film on student drug problems to community groups.

In addition, the board agreed to buy three copies of the film, titled "An Addict in Every House," which has been used for a seminar being offered this semester by three Elk Grove High School teachers for faculty and administrators in Dist. 214. The film costs about $300 a copy.

The film was shown Monday at the beginning of the Dist. 214 board meeting. It shows parents and children in drug rehabilitation programs talking about their problems and feelings. Parts of the film were made in Park Ridge and Elmhurst.

Richard Penley, one of the Elk Grove teachers running the drug seminar told the board, "The underlying basis of the film is communication." He added that when presented to groups, the film should be preceded by an introduction and followed by discussion of the issues raised.

Board Pres. Jack Costello, a member of the class, said that he felt the district could use the film for community groups, including elementary school PTA's and other organizations.

"You certainly can identify people that you have met in that film," Costello said. "I feel it could be used particularly in grade school districts for parents of small children."

Sabbatical try voted down

John McGee, sociology teacher at Prospect High School, lost by a 4-3 vote his second try to get a sabbatical leave to spend next year in northern Wisconsin.

McGee, who was turned down in a 3-3 vote by the Dist. 214 board last month, asked the board to reconsider his proposal. He said he would use the year at half pay to live and work in the small northern Wisconsin communities on the shores of Lake Superior and to read books relevant to the sociology course to compile a book of readings to be used by students when he returns.

"I've had six very good years in the district," McGee said, "and I'll continue to do a good job one way or another." However, he said he felt the year would help him to be a better teacher by giving him time to sort through materials to be used in the course.

Board Pres. Jack Costello, who was absent at the first vote, said he would vote against the sabbatical even though "I don't know any teacher in the district who has more respect from his students or has my own personal respect anymore than you do, John."

Costello said he voted against the sabbatical because "while I support the concept that a sabbatical need not be attached to further education and to further degrees — I feel this sabbatical does not address itself to the major sociological problem of our society which I consider the inner city rather than the north woods."

Music teachers to be hired

The High School Dist. 214 board has agreed to hire two teachers in order to upgrade the district's orchestra program.

The board agreed with a recommendation from Supt. Edward Gilbert that the two teachers be hired and each assigned to four of the district's schools. The teachers could then work with students to improve the orchestra program in all schools.

Although all the district schools have bands, Gilbert pointed out to the board that when orchestra students from all the district schools are brought together, they form only a 75 or 80 piece orchestra. Both Wheeling and Elk Grove high schools, Gilbert said, have "fairly good" orchestra programs but "none of our schools has an outstanding 200 piece orchestra."

Action called discriminatory

The Dist. 214 board heard Monday from residents who are not happy that students in their area were provided options in a recent boundary change shifting them from Hersey to Wheeling High School.

The group of residents of northern Mount Prospect who live between Palatine and Camp McDonald roads told the board that many of their children will be forced to shift to Wheeling from Hersey because they don't have older brothers or sisters now at Hersey.

When the area shifts from Hersey to Wheeling next year, the board has agreed to allow all students now attending Hersey to finish there and to allow younger brothers and sisters of students now at Hersey the choice of which school to attend.

Parents of children without older brothers and sisters said they believe the action is discriminatory because their children will be separated from their friends by the option. "The kids without the option are in the minority," one woman said.

In addition, Lloyd Demel, a member of the River Trails Dist. 26 board and a participant in the past boundary discussions, asked the Dist. 214 board to reconsider its action because "many people are disappointed" with the board's action and because "I think many people believe that boards will not often hear their needs."

Dist. 214 board members explained they had ordered the boundary change both to relieve overcrowding at Hersey and to increase the enrollment at Wheeling, which is projected to have a declining enrollment during the next several years.

Board members said they would give Demel their enrollment projections and will be following the enrollment figures for the two schools in the future, but said they doubted the decision would change unless projections on enrollment change dramatically.

Schools to give taxpayers a break

Taxpayers in Maine Township will get a break on their next tax bill when High School Dist. 207 lowers its levy. The district will be receiving a $91,380 grant from the state to pay off about 25 per cent of bonds due this year and will pass the savings along to real estate taxpayers.

The finance committee of Maine Township High School Dist. 207 board of education reported at the Monday night meeting that the state Capital Development Board approved the debt service grant.

The district qualified for a share of the $25 million in grants appropriated by the state legislature for school districts. The money will go to pay off a portion of $5 million worth of bonds purchased between 1969 and 1973 which are now coming due. The bonds will be paid off over a 15 to 20-year period.

According to Dist. 207 Business Mgr. Harold Markworth, $100 million has been authorized by the state for the tax relief program. A quarter of the amount is being given to school districts this year.

Markworth said Tuesday the district expects to have the money before June 30.

The district needed to levy taxes for $423,250 in bonds due this year. With the grant only $331,870 will be levied.

Markworth said the money will not have to be paid back to the state and Dist. 207 will probably apply for a second grant next year.

A percentage formula regulates the amount the state will grant to a school district, according to Markworth. The state will grant about 43 per cent of half the amount the school district would have to levy.

Board head reelected

The Dist. 207 school board reelected Robert Claus president for a one-year term. Claus, a Des Plaines resident, retained his post during a reorganization of the board Monday night. Roy Mahela was appointed vice president by Claus.

Claus then appointed board members as chairmen of various committees including: Robert "Steve" Stavrakas, chairman, education committee; Leonard Grazian, chairman, finance committee; Donald Goli and Stavrakas, directors, student activities corporation committee.

The professional staff relations committee has been subdivided into three areas. Claus will head the professional negotiations agreement sub-committee which will meet with teachers to revamp ground rules set down for negotiations teams. Grazian will head the salaries and economic benefits sub-committee which will deal with money matters during negotiations. John Means will head the meet and confer with subcommittee which serves as a link to the board for teachers. Those with questions or concerns on curriculum, educational programs and other matters can appear before the subcommittee.

No appointment was made to the public relations committee. Dist. 207 hires a professional public relations person and will appoint a board member to that committee only if needed.

Contract extended

The Dist. 207 board extended an existing agreement with Erickson, Kristmann and Stillbaugh, Inc. of Park Ridge, to include construction management fees.

The board authorized $210,108 to the architectural firm to contract with a construction management firm to build Maine North High School's addition.

Nurses rehired

School nurses in the four Maine High Schools were rehired for the 1974-75 school year. Nurses are hired on a yearly basis.

Mrs. M. Eileen Ensign and Mrs. Roberta C. Phar will remain at Maine East, Mrs. Cleo Balma at Maine North, Mrs. Bernice S. Gundelach and Mrs. Frances R. Ringl at Maine West, Mrs. Renetta Grena and Mrs. Margaret Ingrish at Maine South and Mrs. Ruth Peck-enpugh at Project Pre-Dict.

The board accepted the resignation of Kevin Carney, a special education teacher, effective June 14, and granted a one-year maternity leave for Mrs. Gretchen Denny, a home economics teacher at Maine East.

Sabbatical leaves were applied for by Alice E. Bricker, a physical education teacher at Maine East, George Drueger, a district psychologist, and Philip Love-all, an English teacher at Maine East.

At Elk Grove township meeting

Arlington Manor residents disagree on flood solution

The solution to the problem of flooding in the Arlington Manor subdivision in unincorporated Elk Grove Township may be further off than anticipated.

About 15 homeowners from the subdivision meeting last night with the Elk Grove Township Board were in disagreement over where the money to solve the problem will come from.

Elk Grove Township has already offered to finance half of the $180,000 estimated necessary to correct the problem and say the other $90,000 will have to come from the homeowners.

Many of those who attended last night's meeting and who are apparently not directly affected by the flooding problem appeared reluctant to pay the estimated $400 per lot which would make up the $90,000 homeowner share.

THOSE AT THE meeting agreed to form a homeowners' group to try and solve the problem of financing the other half of the flood relief project.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall warned residents in the area that delays in action could mean the price per homeowner would go as high as $450 to $500 due to inflation.

"You have a very bad problem," said

Hall. "We want to help you as much as we can." Many of those at the meeting seemed more interested in whether money for the project could come from other sources too, such as the village of Arlington Heights.

Only about 15 to 20 of the 224 lots in the subdivision are affected by heavy flooding during heavy rains, but increases construction now going on in the area

Oil spill that threatened Lake Briarwood cleaned up

by KURT BAER

Residents around Lake Briarwood and pollution control officers with the Metropolitan Sanitary District worked to clean up an oil spill Tuesday that threatened to pollute the 20-acre private lake.

Homeowners first detected a slick on the lake Monday and that evening threw up temporary dams along Higgins Creek in an effort to block out the oil, later traced to a new warehouse of the Boyer Rosene Moving and Storage Co., Algonquin Road and Clearbrook Drive.

A malfunctioning fuel pump had spilled hundreds of gallons of heating oil onto the floor of the warehouse building from where it had eventually leaked through the foundation to an unpaved parking lot and into a Higgins Creek connected storm sewer.

The sewer had been sealed off Tuesday and MSD pollution control officers and a representative of Abel Howe, the general contractor that built the warehouse, were supervising a vacuum collection of the trapped oil.

BUT DESPITE THE relatively fast action of the Lake Briarwood homeowners, an undetermined amount of oil did flow into the lake Monday.

State conservation officials were called out late Tuesday afternoon to sample the water and test the fish in the lake to determine the extent of the pollution.

The Mount Prospect Fire Department was summoned to the lake when residents feared the oil might be ignited. However the fire department found that there was no danger of explosion or fire.

Lake Briarwood, an unincorporated subdivision, is pocketed between Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect just north of the Tollway and west of Busse Road.

"We're satisfied with what's being done as far as the clean up, and are grateful for the help of the village and the homeowners," John Tomaras, a pollution control officer with the MSD, said.

BARBARA MAIRE, 2716 W. Briarwood Dr., said that oil had flowed into the lake "all day yesterday." The lake is stocked with fish and is also the home of a number of ducks, she said.

George Schutt, of the Abel Howe contracting company, said it was difficult to say how much oil had spilled into the storm sewer. He estimated that it may have been about 500 gallons.

The Boyer Rosene Moving and Storage Co. of Melrose Park has just started to move into the warehouse and the building was unoccupied over the weekend when the fuel oil pump began to malfunction, Schutt said.

Tomaras said the storm sewers discharge into Higgins Creek had been sealed off and there was no danger that more oil would escape from the sewer into Lake Briarwood, even in the event of rain.

Mrs. Maire said this is the first serious problem Lake Briarwood residents have had from the new Clearbrook Industrial Park. But she called it a "forewarning of what can happen."

A WORKER vacuums oil in Higgins Creek just upstream from Lake Briarwood. A wooden dam in the foreground held back much of the fuel oil.

Judith Troehler wins Harper seat—by 1 vote

One vote made the difference last night as Judith Troehler defeated Stanley Carrier and was seated on the Harper College board of trustees.

In the final official vote tally from the April 13 board election Mrs. Troehler had 1,436 votes to 1,345 for Carrier. Carrier's final total differed by five votes from his previously announced unofficial total, apparently because of an error made by judges in a Prospect Heights precinct in recording the unofficial tally.

The official tally confirmed the election of incumbent William Kelly, Robert Rausch of Hoffman Estates and Shirley Munson of Palatine.

Kelly was then elected board president by a 6 to 1 vote.

Following announcements of the tally Carrier said he would not seek a recount and added that he does not believe Mrs. Troehler will serve her full three-year term. "There will be a vacancy before the year is over," he said. "I will run for her seat when she resigns."

Mrs. Troehler, however, said that she

Judith Troehler

Stanley Carrier

fully intends to serve a full term "unless there are unforeseeable circumstances." She added, "I don't think I would resign out of frustration."

MRS. TROEHLER'S election means that the Harper board has a majority of four women. She is a student at Harper and says she intends to graduate from the school in June 1975.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Troehler was notified that Harper's attorney Frank Hines feels she might be liable to a charge of conflict of interest if she continues as a student at the college after becoming a member of the board even though two other board members served while students at the college.

The advice came in a call from College Pres. Robert Lahti. Mrs. Troehler said the information left her somewhat "shaken" at the time and added that "I wonder why they waited until today to tell me."

Hines said the law under which he has formed his opinion, Chapter 102, Section 3 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, is "admittedly vague and general." However, he said the law, combined with an opinion from the Michigan state attorney general on a similar statute and a new Illinois law providing for a non-voting student member of college boards, may be combined to indicate that a voting student member of the board would be involved in a conflict of interest.

THE LAW CITED by Hines states, in part, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws and constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly . . . in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

Hines said he focuses on the phrase "in any manner interested" and the word

"contract," and added "The relation between a college and a student is primarily contractual."

The law goes on to prohibit public officials from representing persons bidding for a contract before their organization and from accepting bribes in return for votes.

THE LEGAL opinion, Hines said, "doesn't mean the board could refuse to seat her." He said he has advised college officials of this law in the past. Two other board members have served while students at the college, Hines said, adding, "I presume that these past candidates were aware of this, but they simply disagreed with it."

However, board member Larry Moats, who was a student when he was elected to the board in 1969 said yesterday that, although at one point a college committee was formed to study the whole issue of conflict of interest, "I don't recollect that particular statute ever being brought to my attention."

'The Bard' returns for birthday

It was just a small birthday party. After all, how much excitement can a 410-year-old man take?

The immortal poet and playwright, William Shakespeare paid a visit to Elk Grove High School yesterday. Resplendent in full dress of the period, he toured the school's English classes, spouting verse and performing a scene from his play, "Hamlet," in addition to answering questions about himself.

Shakespeare's visit, which is becoming an annual event, was his third, according to Richard Calisch, head of the English and Fine Arts Division. "It's more for fun, than for its educational value," said Calisch. "Besides, it's a good excuse to bring punch and cookies to school," he added.

Although a few of the questions put to Shakespeare dealt with his life and work, most of them were of a joking nature.

"Who's familiar with Hamlet's first soliloquy?" asked the poet. "I think I ate one once," came the reply.

"I died on my birthday," Shakespeare explained. "So did my grandpa," quipped a coed.

"Have any of you read Hamlet?" the poet kept on trying. "No, but I've heard of it," came the reply from the back.

After performing his scene for what seemed like the 50th time, Shakespeare, who was really Elk Grove High graduate Jim Abb, was in a hurry to leave.

His thin Elizabethan figure disappeared down the hall. Shakespeare was late for work.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE was brought to life yesterday at Elk Grove High School. In honor of his birthday, the bard toured school English classes, and delivered speeches from "Hamlet."

Mothers Day essay deadline Friday

Deadline for submitting entries in the Elk Grove Village Jayceettes Mothers Day Essay Contest is Friday.

Children in the first through fifth grades are eligible to enter the contest that features prizes for children and mothers.

Youngsters who wish to participate in the contest may obtain entry blanks at local schools. All entries must be written on the topic "What My Mother Means To Me." The essay must be printed and should be completed in 25 words or less. All entries must be the child's own work and parents may not help youngsters with spelling, penmanship or ideas.

Jayceettes will initially screen entries and judging in three divisions will be done by Leah Cummins, plan commission member, Mary Clark, Elk Grove Village librarian and Jane Fischer Keller, program chairman of the Senior Citizens Club.

First, second and third place winners will be selected from each of the three competing divisions. The divisions are: Division 1, first graders; Division 2, second and third graders and Division 3, fourth and fifth graders.

Winners from each division will present their mothers with a corsage and each first place winner will present his mother with a bracelet and dinner for two at a local restaurant.

In addition to those prizes, winning entries will receive certificates redeemable for rides at the summer Jaycee Carnival in Elk Grove Village.

Blazing problem drives past firemen . . .

A fire drove right by the Elk Grove Village Fire Department alarm room on Biesterfeld Road at 8:45 a.m.

According to fire department reports, alarm room operators in the office on Biesterfeld, were looking through a window, spotted flames on the flat bed of a passing trailer truck and alerted a fire crew.

The burning truck, driven by Thomas Tweedy, 848 Penrith St., Elk Grove Village, stopped at Biesterfeld Road and Arlington Heights Road where firemen caught up with it and extinguished the blaze.

Fire department reports indicate there was approximately $50 worth of damage to wooden crates and pallets on the trailer bed but the truck was not damaged.

"I'd say this was probably our first sight alarm although we do get reports of fires in unusual ways sometimes," said an operator.

Horticulture catches on

Plants gaining popularity at Conant, says teacher

by KATHERINE BOYCE

If Donald Fletcher ran Conant High School he'd change the school calendar to match the seasons.

Fletcher is teaching horticulture to 45 students in two classes this semester. Nine classes have already been scheduled for next year. The course is popular at Conant and there may be several reasons why it's a favorite among students.

Plants are popular. It's part of the ecology movement, says Fletcher, and it also reflects a change in life styles today as people move from houses with large lawns to apartments and condominiums. Fletcher doesn't have to look far to see an example of that change. There used to be an open field across from the school parking lot. Today there's a housing complex.

There are "quite a few plants" in homes today, says Fletcher. People "see some worth to growing things," he says. "They're super enthusiastic just growing tomatoes and growing things on balconies. I hope they're successful."

Some of the talk surrounding the plant fad deals with the relationship between humans and plants. "I don't talk to the plants but I do love them. It makes a difference," says Fletcher. He adds, tongue in cheek, "Some of my kids talk to them and they really grow." Some students are studying the effects of sounds on plants by experimenting with different types of music.

WHATEVER THE relationship between humans and plants, Fletcher believes people have something to gain from growing things. "It's good for you," he says. Plants have a "settling influence on people. Some kids come in during their free period and just putter around."

Fletcher has been teaching horticulture as an elective course at Conant for six years and his class is the only one of its kind in the school district. He started the course after the student council asked him for assistance in a campaign to beautify the school grounds. He's a biology teacher but doesn't profess to be an expert in botany.

"I taught it because I like plants and we have a certain group of students who need something like this," Fletcher says.

Fletcher has a variety of students in his class, but he says he has "tried to get the student who has problems in school." These students need "some success that they can experience. It means a lot to them." Fletcher's way of working closely with these students may be another reason his course is so popular.

RIGHT NOW the class is growing tomatoes and green peppers in a makeshift greenhouse on the top floor of the building. When the plants are large enough to be transplanted the students will sell them from a stand in the school lobby. The class will use the money to buy more plants, soil and materials. Later this semester the class will landscape a house now being built by a construction class from Schaumburg High School.

PLANTS ALIVE! Conant High School students Sharie Ciecko and Rick McNally carefully tend their tomato plants as a project for their horticulture class, one of the school's most popular courses.

If Fletcher had his way he'd schedule his classes through the spring, summer and fall so students could spend most of their time outdoors. During the winter months they go on field trips, landscape their own houses on paper, and putter around in the plant room.

The plant room is a big attraction for students at Conant, says Fletcher. About 35 plants are owned by the school and stay in the room all the time while more are brought in by students for the semester, and others are donated to the school.

The room is filled with them — along the wall on tables, on the floor and hanging from the ceiling. There's a tall corn plant in one corner that must have been knee high two Julys ago and a vine in another corner creeping steadily across a net. In the middle of the room a tiny blue plastic swimming pool is filled with water "for effect," says Fletcher.

DURING THE SUMMER the students leave the plant room and work outside on the school lawn. The summer course is designed especially for special education students in Conant's general studies program. They clean up the grounds, plant flower beds and work in the school's nature center and are paid $1.50 per hour from state special education funds. "It gets them to work together and accept responsibility," says Fletcher.

Fletcher feels the school's horticulture class is at a "turning point." He has asked the school to build a greenhouse or remodel the plant room so the class can grow a small crop of flowers. Fletcher says he wants to "get into a serious curriculum" and offer some vocational training, such as forestry or nursery work for students who want to pursue horticulture after high school.

Superintendent's salary hike delayed

Personnel being evaluated

by JUDY JOBBITT

A professional approach at evaluating administrative personnel has delayed approval of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 superintendent's salary for next year.

During the last year, the administrative and business committee of the school board has developed an evaluation form for the superintendent. The 10-page form allows board members to rate Supt. Wayne Schaible on his performance in areas of responsibility.

In the past, the board met in executive session and discussed the strengths and weaknesses it witnessed in the superintendent's performance for the previous year.

"Ever since I came on the board I have been after a more definitive, professional method of evaluating people," said Donnie Rudd, last year's president.

"It's the first time we've used something in writing," said Arlene Czajkowski. "This way everybody is talking about the same thing."

THE EVALUATION is proceeding slowly because board members have questioned points in the form, she said. The form's questions are categorized under dedication and industriousness, directing educational activities, personnel matters, business administration, public relations, negotiations, relations with the board and participation in professional organizations.

Under the specific questions, each member had the opportunity to write additional comments about that particular area. Now board members are interpreting the results.

Rudd, then board president, summarized the members' forms and indicated the average answer for each question on a master copy. The written comments also were included in this summary.

Each board member and Schaible received a master copy. Discussion in executive session occurred from the form's results.

"I learned as we sat and discussed this thing," said past board member Sherwood Spatz. "I realized areas that I misinterpreted."

He admitted there were questions he did not feel capable of answering at first. Problems rose over the questions about the superintendent's effective use of his time.

HOWEVER, Spatz said the line of questioning helped him reach appropriate answers.

Although the questions pertained to the evaluation of the superintendent, they also allowed discussion on administrative personnel under the superintendent.

The central office administrators and the principals also were evaluated by a written form this year. Schaible evaluated these personnel and submitted his written evaluations to the board during salary negotiations.

Central office personnel and principals received salary increases averaging about 10 per cent.

Besides the performance evaluation, principals developed an objective plan form for next year. Each principal will state goals for the coming year, the purpose of the goals, procedures, resources needed, cost estimates an estimated time schedule for completion. The success in meeting goals will be included in the next year's performance evaluation.

THE OVERALL intent of the new evaluation procedure is to give personnel guidelines for improvement said Rudd. "Before we would just discuss. We never really evaluated. It was not a business-like function. In business you have forms to guide you."

Although all evaluation forms are in the infancy stage, he said "it is a good start." Now the board intends to follow through with this year's forms as a basis for evaluating administrators next year.

APPROVAL FOR Schaible's salary will be delayed further until the two new board members, Margaret Pageler and Esther Karras, become familiar with the form and past discussion on its results.

Subdivision homeowners disagree on flood solution will most likely increase the problem.

THE FIRST PROBLEM facing the homeowners' group will be getting all subdivision lot owners behind the project by informing them of the potential flooding problems they'll face. Last year, the township authorized an engineering study that recommended solutions to the flooding.

The engineers recommended installing a storm sewer system that would take water from the Arlington Heights outfall and the area streets to a nearby Mount Prospect stormwater line.

The Arlington Manor subdivision is a semi-developed area consisting of 224 lots, bounded by Magnolia Drive on the north, Cypress Lane on the south, Douglas Avenue on the east and Arlington Heights Road on the west. It lies just northwest of the Hatlen Heights subdivision.

The township hopes to hook up the proposed sewer line to an existing one belonging to the Village of Mount Prospect. However, some controversy exists between the village and township over the connection and there may be a future dispute over that issue.

New ethics code may force Moody to resign post

Thomas Moody must resign from the Palatine Plan Commission or refuse all engineering contracts within the village as a result of new ethics standards adopted by the Palatine Village Board.

The resignation of Moody was called for last week by Trustee Richard W. Fonte because of what Fonte charged was a conflict of interest between Moody's position as plan commission chairman and his job as a Palatine engineer.

The new standards, aimed at eliminating potential conflicts of interest, prohibit from serving on the plan commission any person who is paid for services on a plan, project or development which will be before the plan commission for approval. The village board unanimously adopted the new standards which amend the current municipal code.

Moody said Tuesday he is "still mulling the situation over." His alternative to resigning is to decline all engineering contracts with the village, a restriction he has previously indicated he could not accept.

MOODY WAS APPOINTED to the plan commission in 1959 and has served as chairman since 1962. He is also a partner in the civil engineering firm of Murry and Moody.

During his 15-year tenure on the plan commission, Moody has disqualified himself from all matters coming before the commission which he thought posed a possible conflict of interest with his engineering work on developments.

Fonte has challenged the disqualification is not enough since Moody's connection with a developer, especially when he testifies as an engineer before the plan commission, may influence the decision of the remaining plan commissioners.

Several trustees indicated they believe a conflict of interest existed with real estate brokers serving on the zoning board of appeals. The new ethics standards, which also apply to zoning board members, do not go far enough, said Trustee James Shaw.

Trustee Shaw and others pointed out the new standards would not apply to all real estate situations since a broker might not become the agent for the sale of a parcel until after the parcel had been approved for rezoning by the ZBA.

John Nelson and Thomas LaDore are the two brokers serving on the seven-member zoning board.

Fonte said he had directed Village Atty. Bradley Glass to look into the real estate question and draft an ordinance that would eliminate all conflict of interest situations.

The village board has the ability to adopt the new ethics standards under home-rule powers granted to municipalities with a population of 25,000 or more. Fonte said the village's new standards would clear questionable areas in the Illinois Corrupt Practices Act.

In addition to further clarification on who can serve on village boards and commissions, the board is considering the adoption of an income disclosure act which would be more stringent than the current state income disclosure requirements.

Police-fire pay difference eliminated

A more than $500 salary discrepancy between the starting pay for Palatine police and firemen has been eliminated.

The Palatine Village Board Monday unanimously approved a salary adjustment for firemen, raising the starting salary to $12,090, the same as policemen.

The board also approved the positions and salaries for fire lieutenants and deputy fire chief. The deputy chief will receive an additional $1,000 annually. Fire lieutenant salaries will range from $15,704 to $16,536.

The 1974-75 village budget calls for the hiring of three additional firemen, promotion of three full-time firemen to lieutenants and creation of the deputy chief position. All are steps aimed at converting the Palatine Fire Department from a volunteer to a full-time fire department.

Notified that Harper's attorney Frank Hines feels she might be liable to a charge of conflict of interest if she continues as a student at the college after becoming a member of the board even though two other board members served while students at the college.

The advice came in a call from College Pres. Robert Lahti. Mrs. Troehler said the information left her somewhat "shaken" at the time and added that "I won-fully intends to serve a full term "unless there are unforeseeable circumstances." She added, "I don't think I would resign out of frustration."

MRS. TROEHLER'S election means that the Harper board has a majority of four women. She is a student at Harper and says she intends to graduate from the school in June 1975.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Troehler was Village to stay in anti-drug agency despite criticism

Palatine will continue to participate in the Metropolitan Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs Enforcement Group (MEG), a countywide drug-enforcement agency, despite recent criticism of MEG's effectiveness.

The Palatine Village Board Monday authorized Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig to sign an agreement for Palatine to continue in the MEG program for another year. Palatine has been a member of the intergovernmental drug enforcement cooperative since it was formed in 1970.

Under the terms of the agreement, the village assigns one full-time police officer to MEG whose annual salary of $15,129 is paid by the village. The Palatine Police Department will continue to be responsible for controlling illicit drug traffic within Palatine, in addition to MEG.

TRUSTEE FRED H. ZAJONC voted against continuing in MEG another year, citing a recent study which labeled the program ineffective and a waste of the taxpayers' money.

The MEG program has been controversial in Palatine for the past year since former Police Chief Robert R. Centner recommended the village withdraw from the program because it was ineffective.

Laxity in enforcing drug abuse laws was one of the main reasons cited by the village board for the removal of Centner as police chief last June.

In this week's public hearing into the reasons for Centner's removal as chief, John A. Webster, a criminology professor at the University of Illinois Circle Campus, supported Centner's contention that MEG was ineffective.

Webster, who completed a study of MEG in February that was commissioned by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, testified he felt the program was expensive and ineffective and recommended state funding for MEG be discontinued.

Other adjustments in the salaries of village employees will be made after the completion of a job classification study.

$200,000 to finance new sewers

Palatine Township will issue more than $200,000 in revenue bonds to finance a new sewer system for residents of the Lake Park Estates subdivision.

Township Auditor Donald Bellm, also a Lake Park Estates resident, said Tuesday the estimated cost of the project is between $200,000 and $250,000. The bonds will be paid off by residents of the subdivision through the cost of sewer hookups. Bellm said each of the 78 homeowners in the subdivision will pay $2,100.

The area now is served by septic systems and Bellm said "the soil is saturated to a point where it can't take any more." We will create a separate agency and there will be no obligation on the township's general revenue or tax money," he said.

Township Atty. Richard Cowen will prepare enabling legislation for the township board of auditors to formally approve in May.

A SIMILAR sewer bond was set up in Northfield Township, where the Northfield Township Board authorized bonds for sewers in unincorporated subdivisions.

The Village of Palatine had been trying to annex the Lake Park Estates subdivision but homeowners rejected the proposal in March. One of the reasons for the homeowners' decision apparently was displeasure with the village's approval of a Ramada Inn on the site of Uncle Andy's Cow Palace, which is adjacent to the subdivision.

The Cook County Board turned down the Ramada Inn plans but the Palatine Village Board approved a preannexation agreement to build the motel if the land can be annexed.

Police new look - 'midnight blue'

Palatine policemen will be stepping out in new midnight blue uniforms this spring.

The Palatine Village Board on Monday accepted the low bid of $22,132 from Advance Uniform for the new uniforms. The bid was the lowest of four received.

The Palatine Police Department is currently outfitted in khaki green uniforms.

"I feel strongly that the change in uniform will have a significant effect on the morale of the department and will reflect a more professional appearance to the citizens of our community," stated Palatine Police Chief Jerry Bratcher.

Firemen raise $685 for kidney sufferer

Palatine firemen raised more than $685 during a weekend benefit car wash for a Palatine boy who needs new kidneys.

The money will be added to the $298.80 already in the fund at the Schaumburg State Bank for Bobby Humm, a seven-year-old diabetic whose kidneys have been severely damaged by year-long bouts with a vascular disease and strep throat.

Firemen are planning a special celebration for Bobby, although a date has not been set.

Judith Troehler wins Harper seat—by 1 vote

One vote made the difference last night as Judith Troehler defeated Stanley Carrier and was seated on the Harper College board of trustees.

In the final official vote tally from the April 13 board election Mrs. Troehler had 1,436 votes to 1,345 for Carrier. Carrier's final total differed by five votes from his previously announced unofficial total, apparently because of an error made by judges in a Prospect Heights precinct in recording the unofficial tally.

The official tally confirmed the election of incumbent William Kelly, Robert Rausch of Hoffman Estates and Shirley Munson of Palatine.

Kelly was then elected board president by a 6 to 1 vote.

Following announcements of the tally Carrier said he would not seek a recount and added that he does not believe Mrs. Troehler will serve her full three-year term. "There will be a vacancy before the year is over," he said. "I will run for her seat when she resigns."

Mrs. Troehler, however, said that she

der why they waited until today to tell me."

Hines said the law under which he has formed his opinion, Chapter 102, Section 3 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, is "admittedly vague and general." However, he said the law, combined with an opinion from the Michigan state attorney general on a similar statute and a new Illinois law providing for a non-voting student member of college boards, may be combined to indicate that a voting student member of the board would be involved in a conflict of interest.

THE LAW CITED by Hines states, in part, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws and constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly . . . in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

Hines said he focuses on the phrase "in any manner interested" and the word

"contract," and added "The relation between a college and a student is primarily contractual."

The law goes on to prohibit public officials from representing persons bidding for a contract before their organization and from accepting bribes in return for votes.

"THE LEGAL opinion, Hines said, 'doesn't mean the board could refuse to seat her.' He said he has advised college officials of this law in the past. Two other board members have served while students at the college, Hines said, adding, 'I presume that these past candidates were aware of this, but they simply disagreed with it.'"

However, board member Larry Moats, who was a student when he was elected to the board in 1969 said yesterday that, although at one point a college committee was formed to study the whole issue of conflict of interest, "I don't recollect that particular statute ever being brought to my attention."

Trustees decide to fight rezones

Objections will be filed by the Village of Palatine to two rezoning requests currently pending before the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

The village will oppose the rezoning of a 4.5-acre site on the northwest corner of Quentin Road and Wood Street from single family, to manufacturing. The zoning change is being sought to permit the construction of a contractor's office, shop and yard for Two W's Black Top Inc. of Palatine. The rezoning request has met with strong opposition from homeowners in the area.

The other rezoning request is for a 240-unit apartment complex called The Lagoons, on Hicks Road north of Dundee Road. The village is opposing the project because of its density. The village's master plan calls for low-to mid-rise apartments with approximately 12 units per acre to be constructed on the parcel.

Filing of the statutory objections now necessitates a two-thirds vote of the Cook County Board to approve the projects instead of a simple majority.

Committee appointments

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones has made new appointments to the village board's six standing committees. The committee assignments are:

- Communications and Public Relations — Trustees Philip Stern, Fred H. Zajonc and Robert J. Guss Jr.
- Administration, Finance and Legislation — Trustees Richard W. Fonte, Bryan P. Coughlin Jr. and Stern.
- Planning, Building and Zoning — Trustees Coughlin, Guss and Zajonc.
- Health, Safety and Welfare — Trustees James Shaw, Stern and Fonte.
- Flood Control — Trustees Guss, Coughlin and Shaw.
- Streets and Traffic — Trustees Zajonc, Fonte and Shaw.

Liquor license restrictions

Restrictions are expected to be placed on the number of liquor licenses issued to package liquor stores in Palatine.

The Palatine Village Board on Monday directed Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig to draft an ordinance restricting the number of Class B liquor licenses to the current 11 licenses.

The effect of the proposed ordinance would be to have Jones, who serves as liquor commissioner, and the board consider each request for a class B liquor license individually since an amendment to the ordinance would be required to issue a license.

Trustees Philip Stern and Richard W. Fonte opposed drafting an ordinance restricting the number of Class B liquor licenses. Trustees Robert J. Guss Jr., James Shaw and Fred H. Zajonc and Jones voted to have the ordinance drafted.

Annex petition denied

An annexation petition for an 8.5-acre parcel the Metropolitan Sanitary District plans to purchase has been denied by the Palatine Village Board.

Ralph Marcotte, owner of the parcel on the northeast corner of Wilson Street and Merrill Avenue, had petitioned the village to annex the parcel last fall. Marcotte had offered to make a $10,000 contribution to the village in exchange for the annexation.

The village board had previously stated the parcel would not be annexed to the village if the annexation would result in MSD having to pay more for the parcel.

The MSD board of trustees has passed an ordinance authorizing the purchase of Marcotte's land which will be used for water retention and recreation.

Trustee Zajonc passed on the motion to deny annexation.

Zoners to weigh steak house

A request for rezoning to permit the construction of a Ponderosa Steak House has been referred to the Palatine Zoning Board of Appeals for a recommendation.

The zoning change is being requested for a parcel on the corner of Williams Avenue and Northwest Highway. The property is currently zoned residential, and the request is to rezone it for business, with a special use to permit a restaurant.

Retiring cop honored

WENDELL E. Jones presented former Palatine Patrolman Frank Incapero with a retirement badge on Monday.

Incapero joined the Palatine Police Department in 1954 and served nearly 20 years as a patrolman before retiring last July.

Law Day proclaimed

Jones has proclaimed that May 1 will be observed as Law Day USA in Palatine. This year marks the 17th annual nationwide observance of Law Day USA.

Tree plantings Friday

Trees will be planted at Hunting Ridge School and Joel Wood School in Palatine by village officials on Friday as part of Arbor Day ceremonies.

PTA notes

New officers for the Palatine Hills Junior High School PTSA will be elected and installed at the next school PTSA meeting beginning at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the school, 1100 N. Smith St.

Those nominated are Rena Heil, president; Geri Lange, first vice president; Bill Webster, second vice president; Peggy Lowe, secretary and Pat Lloyd, treasurer.

Following the installation will be "Gym Jamboree," a show in which junior high school students perform gymnastic feats.

PTA officer elections at Hunting Ridge School recently resulted in the reelection of three officers and the election of three new board members for one-year terms.

The three new members are Mrs. Donald Moranos of Hoffman Estates, president; Mrs. Daniel Pelletiere, of Palatine, first vice president and Mrs. Jerry Edwards of Hoffman Estates, treasurer.

Incumbents elected to a second one-year term are John Casey, second vice president; Mrs. Patrick King, recording secretary, and Mrs. Robert Callahan. All three live in Palatine.

Lake Briarwood residents clean up oil spill

by KURT BAER

Residents around Lake Briarwood and pollution control officers with the Metropolitan Sanitary District worked to clean up an oil spill Tuesday that threatened to pollute the 20-acre private lake.

Homeowners first detected a slick on the lake Monday and that evening threw up temporary dams along Higgins Creek in an effort to block out the oil, later traced to a new warehouse of the Boyer Rosene Moving and Storage Co., Algonquin Road and Clearbrook Drive.

A malfunctioning fuel pump had spilled hundreds of gallons of heating oil onto the floor of the warehouse building from where it had eventually leaked through the foundation to an unpaved parking lot and into a Higgins Creek connected storm sewer.

The sewer had been sealed off Tuesday and MSD pollution control officers and a representative of Abel Howe, the general contractor that built the warehouse, were supervising a vacuum collection of the trapped oil.

BUT DESPITE THE relatively fast action of the Lake Briarwood homeowners, an undetermined amount of oil did flow into the lake Monday.

State conservation officials were called out late Tuesday afternoon to sample the water and test the fish in the lake to determine the extent of the pollution.

The Mount Prospect Fire Department was summoned to the lake when residents feared the oil might be ignited. However the fire department found that there was no danger of explosion or fire.

Lake Briarwood, an unincorporated subdivision, is pocketed between Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect just north of the Tollway and west of Busse Road.

"We're satisfied with what's being done as far as the clean up, and are grateful for the help of the village and the homeowners," John Tomaras, a pollution control officer with the MSD, said.

BARBARA MAIRE, 2716 W. Briarwood Dr., said that oil had flowed into the lake "all day yesterday." The lake is stocked with fish and is also the home of a number of ducks, she said.

George Schutt, of the Abel Howe contracting company, said it was difficult to say how much oil had spilled into the storm sewer. He estimated that it may have been about 500 gallons.

The Boyer Rosene Moving and Storage Co. of Metrose Park has just started to move into the warehouse and the building was unoccupied over the weekend when the fuel oil pump began to malfunction, Schutt said.

Tomaras said the storm sewers discharge into Higgins Creek had been sealed off and there was no danger that more oil would escape from the sewer into Lake Briarwood, even in the event of rain.

Mrs. Maire said this is the first serious problem Lake Briarwood residents have had from the new Clearbrook Industrial Park. But she called it a "forewarning of what can happen."

Village holds up building permits for new library

Building permits for the new Palatine Public Library are being held up by the Village pending final approval of plans to develop the library site and an adjacent five acres.

The problem is the library bought two acres of a seven-acre parcel which had been approved for a planned unit development. Since the library was not part of the original planning, the ordinance must be amended before building permits can be issued to start construction.

The zoning board of appeals has scheduled a special meeting for May 9 to hear the request to change the ordinance for the entire seven-acre site at the intersection of Northwest Highway and Benton Street to include the library. The ZBA will forward its recommendation to the village board for action on May 13.

The technicality is not expected to result in any delay since construction work on the library was not scheduled to begin until mid-May. The building department can issue permits to the library for the demolition of two houses on the site.

Library board to study bids Thursday

A special meeting of the Palatine Library Board to consider bids on the construction of a new library has been rescheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday at the library, 149 N. Brockway St.

The new library, approved by voters in a $1.3 million referendum in November, will be built at Benton Avenue and Northwest Highway.

School to plant tree

Joel Wood School has selected Arbor Day or April 26 for the planting of the tree it won on school recycling day. Palatine Village Mgr. Anton Harwig will speak at the 10 a.m. tree planting ceremony on the school grounds.

Scouts encourage recycling

Palatine Girl Scouts have been distributing door hangers encouraging residents to recycle newspapers, bottles and cans on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the landfill site on Smith Street near Northwest Highway. The Girl Scouts will be staffing the center as part of their participation in Keep America Beautiful Week.

Meyer breaks tie; city will refuse township funds

On a breaking vote cast by Mayor Roland Meyer, the Rolling Meadows City Council last night voted to decline $1,538 in federal revenue sharing funds from Palatine Township for the city fire department.

The vote came after township officials admitted to city officials that the funds technically could only be used to assist residents of Palatine Township and would therefore eliminate the city department from using equipment purchased with the funds to aid city residents living outside the township.

While city limits north of Central Road lie within Palatine Township, city limits south of Central Road lie in Elk Grove Township. The Meadow Trace apartment complex lies in Schaumburg Township.

The funds had been offered by the township board for the city paramedic program as part of a program to disburse some township revenue sharing funds to fire departments within the township.

The city fire committee had recommended that the city respectfully decline the funds, urging the township instead use the funds to lower its tax rate, to benefit city residents. Meyer, who has opposed the township politically, had also urged the council to decline the funds, calling them a "hand out."

THE COUNCIL'S 10 aldermen split evenly when a vote on the matter was taken, with Aldermen Thomas Scanlan (1st), Merrill Wuerch (1st), William Ahrens (2nd), John Rock (3rd) and Daniel Weber (4th) voting to decline the funds. Voting to accept them were Aldermen Thomas Waldron (2nd), Stephen Eberhard (3rd), James Huddleston (4th), Kenneth Retzke (5th) and Fredrick Jacobson (5th).

Meyer cast the deciding sixth vote against taking the funds.

Before the vote, Scanlan read a letter from city Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty which quoted Township Supervisor Howard Olsen as saying the funds could only be used for Palatine Township residents.

LISTON PENNINGTON, a member of the township board, told the council he did not think the intent was to restrict the funding use to the township limits. He added that if the city refused the funds, they would not be used to lower taxing rates but instead would be divided among other fire departments in the township.

However, township auditor Donald Beltrami could not refute the statement attributed to Olsen, only saying that restricting the funds for the city would be "hair-splitting" and could lead to a circumstance such as the incident surrounding the death of Mrs. Gary Pettie of unincorporated Elk Grove township.

Mrs. Pettie was refused ambulance service by the village of Elk Grove because her family had not contracted for the service.

But Weber said that "hair-splitting" could not be avoided in deciding the matter. "We have belabored this problem of inter-governmental relations before and it's a philosophical question: It's not political question as some have tried to say it is. It's labeled as being political and it's not; it's philosophical and I will vote against receiving these funds."

The funds will now likely be divided between the other fire departments in the township — including Palatine, Barrington and Hoffman Estates, if those towns accept the funds.

Christian fellowship unit plans meeting

A noon luncheon meeting at the Holiday Inn of Rolling Meadows will be held May 8 for the Rolling Meadows area chapter of the Christian Businessmen's Committee.

Guest speaker for the meeting will be Wallace A. Erickson, president and owner of Wallace A. Erickson Co., a manufacturer of chemicals for the dental, medical and pharmaceutical fields. He is a past president of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship.

Cost of the luncheon is $3. The public is invited.

The local CBMC chapter was recently formed as part of the CBMC International. Officers are Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case; Robert Campbell; Rolling Meadows Public Works Supt. John Hennessy; Elk Grove Village Police Chief Harry Jenkins; Bill McMinn; Michael Riddle, and Harry Cochenour.

FANNING HIS SHIP on to a hoped-for victory is Rolling Meadows Cub Scout Tom Short. Tom, along with other members of Cub Scout Pack 180 took part in a trial regatta race this week and will compete in a final regatta at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Jonas Salk School, 3705 Pheasant Dr. Trophies will be awarded.

Parks tentatively accept $553,325 budget

A $553,325 budget was accepted by a committee-of-the-whole of the Rolling Meadows Park District board last night. No residents spoke up to protest the 1974-75 budget during the hearing.

Formal approval of the budget is expected at the next park board meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. May 8 at the park district administration office.

The new budget is down 8 per cent from last year's $601,650 budget.

According to park officials, the 8 per cent decrease will only affect taxes slightly. No specific figures on the district's tax base for next year are available, according to Steve Person, supt. of parks and recreation.

MOST OF THE decrease in this year's budget is the result of cuts in the spring and summer park programming. The spring and summer ice skating program has been dropped for this year.

Another reason for the decrease is that the park district will be purchasing less playground and recreational equipment this year. Last year the park district budgeted a total $26,100 for equipment. The new budget shows only $2,200 for equipment.

Although the spring and summer skating program has been dropped, money for additional ice skating programs next fall and winter has been increased. The budget shows an increase of $1,500 in wages for ice arena instructors.

Additional money has been budgeted to provide for a larger variety of park district classes. New courses might be established in belly dancing, crocheting and volleyball, according to Person.

Another large increase in cost is reflected in the money budgeted for chemicals. Chlorine gas, a chemical used in swimming pools to purify the water, will probably cost double what it did last year, according to estimates.

Other park districts, such as Chicago, have reported difficulties in getting the necessary supply of chlorine gas, but Person said Rolling Meadows has been assured of obtaining enough for its needs.

The money budgeted for pool materials and supplies has increased $4,000. Last year $2,000 was budgeted and this year's cost is estimated at $6,000.

City chipper in operation to April 28

Chipping of branches and twigs left on parkways in the central part of Rolling Meadows will continue now through April 28.

Residents living in the area bounded by Wilke Road, Kirchoff Road, Salt Creek and Central Road as well as the Waverly Park area and the subdivision at Algonquin and Golf Roads will be serviced by the city chipper through April 28. Persons with branches or twigs which they wish removed should leave the bundles on their parkways for pickup.

The chipper will not be in the area again until June 11. Persons who miss the chipping date may bring their branches to the public works building, 3200 Central Road, for removal.

Beginning Monday and through May 12 the chipper will service the 1st Ward area bounded by Euclid Avenue, Rohlfing Road, Kirchoff Road and Salt Creek and also the Plum Grove Countryside subdivision.

Future chipping dates and areas to be covered will be published as they occur throughout the summer. For additional information, residents should contact the public works department.

Physician gets probation for tax evasion

An Arlington Heights physician was sentenced Tuesday in U.S. District Court to three years' probation for two counts of income tax evasion.

Dr. Peter L. Sengson Jr. will serve the first 90 days of the sentence in prison, according to Assistant U.S. Atty. Donald Shrine. He will begin serving the sentence June 4, Shrine said.

Sengson was indicted Feb. 25 in federal court for evading income taxes for 1967, 1968 and 1969. On March 12, Dr. Sengson pleaded guilty to the 1967 and 1969 counts and the government dropped the 1968 charge, Shrine said.

Shrine said Sengson claimed a taxable income of $12,500 for both 1967 and 1969. The government said he actually had a taxable income of $22,640 in 1967 and $52,158 in 1969.

Sengson was sentenced by Judge William J. Bauer, who granted a delay in the execution of the sentence until June 4.

Shrine said it is not known at this time where Sengson will serve his time in custody.

Sengson, whose practice was limited to obstetrics and gynecology, had offices at the Northwest Suburban Medical Building, in Arlington Heights, and at Weathersfield Common in Schaumburg.

Tree planting planned

The planting of some 200 trees to replace diseased trees and add trees to previously unplanted areas will begin this spring.

Some of the new planting areas will include parkways along Barker Avenue and Central Road.

City, state to share costs of new lights

The installation of traffic lights at Golf Road and the planned New Wilke Road extension will be funded jointly by the state and Rolling Meadows.

City Engineer James Muldowney told members of the city public works-building and zoning committee Monday that the state has agreed to pay two-thirds of the $48,000 cost of the lights. The remaining one-third will be paid by the city.

The extension of New Wilke from Algonquin Road south to Golf Road in Rolling Meadows is expected to be completed this fall, Muldowney said. The traffic control lights will be installed as part of the work. The entire $48,000 cost of the lights will be initially paid by the city, with two-thirds of the cost, approximately $32,000, to be later reimbursed to the city by the state.

Judith Troehler wins Harper seat—by 1 vote

One vote made the difference last night as Judith Troehler defeated Stanley Carrier and was seated on the Harper College board of trustees.

In the final official vote tally from the April 13 board election Mrs. Troehler had 1,438 votes to 1,345 for Carrier. Carrier's final total differed by five votes from his previously announced unofficial total, apparently because of an error made by judges in a Prospect Heights precinct in recording the unofficial tally.

The official tally confirmed the election of incumbent William Kelly, Robert Rausch of Hoffman Estates and Shirley Munson of Palatine.

Kelly was then elected board president by a 6 to 1 vote.

Following announcements of the tally Carrier said he would not seek a recount and added that he does not believe Mrs. Troehler will serve her full three-year term. "There will be a vacancy before the year is over," he said. "I will run for her seat when she resigns."

Mrs. Troehler, however, said that she

Judith Troehler

Stanley Carrier

fully intends to serve a full term "unless there are unforeseeable circumstances." She added, "I don't think I would resign out of frustration."

MRS. TROEHLER'S election means that the Harper board has a majority of four women. She is a student at Harper and says she intends to graduate from the school in June 1975.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Troehler was notified that Harper's attorney Frank Hines feels she might be liable to a charge of conflict of interest if she continues as a student at the college after becoming a member of the board even though two other board members served while students at the college.

The advice came in a call from College Pres. Robert Lahti. Mrs. Troehler said the information left her somewhat "shaken" at the time and added that "I wonder why they waited until today to tell me."

Hines said the law under which he has formed his opinion, Chapter 102, Section 3 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, is "admittedly vague and general." However, he said the law, combined with an opinion from the Michigan state attorney general on a similar statute and a new Illinois law providing for a non-voting student member of college boards, may be combined to indicate that a voting student member of the board would be involved in a conflict of interest.

THE LAW CITED by Hines states, in part, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws and constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly . . . in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

Hines said he focuses on the phrase "in any manner interested" and the word

"contract," and added "The relation between a college and a student is primarily contractual."

The law goes on to prohibit public officials from representing persons bidding for a contract before their organization and from accepting bribes in return for votes.

THE LEGAL opinion, Hines said, "doesn't mean the board could refuse to seat her." He said he has advised college officials of this law in the past. Two other board members have served while students at the college, Hines said, adding, "I presume that these past candidates were aware of this, but they simply disagreed with it."

However, board member Larry Moats, who was a student when he was elected to the board in 1969 said yesterday that, although at one point a college committee was formed to study the whole issue of conflict of interest, "I don't recollect that particular statute ever being brought to my attention."

Dist. 214 wrapup

Film on drug problems bought

All seven members of the High School Dist. 214 board volunteered Monday to present a film on student drug problems to community groups.

In addition, the board agreed to buy three copies of the film, titled "An Addict in Every House," which has been used for a seminar being offered this semester by three Elk Grove High School teachers for faculty and administrators in Dist. 214. The film costs about $300 a copy.

The film was shown Monday at the beginning of the Dist. 214 board meeting. It shows parents and children in drug rehabilitation programs talking about their problems and feelings. Parts of the film were made in Park Ridge and Elmhurst.

Richard Penley, one of the Elk Grove teachers running the drug seminar told the board, "The underlying basis of the film is communication." He added that when presented to groups, the film should be preceded by an introduction and followed by discussion of the issues raised.

Board Pres. Jack Costello, a member of the class, said that he felt the district could use the film for community groups, including elementary school PTA's and other organizations.

"You certainly can identify people that you have met in that film," Costello said. "I feel it could be used particularly in grade school districts for parents of small children."

Sabbatical try voted down

John McGee, sociology teacher at Prospect High School, lost by a 4-3 vote his second try to get a sabbatical leave to spend next year in northern Wisconsin.

McGee, who was turned down in a 3-3 vote by the Dist. 214 board last month, asked the board to reconsider his proposal. He said he would use the year at half pay to live and work in the small northern Wisconsin communities on the shores of Lake Superior and to read books relevant to the sociology course to compile a book of readings to be used by students when he returns.

"I've had six very good years in the district," McGee said, "and I'll continue to do a good job one way or another." However, he said he felt the year would help him to be a better teacher by giving him time to sort through materials to be used in the course.

Board Pres. Jack Costello, who was absent at the first vote, said he would vote against the sabbatical even though "I don't know any teacher in the district who has more respect from his students or has my own personal respect anymore than you do, John."

Costello said he voted against the sabbatical because "while I support the concept that a sabbatical need not be attached to further education and to further degrees — I feel this sabbatical does not address itself to the major sociological problem of our society which I consider the inner city rather than the north woods."

Music teachers to be hired

The High School Dist. 214 board has agreed to hire two teachers in order to upgrade the district's orchestra program.

The board agreed with a recommendation from Supt. Edward Gilbert that the two teachers be hired and each assigned to four of the district's schools. The teachers could then work with students to improve the orchestra program in all schools.

Although all the district schools have bands, Gilbert pointed out to the board that when orchestra students from all the district schools are brought together, they form only a 75 or 80 piece orchestra. Both Wheeling and Elk Grove high schools, Gilbert said, have "fairly good" orchestra programs but "none of our schools has an outstanding 200 piece orchestra."

Action called discriminatory

The Dist. 214 board heard Monday from residents who are not happy that students in their area were provided options in a recent boundary change shifting them from Hersey to Wheeling High School.

The group of residents of northern Mount Prospect who live between Palatine and Camp McDonald roads told the board that many of their children will be forced to shift to Wheeling from Hersey because they don't have older brothers or sisters now at Hersey.

When the area shifts from Hersey to Wheeling next year, the board has agreed to allow all students now attending Hersey to finish there and to allow younger brothers and sisters of students now at Hersey the choice of which school to attend.

Parents of children without older brothers and sisters said they believe the action is discriminatory because their children will be separated from their friends by the option. "The kids without the option are in the minority," one woman said.

In addition, Lloyd Demel, a member of the River Trails Dist. 26 board and a participant in the past boundary discussions, asked the Dist. 214 board to reconsider its action because "many people are disappointed" with the board's action and because "I think many people believe that boards will not often hear their needs."

Dist. 214 board members explained they had ordered the boundary change both to relieve overcrowding at Hersey and to increase the enrollment at Wheeling, which is projected to have a declining enrollment during the next several years.

Board members said they would give Demel their enrollment projections and will be following the enrollment figures for the two schools in the future, but said they doubted the decision would change unless projections on enrollment change dramatically.

A WORKER vacuums oil in Higgins Creek just upstream from Lake Briarwood. A wooden dam in the foreground held back much of the fuel oil.

Oil spill that threatened Lake Briarwood cleaned up

by KURT BAER

Residents around Lake Briarwood and pollution control officers with the Metropolitan Sanitary District worked to clean up an oil spill Tuesday that threatened to pollute the 29-acre private lake.

Homeowners first detected a slick on the lake Monday and that evening threw up temporary dams along Higgins Creek in an effort to block out the oil, later traced to a new warehouse of the Boyer Rosene Moving and Storage Co., Algonquin Road and Clearbrook Drive.

A malfunctioning fuel pump had spilled hundreds of gallons of heating oil onto the floor of the warehouse building from where it had eventually leaked through the foundation to an unpaved parking lot and into a Higgins Creek connected storm sewer.

The sewer had been sealed off Tuesday and MSD pollution control officers and a representative of Abel Howe, the general contractor that built the warehouse, were supervising a vacuum collection of the trapped oil.

BUT DESPITE THE relatively fast action of the Lake Briarwood homeowners, an undetermined amount of oil did flow into the lake Monday.

State conservation officials were called out late Tuesday afternoon to sample the water and test the fish in the lake to determine the extent of the pollution.

The Mount Prospect Fire Department was summoned to the lake when residents feared the oil might be ignited. However the fire department found that there was no danger of explosion or fire.

Lake Briarwood, an unincorporated subdivision, is pocketed between Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect just north of the Tollway and west of Busse Road.

"We're satisfied with what's being done as far as the clean up, and are grateful for the help of the village and the homeowners," John Tomaras, a pollution control officer with the MSD, said.

BARBARA MAIRE, 2716 W. Briarwood Dr., said that oil had flowed into the lake "all day yesterday." The lake is stocked with fish and is also the home of a number of ducks, she said.

George Schutt, of the Abel Howe contracting company, said it was difficult to say how much oil had spilled into the storm sewer. He estimated that it may have been about 500 gallons.

The Boyer Rosene Moving and Storage Co. of Melrose Park has just started to move into the warehouse and the building was unoccupied over the weekend when the fuel oil pump began to malfunction, Schutt said.

Tomaras said the storm sewers discharge into Higgins Creek had been sealed off and there was no danger that more oil would escape from the sewer into Lake Briarwood, even in the event of rain.

Mrs. Maire said this is the first serious problem Lake Briarwood residents have had from the new Clearbrook Industrial Park. But she called it a "forewarning of what can happen."

Homeowners differ on flood solution

The solution to the problem of flooding in the Arlington Manor subdivision in unincorporated Elk Grove Township may be further off than anticipated.

About 35 homeowners from the subdivision meeting last night with the Elk Grove Township Board were in disagreement over where the money to solve the problem will come from.

Elk Grove Township has already offered to finance half of the $180,000 estimated necessary to correct the problem and say the other $90,000 will have to come from the homeowners.

Many of those who attended last night's meeting and who are apparently not directly affected by the flooding problem appeared reluctant to pay the estimated $400 per lot which would make up the $90,000 homeowner share.

THOSE AT THE meeting agreed to form a homeowners' group to try and solve the problem of financing the other half of the flood relief project.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall warned residents in the area that delays in action could mean the price per homeowner would go as high as $450 to $500 due to inflation.

"You have a very bad problem," said

Hall. "We want to help you as much as we can." Many of those at the meeting seemed more interested in whether money for the project could come from other sources too, such as the village of Arlington Heights.

Only about 15 to 20 of the 224 lots in the subdivision are affected by heavy flooding during heavy rains, but increases construction now going on in the area will most likely increase the problem.

THE FIRST PROBLEM facing the homeowners' group will be getting all subdivision lot owners behind the project by informing them of the potential flooding problems they'll face. Last year, the township authorized an engineering study that recommended solutions to the flooding. The engineers recommended installing a storm sewer system that would take water from the Arlington Heights outfall and the area streets to a nearby Mount Prospect stormwater line.

The Arlington Manor subdivision is a semi-developed area consisting of 224

$2,000 urged for refuse truck

The Public Works Committee Monday agreed to recommend to the city council that $2,000 be authorized for the down payment on a refuse truck body for the sanitation department. The truck is expected to cost a total of $7,500.

The truck is needed to provide for expanded sanitation service demands because of new single-family home construction in the city.

The committee also agreed to recommend advertising for bids on additional garbage bag holders for the residential sanitation program.

Sewer line specification due

Muldoney was directed by the committee Monday to prepare engineering specifications for a gravity sewer line to run between Campbell Street and Central Road. The new line is intended to eliminate two of the city's sewer lift stations which have required extensive repair and upkeep.

Some $150,000 has been allotted in the 1974-75 city budget for the new line.

Water tower cleaning set

Cleaning and electro-rustproofing of the Campbell Street water tower will be performed this year. The interior of the reservoir will be cleaned, but the outside of the structure, which was painted by unknown youths last fall, will apparently be untouched.

The committee Monday approved a resolution to advertise for bids on the work, which Muldoney estimated will cost some $15,000.

Request diverted

The committee diverted to the city Plan Commission a request from the Atrium restaurant, 3003 W. Algonquin Road, to omit the construction of a sidewalk around part of the restaurant. The request would require a variation from city building code requirements.

Diane Jensen's seat

Trustees indicate Hennessy may fill trustee vacancy

by NANCY COWGER
Any adult resident of Hoffman Estates will probably have a chance to occupy the village trustee seat vacated Monday by Diane Jensen, but it appears the chances will be better for persons experienced in local government.
The vacancy, with one year remaining in Mrs. Jensen's term, will be filled by appointment by Mayor Virginia Hayter and the remaining village trustees. Several of the six members of that group have potential candidates in mind.
The name most frequently mentioned Tuesday by current trustees was that of Edward Hennessy, who served one term as village trustee and sought the Republican nomination for mayor in the 1977 election. When Mayor Hayter was nominated instead, Hennessy declined a nomination for reelection as trustee.
CONTACTED TUESDAY, Hennessy

said he "would have to think about" whether he will seek appointment to the vacancy. "I've always been interested in it. I could put down I've had experience," he added.
Hennessy's name "keeps popping into my mind," said Trustee Bruce Lind, who said he was disappointed when Hennessy declined nomination for trustee in 1973.
"I'll probably bring it (Hennessy's name) up when we start talking about it," said Lind. He described Hennessy as "obviously ultimately qualified for the job. He added he also considers several members of the village plans commission and its zoning board of appeals prime candidates for the vacancy.
Trustee Ralph Lyerla also volunteered Hennessy's name as a person who "was a good trustee, and he might be interested in coming back." Lyerla said he is willing to accept applications or resumes from persons volunteering for board committees or village commissions, but "I would not be in favor of appointing anybody who has not been active" to a trusteeship. The appointee should be someone who is "active and informed," who has "evidenced the fact they are interested by having served," said Lyerla.

Lyerla also suggested Robert Valentino, current chairman of the zoning board, "would be a good board member."
STATE LAW DOES not specify how village boards should select appointees to fill vacant terms, and the Hoffman Estates board has not discussed its strategy. Most members contacted Tuesday said they would review applications from anyone, but noted experience in village government or at least in community organizations as among qualifications they hope to find.
While Lind indicated he anticipates naming the new trustee in three to four weeks, other village board members noted they are about to enter budget hearings. Last year hearings were held almost nightly for more than a week before a final budget was ready for printing. William Cowin, finance committee chairman, predicted "we're not going to be able to finish either one (trustee appointment or budget hearings) in the next couple of weeks," and added "in my mind, the budget takes precedence."
The board probably will begin planning for the appointment at its next meeting, May 6, said Mayor Hayter, she believes the appointment will be made "with as much speed as possible," and she noted other trustees will not want to "double up," taking on Mrs. Jensen's former responsibilities.

3 apparent Open Meeting Law violations by trustees

by PAT GERLACH
The Hoffman Estates Village Board apparently violated the Illinois Open Meetings Law three times during two executive sessions Monday night.
Topics reportedly discussed include:
• Site plan approval of Kaufman and Broad's Barrington Square Unit 7.
• Threatened litigation against K&B.
• Participation in a police exchange program with Buffalo Grove.
The Open Meeting Law permits governmental units to meet privately to discuss collective negotiating matters, consider acquisition of real property, or discuss a pending court proceeding against or on behalf of the governmental unit.

The penalty for violation is a fine not to exceed $100 or 30 days imprisonment in County Jail.
Envelopes containing the resignation of Trustee Diane M. Jensen also were reportedly distributed to trustees at one of the closed door meetings.
Indefinite postponement of the K&B site plan approval resulted from the first session on recommendation of Village Atty. Edward Hofert. "Action is contemplated which may or may not involve K&B," Hofert remarked before the session, which lasted 18 minutes, was called.
HE WAS REFERRING to a resident's recent request asking the village to consider filing suit against K&B seeking payment to all village residents for individual damages allegedly suffered because builders bribed six former village officials when zoning was granted in 1968.

"I don't know why," replied Mayor Virginia Hayter when asked Tuesday why the session was held. She said Hofert said "yes" when asked if a suit is contemplated, pointing out he "did not say no" when a motion was made to adjourn to executive session.

Hofert Monday said the executive session was "for purposes of discussing pending litigation" but would not identify a specific suit in which village and builder are now engaged.
Four trustees said the village is not now a party to any existing suit with K&B. Pending litigation includes only suits on file in court, according to legal experts.

"I wanted more discussion before voting on the site plan approval so I guess you could say I requested the executive session, though I didn't call it that," said Trustee Mel Timmons.

TIMMONS SAID when he asked for discussion he did not know it would result in the closed meeting.

Trustees Ralph Lyerla, Timmons, William Cowin, Dyrle Rathman and Bruce Lind all said they discussed whether they should act on the site plan immediately.

Physician gets probation for tax evasion

An Arlington Heights physician was sentenced Tuesday in U.S. District Court to three years' probation for two counts of income tax evasion.

Dr. Peter L. Sengson Jr. will serve the first 90 days of the sentence in prison, according to Assistant U.S. Atty. Donald Shrine. He will begin serving the sentence June 4, Shrine said.

Sengson was indicted Feb. 25 in federal court for evading income taxes for 1967, 1968 and 1969. On March 12, Dr. Sengson pleaded guilty to the 1967 and 1969 counts and the government dropped the 1968 charge, Shrine said.

Shrine said Sengson claimed a taxable income of $12,500 for both 1967 and 1969. The government said he actually had a taxable income of $22,640 in 1967 and $22,158 in 1969.

Sengson, whose practice was limited to obstetrics and gynecology, had offices at the Northwest Suburban Medical Building, in Arlington Heights, and at Weathersfield Common in Schaumburg.

Horticulture catches on

Plants gaining popularity at Conant, says teacher

by KATHERINE BOYCE
If Donald Fletcher ran Conant High School he'd change the school calendar to match the seasons.

Fletcher is teaching horticulture to 45 students in two classes this semester. Nine classes have already been scheduled for next year. The course is popular at Conant and there may be several reasons why it's a favorite among students.

Plants are popular. It's part of the ecology movement, says Fletcher, and it also reflects a change in life styles today as people move from houses with large lawns to apartments and condominiums. Fletcher doesn't have to look far to see an example of that change. There used to be an open field across from the school parking lot. Today there's a housing complex.

There are "quite a few plants" in homes today, says Fletcher. People "see some worth to growing things," he says. "They're super enthusiastic just growing tomatoes and growing things on balconies. I hope they're successful."

Some of the talk surrounding the plant fad deals with the relationship between humans and plants. "I don't talk to the plants but I do love them. It makes a difference," says Fletcher. He adds, tongue in cheek, "Some of my kids talk to them and they really grow." Some students are studying the effects of sounds on plants by experimenting with different types of music.

WHATEVER THE relationship between humans and plants, Fletcher believes people have something to gain from growing things. "It's good for you," he says. Plants have a "settling influence on people. Some kids come in during their free period and just putter around."

Fletcher has been teaching horticulture as an elective course at Conant for six years and his class is the only one of its kind in the school district. He started the course after the student council asked him for assistance in a campaign to beautify the school grounds. He's a biology teacher but doesn't profess to be an expert in botany.

"I taught it because I like plants and we have a certain group of students who need something like this," Fletcher says.

Fletcher has a variety of students in his class, but he says he has "tried to get the student who has problems in school." These students need "some success that they can experience. It means a lot to them." Fletcher's way of working closely with these students may be another reason his course is so popular.

RIGHT NOW the class is growing tomatoes and green peppers in a makeshift greenhouse on the top floor of the building. When the plants are large enough to be transplanted the students will sell them from a stand in the school lobby. The class will use the money to buy more plants, soil and materials. Later this semester the class will landscape a house now being built by a construction class from Schaumburg High School.

If Fletcher had his way he'd schedule his classes through the spring, summer and fall so students could spend most of their time outdoors. During the winter months they go on field trips, landscape their own houses on paper, and putter around in the plant room.

The plant room is a big attraction for students at Conant, says Fletcher. About 35 plants are owned by the school and stay in the room all the time while more are brought in by students for the semester, and others are donated to the school.

The room is filled with them — along the wall on tables, on the floor and hanging from the ceiling. There's a tall corn plant in one corner that must have been knee high two Julys ago and a vine in another corner creeping steadily across a net. In the middle of the room a tiny blue plastic swimming pool is filled with water "for effect," says Fletcher.

Judith Troehler wins Harper seat—by 1 vote

One vote made the difference last night as Judith Troehler defeated Stanley Carrier and was seated on the Harper College board of trustees.

In the final official vote tally from the April 13 board election Mrs. Troehler had 1,436 votes to 1,345 for Carrier. Carrier's final total differed by five votes from his previously announced unofficial total, apparently because of an error made by judges in a Prospect Heights precinct in recording the unofficial tally.

The official tally confirmed the election of incumbent William Kelly, Robert Rausch of Hoffman Estates and Shirley Munson of Palatine.

Kelly was then elected board president by a 6 to 1 vote.

Following announcements of the tally Carrier said he would not seek a recount and added that he does not believe Mrs. Troehler will serve her full three-year term. "There will be a vacancy before her seat is over," he said. "I will run for her seat when she resigns."

Mrs. Troehler, however, said that she

Judith Troehler

Stanley Carrier

fully intends to serve a full term "unless there are unforeseeable circumstances." She added, "I don't think I would resign out of frustration."

MRS. TROEHLER'S election means that the Harper board has a majority of four women. She is a student at Harper and says she intends to graduate from the school in June 1975.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Troehler was notified that Harper's attorney Frank Hines feels she might be liable to a charge of conflict of interest if she continues as a student at the college after becoming a member of the board even though two other board members served while students at the college.

The advice came in a call from College Pres. Robert Lahti. Mrs. Troehler said the information left her somewhat "shaken" at the time and added that "I wonder why they waited until today to tell me."

Hines said the law under which he has formed his opinion, Chapter 102, Section 3 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, is "admittedly vague and general." However, he said the law, combined with an opinion from the Michigan state attorney general on a similar statute and a new Illinois law providing for a non-voting student member of college boards, may be combined to indicate that a voting student member of the board would be involved in a conflict of interest.

THE LAW CITED by Hines states, in part, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws and constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly . . . in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

Hines said he focuses on the phrase "in any manner interested" and the word

"contract," and added "The relation between a college and a student is primarily contractual."

The law goes on to prohibit public officials from representing persons bidding for a contract before their organization and from accepting bribes in return for votes.

THE LEGAL opinion, Hines said, "doesn't mean the board could refuse to seat her." He said he has advised college officials of this law in the past. Two other board members have served while students at the college, Hines said, adding, "I presume that these past candidates were aware of this, but they simply disagreed with it."

However, board member Larry Moats, who was a student when he was elected to the board in 1969 said yesterday that, although at one point a college committee was formed to study the whole issue of conflict of interest, "I don't recollect that particular statute ever being brought to my attention."

Hoffman Estates may join 'swap-a-cop' test program

by TOM VON MALDER

Buffalo Grove and Hoffman Estates may begin swapping policemen as part of a new training program. Dubbed "swap a cop" by Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh, the program could begin within three weeks.

The Buffalo Grove Village Board Monday night gave its unanimous approval to the program, which would have a supervisory police officer from each community switch departments for a two-week period. The Hoffman Estates Village Board has just begun to consider the program.

Walsh Tuesday said the program, patterned after similar ones in California, should help supervisory personnel by giving them experience in a community with which they are unfamiliar. "The experience will be good leadership training," he said.

"The officer would be able to function immediately. Their job is to enforce laws and the laws in both village's are about the same," Walsh said. "Supervisory and leadership skills are universal. I don't think the officers will have any problem adapting."

WALSH HAS selected Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki to be Buffalo Grove's first "exchange sergeant." (The program will not involve patrolmen.) Hoffman Estates' choice has not been made.

The policeman in a strange department would retain all his police powers, but he would be primarily a watch commander or supervisor. While he could make arrests (according to a legal opinion obtained by Walsh), participants will be instructed not to initiate any arrest, Walsh said. The policemen would wear their own department's uniform.

Hoffman Estates Village Mgr. George Longmeyer described the program as a "training exercise, an experiment." He said each department could benefit from the observations an "outsider" would make of their department. Participants in the program will have to write up reports, copies of which will be made available to Walsh and Hoffman Estates Police Chief John O'Connell.

The program would continue as long as each department felt it was useful, Walsh said, and it could be expanded to include other area departments.

BOTH WALSH and O'Connell apparently picked up on the idea last May at a two-day seminar held by the Illinois City Managers Assn. in Zion. Police chiefs were invited to those sessions.

At this time, Hoffman Estates' participation in the program is subject to a number of questions. According to Longmeyer, "It's nowhere right now. A memo was given to the Hoffman Estates board last night (Monday) in essence asking them to think it out."

It may vote on the matter May 6, after legal questions on insurance coverage and arrests are answered by their attorneys.

The memo, Longmeyer referred to, was passed out — apparently illegally — during a village board executive session Monday night.

School chiefs evaluated by 'categories' system

by JUDY JOBBITT

A professional approach at evaluating administrative personnel has delayed approval of Schaumburg Township Dist. 34 superintendent's salary for next year.

During the last year, the administrative and business committee of the school board has developed an evaluation form for the superintendent. The 10-page form allows board members to rate Supt. Wayne Schaible on his performance in areas of responsibility.

In the past, the board met in executive session and discussed the strengths and weaknesses it witnessed in the superintendent's performance for the previous year.

"Ever since I came on the board I have been after a more definitive, professional method of evaluating people," said Donnie Rudd, last year's president.

"It's the first time we've used something in writing," said Arlene Czajkowski. "This way everybody is talking about the same thing."

THE EVALUATION is proceeding slowly because board members have questioned points in the form, she said. The form's questions are categorized under dedication and industriousness, directing educational activities, personnel matters, business administration, public relations, negotiations, relations with the board and participation in professional organizations.

Under the specific questions, each member had the opportunity to write additional comments about that particular area. Now board members are interpreting the results.

Rudd, then board president, summarized the members' forms and indicated the average answer for each question on a master copy. The written comments also were included in this summary.

Each board member and Schaible received a master copy. Discussion in executive session occurred from the form's results.

"I learned as we sat and discussed this thing," said past board member Sherwood Spatz. "I realized areas that I misinterpreted."

He admitted there were questions he did not feel capable of answering at first. Problems rose over the questions about the superintendent's effective use of his time.

HOWEVER, Spatz said the line of questioning helped him reach appropriate answers.

Although the questions pertained to the evaluation of the superintendent, they also allowed discussion on administrative personnel under the superintendent.

The central office administrators and the principals also were evaluated by a written form this year. Schaible evaluated these personnel and submitted his written evaluations to the board during salary negotiations.

Central office personnel and principals received salary increases averaging about 10 per cent.

Besides the performance evaluation, principals developed an objective plan form for next year. Each principal will state goals for the coming year, the purpose of the goals, procedures, resources needed, cost estimates and estimated time schedule for completion. The success in meeting goals will be included in the next year's performance evaluation.

The local scene

VFW card party

The Women's Auxiliary of Raymond Hartmann VFW Post 6080 will hold a card party Friday at 8 p.m. at Streamwood Moose Lodge, 319 Bonded Pkwy., Streamwood.

The group consists chiefly of members from Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Streamwood, a spokesman said.

Tickets, at $2.50 per person, will be available at the door.

Tree, bush plantings

The Hoffman Estates Park District will hold a special ceremony Friday for tree and bush plantings at Evergreen Park in honor of Arbor Day.

The ceremony will begin at 1 p.m. at the park at Lakeview Lane and Western Street. Students from Lakeview School will be instructed on tree conservation. The public is invited.

Youth for Civic Action, a service organization sponsored by the park district, has donated money to purchase trees and shrubs. Members of the organization will assist in planting.

Israeli Independence Day

A rally for Israeli Independence Day will be held by the Woodfield Jewish Congregation and Beth Tikvah Sunday at Beth Tikvah, Hoffman Estates. For more information contact Elaine Mendelsohn at 882-5542.

Mission Emphasis Week

Mission Emphasis Week will be held Saturday to May 5 at Church of the Cross United Presbyterian, 475 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

Rev. Richard Poethig, director of the Institute on Churches in Urban and Industrial Society, will speak on "Crisis in Missions" at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services Sunday.

Congregation gets carnival approval

Carnival time is coming in Hoffman Estates.

Woodfield Jewish Congregation's request for a May 30-June 2 carnival being planned at Hi Neighbor Shopping Center, Roselle Road, was approved by the village board this week.

Trustees also agreed to waive the fee for a "beer only" license for the event.

Also approved was a permit for Hoffman Estates Woman's Club Community Carnival, being planned for Sept. 11-15 at Robert Hall Village, Barrington and Higgins roads.

Plan water meter checks

Hoffman Estates will make a random check of water meters over 10-years-old to test counting accuracy.

Several cases of inaccurate water usage counting have been reported recently, according to Trustee William Cowin.

At his request, the public works department will make a calibration check on a sampling of meters used in older sections of the village.

Cowin explained meters from parcels A (an area east of Roselle Road between Higgins and Golf roads), B (a section east of Roselle Road south of Higgins Road), and C (homes west of Roselle Road and south of Higgins Road) will be tested.

In other business this week, Trustee Bruce Lind reported hydrant flushing programs will begin soon. Lind said signs will be posted in appropriate areas 24 to 36 hours in advance to alert citizens to expect discolored water.

Proposal could reduce apartment fires

by PAT GERLACH

A proposed Schaumburg health ordinance could eliminate, or at least reduce, fire damage in apartment complexes.

An April 2 fire, apparently caused by a defective television set, gutted one unit in Town Square Apartments, 220 S.

Roselle Rd., resulting in estimated damages of $3,000.

One tenant in the complex believes the fire could have been put out almost immediately by a fire extinguisher. However, a building management representative claims extinguishers in the building "were mysteriously removed" several months ago.

"We have placed another order but the extinguishers have not yet been delivered," the manager said.

AN ORDINANCE defining responsibilities of owners and occupants of multiple housing units is now being prepared by Robert Grossmann, Schaumburg's director of environmental health.

"This would, among many other things, require annual inspection of multiple buildings which would focus on items like fire extinguishers," said Grossmann. He explained inspections would be performed jointly by the health, building and fire departments.

He said the proposed ordinance, patterned after the U.S. Health Service model, sets minimum standards for basic equipment and facilities in multiple family housing areas.

"Minimal thermal standards, maximum density calculated on per square foot of living space, requirements for fireproofing treatment of wood surfaces are examples of what this ordinance addresses," he said.

THE PURPOSE OF the ordinance, as Grossmann sees it, is to "insure clean, sanitary and fit areas for human occupation of these multiple areas."

He said a first draft has been given to the building department and the zoning board of appeals for review, but stressed that it is not yet at the point of "being given the village's stamp of approval."

"I expect it will take many more hours of refinement and review and, if we are very, very lucky, we may have it ready to go to the village board by the end of the year," he said.

Dirt hauling on Glen Lake Road to park site scheduled

Dirt and clay hauling on Glen Lake Road to High Point Park may begin Thursday if weather permits.

The Hoffman Estates Park District Board of Commissioners in a special meeting Monday night awarded a contract not to exceed $6,500 to Riemer Brothers, Inc. for transportation of not more than 5,000 cubic yards of dirt and clay.

Al Binder, director of the park district, said dirt hauling could begin tomorrow and be completed in about four working days. He added other loads of stone and dirt would later be transported on Glen Lake Road to the park for construction of a parking lot.

The trucks are allowed to use a half-mile stretch of Glen Lake Road under an agreement with the Village of Hoffman Estates which holds the park district financially liable for damage to the road and sets a deadline for hauling.

The village board Monday agreed to park district leasing of Glen Lake Road for the project, but stipulated the speed limit be 10 m.p.h. during the project.

A LANDSCAPING contractor asked to be taken back to complete park construction, but Hoffman Estates Park District officials were not waiting with open arms.

A motion to reinstate contracts with Avendale Landscaping Co., Lombard, died for a lack of a second Monday night at a special park board meeting.

Commissioners last week terminated contracts with the company for non-performance. About $15,000 worth of work remains to be completed at 17 park sites, officials have said.

William Valkner of Avendale attended the meeting and asked for reinstatement of the contracts.

Builder's problems delay road

Work on the Palatine Road widening at Winston Drive is being delayed because the company who won the bid for the project may be unable to finish the job.

Completion of the widening, which is 30 per cent finished, will be handled by a Rosemont construction firm, Petersen Construction Engineering Inc. of Mundelein, the original contractor, is expected to notify its bonding company that it cannot financially afford to finish the job.

According to James Fruit, project manager for Petersen Construction, that firm has offered to provide money to buy Engelhardt's performance bond and continue with the project started last fall.

The work would be bound by conditions of the contract between Engelhardt and the state, providing for 180 working days to finish the job at a total cost of $497,514.

"If the bonding company notified us tomorrow, we could move in right away," Fruit said. But no more work will be done on the widening "until all legal channels are satisfied," he added.

The project will widen Palatine Road from two to four lanes between Winston and Williams drives. The existing four-way stop sign at the Winston Drive intersection will be replaced with signals, walk lights, left turn lanes and a median strip separating traffic.

Half of the $1 million project is being paid with federal funds, the other half by the state.

The bid was awarded to Engelhardt last summer.

gram. They clean up the grounds, plant flower beds and work in the school's nature center and are paid $1.50 per hour from state special education funds. "It gets them to work together and accept responsibility," says Fletcher.

Fletcher feels the school's horticulture class is at a "turning point." He has asked the school to build a greenhouse or remodel the plant room so the class can grow a small crop of flowers. Fletcher says he wants to "get into a serious curriculum" and offer some vocational training, such as forestry or nursery work for students who want to pursue horticulture after high school.

PTA notes

Paul Jung, director of personnel and informational services in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, will speak at a Hunting Ridge School PTA coffee at 1:15 p.m. Thursday at 202 Lexington, Hoffman Estates.

Jung is scheduled to discuss employment procedures in the district and the use of teacher aides and clerical aides in the school. A teacher aide from Hunting Ridge is also scheduled to explain her role in working with students and teachers.

Reservations are not necessary, but are being requested. Anyone interested in attending is asked to call 359-4374.

PTA officer elections at Hunting Ridge School recently resulted in the reelection of three officers and the election of three board members for one year terms.

The three new members are Mrs. Donald Moranos of Hoffman Estates, president; Mrs. Daniel Pelletiere of Palatine, first vice president and Mrs. Jerry Edwards of Hoffman Estates, treasurer.

Incumbents elected to a second one-year term are John Casey, second vice president; Mrs. Patrick King, recording secretary; and Mrs. Robert Callahan. All three live in Palatine.

The Hunting Ridge School PTA and several scouting organizations will plant trees and bushes Friday at the school in honor of Arbor Day.

The ceremony will begin at 1:45 p.m. at the school at 1105 W. Illinois, Palatine. Featured speaker will be Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones.

Also participating in the ceremony will be Hunting Ridge School Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts, Brownies and Bluebirds. The organizations selected and donated bushes for the school site.

The Winston Knolls and Hunting Ridge homeowners associations donated $100 each toward purchase of trees.

Joan Saunders of 422 Kingsdale Ln., Hoffman Estates, and Donna Patino of 309 West View, Hoffman Estates, were awarded scholarships from the Winston Churchill School PTA.

Both girls attend Conant High School and will receive $100.90.

Alternates selected for the awards are: Mary Crain, 122 Illinois, Hoffman Estates; Catalina Felix, 175 Bode Rd., Hoffman Estates, and Tim Rasey, 125 Cumberland St., Hoffman Estates.

Three trustees line up behind Teichert

Village officials now oppose Rob Roy purchase vote

by MARCIA KRAMER

It looks like the long-awaited Mount Prospect village referendum on whether to buy the Rob Roy Golf Course may be off.

Village board members contacted Tuesday by The Herald for the most part lined up behind Mayor Robert D. Teichert in his belief that the village should not pursue purchase of the 180-acre golf course and adjoining 20-acre driving range north of the village.

Three of the four trustees interviewed — two others were out of town — said they would oppose a referendum to buy the $6 to $9 million course, located east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

THIS LATEST position by a majority of village board members represents an abrupt about-face from the board's previously stated intent to conduct a village-wide referendum on whether to buy the course in order to block development.

The new posture poses two likely alternatives to the village board: Compromising with Kenroy Inc., Skokie, allowing some multi-family development but with lower density and greater open space than proposed by the firm, or turning down the development plans altogether, forcing Kenroy to seek rezone from Cook County. A third possibility — approving the Kenroy plan of building 4,500 apartment and condominium units on the golf course — is, for all practical purposes, dead.

Kenroy precipitated village interest in buying Rob Roy by proposing 4,500 units be built there. Residents of the area, from both Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights, vigorously opposed Kenroy's request to annex the tract to Mount Prospect with multi-family zoning during public hearings before the village zoning board of appeals. The zoning board eventually voted 4 to 2 to recommend that the village board turn down the request.

Prior to acting on the Kenroy request, the village board decided to hold a referendum on the purchase of Rob Roy, and had already set the plans in motion by engaging two appraisers, at a cost of $5,500, to estimate the value of the property. Cost of a referendum would be an additional $8,000.

HOWEVER, Teichert's surprising announcement Monday that he would not support a referendum was echoed by other board members. Only Trustee Richard N. Hendricks, who has consistently pressed for village purchase of the course, felt a referendum should still be conducted.

Hendricks said Tuesday he is in "total disagreement" with the mayor's position. He said the village board's actions over the last several months have been directed toward exploring the possibility of buying the course to maintain it as open space, and "I'm a bit surprised at his latest statement." "What he's saying is that we have been strictly going through the mechanics of buying Rob Roy. Now, we're going to throw it back in the hands of the park district."

In his statement, Teichert listed nine reasons the village should not buy Rob Roy, primarily because the course is outside the village limits, funds could be better spent on other projects and the purchase of land to control zoning "is not a legitimate municipal function." He suggested instead that area park districts, particularly the River Trails Park District, look into possible purchase.

THREE VILLAGE trustees contacted by The Herald agree with Teichert's position. Trustee E. F. Richardson said he agrees "almost wholeheartedly" with the mayor. "I've had serious reservations about the village getting involved from the very beginning," he said. "It's really a park district function or a forest preserve function to provide recreation and open space facilities."

Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten said he also opposes village purchase of the property, but said he has "mixed emotions" about an alternative move. "I don't think it's feasible" to buy the course, he said, adding that purchase could set a precedent.

Trustee George B. Anderson said he favors negotiation with Kenroy, allowing perhaps half of the proposed density and open space around the perimeter.

Two trustees, O. T. Gustus and Patrick J. Link, were out of town and unavailable for comment.

OTHER municipal agencies contacted by The Herald expressed interest in keeping the golf course as open space, but indicated the cost of retaining the course is beyond their capabilities.

John R. Johanson, president of the River Trails Park District Board said, "By ourselves, I don't think there is any way the park district could swing it." The district recently completed arrangements to buy an 18.8-acre portion of the Rob Roy driving range, at a cost of $750,000.

He added that he was "rather surprised" by Teichert's position.

Thomas Cooper, director of the Mount Prospect Park District, said it could not be much help because Rob Roy lies outside its boundaries. He also said the price is too high.

Trustees approve $7,867,339 deficit budget for village

A deficit 1974-75 village budget of $7,867,339 was adopted last night by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said projected expenses exceed revenues by $28,232, but said he will be able to juggle accounts to make up for the loss. He reiterated his earlier prediction, when he submitted a proposed balanced budget of $7,979,615, that local property taxes would not be affected.

"That could have been the easy way out," he said after the board meeting. "to let the tax rate ride up one little minute decimal." However, the village board had ordered Eppley to hold the line on taxes. The present village tax rate is $74.71 per $10,000 equalized assessed valuation.

Eppley attributed the anticipated budget deficit to an 8 1/2 per cent increase in the salaries of village employees. His original budget was balanced based on a 7 per cent across-the-board increase.

THE 1974-75 BUDGET, which goes into effect May 1, is just 5.1 per cent higher than the present budget of $7,482,162.

Village trustees trimmed some $177,000 from Eppley's proposed budget — mainly in slicing a $250,000 allocation for a traffic signal at Elmhurst Road and Lincoln Street in half — but more than made up for what they eliminated in granting wage increases.

Eppley said virtually all of the village's 220 employees, including policemen, who engaged in collective bargaining, and firemen, who also negotiated with the village, will receive an 8 1/2 per cent salary hike.

Eppley himself is getting a 7.8 per cent boost, to $33,000 annually. The deputy clerk, Marie T. Hard, is receiving a hefty 24.6 per cent pay hike, to $12,000, due primarily, Eppley said, to her new status as a certified municipal clerk. The director of health services, Marjorie C. Boswell, will receive an 18 1/2 per cent raise, to $15,000, because, Eppley said, of increased responsibilities.

THREE DEPARTMENT heads — Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann, Finance Director Richard L. Jesse and Engineering Director Bernard H. R. Hemminger — are receiving 8.2 per cent raises, to $22,000 each.

Central School may be new library site

The Mount Prospect Public Library may have found a new home in the Central School building at the northeast corner of Central Road and Main Street.

The village board last night authorized Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley to enter into negotiations with the owners of the abandoned school on behalf of the library. The village has been talking informally with the owners for the past 1 1/2 years, but last night's unanimous vote (minus absentee Mayor Robert D. Teichert and Trustee Patrick J. Link) was the first official go-ahead in the village's effort to buy the property.

The owners of the property, it was learned last night, are Al Magnus, owner of the Magnus Farm, 801 E. Central Rd., Arlington Heights, and his estranged wife. The ownership has been held in a trust.

It also was learned that the village has received an appraisal on the building and grounds of $675,000.

Judith Troehler wins Harper seat—by 1 vote

One vote made the difference last night as Judith Troehler defeated Stanley Carrier and was seated on the Harper College board of trustees.

In the final official vote tally from the April 13 board election Mrs. Troehler had 1,436 votes to 1,345 for Carrier. Carrier's final total differed by five votes from his previously announced unofficial total, apparently because of an error made by judges in a Prospect Heights precinct in recording the unofficial tally.

The official tally confirmed the election of incumbent William Kelly, Robert Rausch of Hoffman Estates and Shirley Munson of Palatine.

Kelly was then elected board president by a 6 to 1 vote.

Following announcements of the tally Carrier said he would not seek a recount and added that he does not believe Mrs. Troehler will serve her full three-year term. "There will be a vacancy before the year is over," he said. "I will run for her seat when she resigns."

Mrs. Troehler, however, said that she

Judith Troehler

Stanley Carrier

fully intends to serve a full term "unless there are unforeseeable circumstances." She added, "I don't think I would resign out of frustration."

MRS. TROEHLER's election means that the Harper board has a majority of four women. She is a student at Harper and says she intends to graduate from the school in June 1975.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Troehler was polified that Harper's attorney Frank Hines feels she might be liable to a charge of conflict of interest if she continues as a student at the college after becoming a member of the board even though two other board members served while students at the college.

The advice came in a call from College Pres. Robert Lahti. Mrs. Troehler said the information left her somewhat "shaken" at the time and added that "I wonder why they waited until today to tell me."

Hines said the law under which he has formed his opinion, Chapter 102, Section 3 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, is "admittedly vague and general." However, he said the law, combined with an opinion from the Michigan state attorney general on a similar statute and a new Illinois law providing for a non-voting student member of college boards, may be combined to indicate that a voting student member of the board would be involved in a conflict of interest.

THE LAW CITED by Hines states, in part, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws and constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly . . . in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

Hines said he focuses on the phrase "in any manner interested" and the word

"contract," and added "The relation between a college and a student is primarily contractual."

The law goes on to prohibit public officials from representing persons bidding for a contract before their organization and from accepting bribes in return for votes.

THE LEGAL opinion, Hines said, "doesn't mean the board could refuse to seat her." He said he has advised college officials of this law in the past. Two other board members have served while students at the college, Hines said, adding, "I presume that these past candidates were aware of this, but they simply disagreed with it."

However, board member Larry Moats, who was a student when he was elected to the board in 1969 said yesterday that, although at one point a college committee was formed to study the whole issue of conflict of interest, "I don't recollect that particular statute ever being brought to my attention."

Threatening oil spill cleaned up

by KURT BAER

Residents around Lake Briarwood and pollution control officers with the Metropolitan Sanitary District worked to clean up an oil spill Tuesday that threatened to pollute the 20-acre private lake.

Homeowners first detected a slick on the lake Monday and that evening threw up temporary dams along Higgins Creek in an effort to block out the oil, later traced to a new warehouse of the Boyer Rosene Moving and Storage Co., Algonquin Road and Clearbrook Drive.

A malfunctioning fuel pump had spilled hundreds of gallons of heating oil onto the floor of the warehouse building from where it had eventually leaked through the foundation to an unpaved parking lot and into a Higgins Creek connected storm sewer.

The sewer had been sealed off Tuesday and MSD pollution control officers and a representative of Abel Howe, the general contractor that built the warehouse, were supervising a vacuum collection of the trapped oil.

BUT DESPITE THE relatively fast action of the Lake Briarwood homeowners, an undetermined amount of oil did flow into the lake Monday.

State conservation officials were called out late Tuesday afternoon to sample the water and test the fish in the lake to determine the extent of the pollution.

The Mount Prospect Fire Department was summoned to the lake when residents feared the oil might be ignited. However the fire department found that there was no danger of explosion or fire.

Lake Briarwood, an unincorporated subdivision, is pocketed between Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect just north of the Tollway and west of Busse Road.

"We're satisfied with what's being done as far as the clean up, and are grateful for the help of the village and the homeowners," John Tomaras, a pollution control officer with the MSD, said.

BARBARA MAIRE, 2716 W. Briarwood Dr., said that oil had flowed into the lake "all day yesterday." The lake is stocked with fish and is also the home of a number of ducks, she said.

George Schutt, of the Abel Howe contracting company, said it was difficult to say how much oil had spilled into the storm sewer. He estimated that it may have been about 500 gallons.

The Boyer Rosene Moving and Storage Co. of Melrose Park has just started to move into the warehouse and the building was unoccupied over the weekend when the fuel oil pump began to malfunction, Schutt said.

Tomaras said the storm sewers discharge into Higgins Creek had been sealed off and there was no danger that more oil would escape from the sewer into Lake Briarwood, even in the event of rain.

Mrs. Maire said this is the first serious problem Lake Briarwood residents have had from the new Clearbrook Industrial Park. But she called it a "forewarning of what can happen."

Firemen win salary fight; pay hike of 8.5% granted

Mount Prospect firemen won an 8.5 per cent pay hike in recent salary negotiations with the village.

The salary increase will affect all current members of the department and raises the maximum salary for firefighters to over $15,000, Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said Tuesday. The starting salary will remain the same at $10,960, however.

Eppley said the firemen, who were represented by an elected three-man wage committee, originally asked for a 9 per cent pay hike. (Village policemen reportedly asked for a 13 per cent raise initially, but settled for 8.5 per cent also.)

In a clarification of the village's insurance policies, Eppley said firemen were told retired or disabled firemen could remain on the village insurance policy until they reach Medicaid age. The former fireman would be responsible for all payments, however.

Eppley also said the firemen sought optical insurance, but were told the village could not afford it at this time. The sick leave accumulation policy was liberalized, as firemen requested, Eppley added.

Both sides apparently are satisfied with the agreement, Eppley said. "It was a pleasure to deal with the firemen." The firemen's wage committee was headed by Lt. Dennis Thill.

Piano recital today

A piano recital by the students of Suzanne Hynek, an independent piano teacher, will be held today at 7 p.m. and 7:45 p.m. at Town Hall in the lower level of Randolph Shopping Center, Mount Prospect.

Thirty-eight students from Wheeling, Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights will take part in the two performances.

'I Believe in Music' at junior high today

"I Believe in Music," a 45-minute live school assembly program, will be presented at 1:45 p.m. today at Holmes Junior High School, 1900 W. Lonquist, Mount Prospect. The program will also be presented at 2 p.m. Thursday at Fehmanville School, 1400 E. Kensington, Mount Prospect.

Mike Sweeney, narrator, will discuss how composers have used musical elements from the past, give a short history of the musical instrument families and demonstrate how a record is made.

The program is sponsored by the American Music Conference and the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences.

St. Mark's mascot missing

St. Mark Lutheran Church's mascot is missing. Pastor Nolan Watson's male German short haired pointer was last seen Saturday morning at 3 a.m. in the church parking lot. He was on hand to greet a bus load of high school students as they returned from a tour of Lutheran Colleges last week.

The dog answers to the name of Charley, is brown and white, has a choker collar, and weighs about 70 pounds. Any information should be directed to the church office, 233-0631, or to the Watsons, 259-1460.

THE EXTENSIONEERS have selected Mathilda Kerschke as the "Senior Citizen of the Year" from this area. Mathilda now competes with other similar winners and an outstanding senior from the entire Chicago metropolitan area will be chosen. She attended a tea in Chicago last week for a screening and interview of candidates. The winner will be announced in May.

Five village policemen apply for chief's job

Five members of the Mount Prospect Police Department have applied to replace Bert Giddens as police chief. Giddens resigns May 17 because of poor health.

The five who have applied include Lt. John Savage, Lt. John Homola, Sgt. Ralph Doney and Sgt. Patrick Hallihan. Also believed to have applied is Sgt. Joseph Bopp.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley, who will choose Giddens' successor, has refused to disclose the names of the applicants. However, Eppley said the testing procedure for police chief should start next week and a chief designate will be named by May 10 at the latest.

The testing will consist of an extensive five-hour exam, covering leadership and other qualities of a command position. The detector and stress evaluation tests will be conducted if deemed necessary. Eppley said.

The new chief will work with Giddens for at least a week Eppley said, to make the transition smoother. The village board has tentatively approved a salary of about $21,500 for the new chief, he added. Giddens' salary is $19,815.

Computer space may be rented

Dist. 57 may rent space in Dist. 214 next year that the high school district will use to house computers for its data processing needs.

Negotiations between the two districts are continuing and were announced at Monday's Dist. 57 Board of Education meeting. Dist. 57 will have space available at Sunset Park School, where part of the present Northwest Educational Cooperative computer operation is located. The space will be available as of July 1 when the NEC computer network is officially disbanded.

Dist. 214 needs the space to rent to Westinghouse Learning Corp., which will provide the high school district with computer service next year.

The elementary district usually does not rent to a profit-making organization, the board said, but Dist. 214 would be allowed to sublet to Westinghouse if the agreement is worked out.

New textbooks approved

The school board also approved the use of new textbooks for language arts and math classes next year.

"Language for Daily Use" published by Harcourt and Brace will be used as the basic text in grades kindergarten through eight. Supplemental workbooks will also be used for the language arts program.

Math students in kindergarten through sixth grade will use the Addison and Wesley text "Investigating School Mathematics." Junior high students will use the 1974 edition of Holt publishing company's "School Mathematics."

Busenhart on state committee

Dist. 57 Business Mgr. J. C. Busenhart has been named by the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to be a member of a state committee appointee to study and review the governor's Task Force Report on Education.

Busenhart will be on the committee studying insurance and other related school services. The Task Force Report was commissioned several years ago to look at ways to reduce the cost of running schools.

In another action the board voted to recommend that Edith Freund be nominated for consideration by the OSPI for its upcoming award presentations in May. The OSPI will recognize administrators, school board members, teachers and students for their contributions to the field of education.

Residents differ on flood solution

The solution to the problem of flooding in the Arlington Manor subdivision in unincorporated Elk Grove Township may be further off than anticipated.

About 35 homeowners from the subdivision meeting last night with the Elk Grove Township Board were in disagreement over where the money to solve the problem will come from.

Elk Grove Township has already offered to finance half of the $180,000 estimated necessary to correct the problem and say the other $90,000 will have to come from the homeowners.

Many of those who attended last night's meeting and who are apparently not directly affected by the flooding problem appeared reluctant to pay the estimated $400 per lot which would make up the $90,000 homeowner share.

THOSE AT THE meeting agreed to form a homeowners' group to try and solve the problem of financing the other half of the flood relief project.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall warned residents in the area that delays in action could mean the price per homeowner would go as high as $450 to $500 due to inflation.

"You have a very bad problem," said Hall. "We want to help you as much as we can." Many of those at the meeting seemed more interested in whether money for the project could come from other sources too, such as the village of Arlington Heights.

Only about 15 to 20 of the 224 lots in the subdivision are affected by heavy flooding during heavy rains, but increases construction now going on in the area will most likely increase the problem.

THE FIRST PROBLEM facing the homeowners' group will be getting all subdivision lot owners behind the project by informing them of the potential flooding problems they'll face. Last year, the township authorized an engineering study that recommended solutions to the flooding. The engineers recommended installing a storm sewer system that would take water from the Arlington Heights outfall and the area streets to a nearby Mount Prospect stormwater line.

The Arlington Manor subdivision is a semi-developed area consisting of 224 lots, bounded by Magnolia Drive on the north, Cypress Lane on the south, Douglas Avenue on the east and Arlington Heights Road on the west. It lies just northwest of the Hatlen Heights subdivision.

The township hopes to hook up the proposed sewer line to an existing one belonging to the Village of Mount Prospect. However, some controversy exists between the village and township over the connection and there may be a future dispute over that issue.

Lace reelected Prospect Hts. schools chief

Meivin Lace, who was reelected to his third three-year term on the Dist. 23 school board April 13, will continue to serve as president of the board until next April.

Lace was reelected president of the board Monday. He has served as board president for the past five years.

Henry Vallely, school board attorney, was reelected board secretary.

Committee assignments for the upcoming year were also made. Appointed to chair the policy committee was Carl Poch, who will also continue as representative to the Northwest Education Cooperative. Named chairman of the finance committee was Ron Sowatzke.

Other committee appointments include John Stull, chairman of the building and sites committee, Sally Ann Okuno, chairman of the publications committee, Vincent Battaglia, chairman of the planning committee, and Alan Krinsky, chairman of the negotiations committee.

THE BOARD ALSO voted to continue holding regular meetings on the first and second Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the administration offices at Anne Sullivan School, Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, Prospect Heights.

The official canvass of the April 13 election showed incumbents Lace and Battaglia the victors. Lace received 132 votes, Battaglia, 127 votes, and challenger Robert Horna, 52 votes.

In other action the board approved a resolution to pay $1,116 as its share of landscaping work for the Kirk Center. Funds from the 1974-75 fiscal budget will be used for the project.

Dist. 214 wrapup

Film on drug problems bought

All seven members of the High School Dist. 214 board volunteered Monday to present a film on student drug problems to community groups.

In addition, the board agreed to buy three copies of the film, titled "An Addict in Every House," which has been used for a seminar being offered this semester by three Elk Grove High School teachers for faculty and administrators in Dist. 214. The film costs about $300 a copy.

The film was shown Monday at the beginning of the Dist. 214 board meeting. It shows parents and children in drug rehabilitation programs talking about their problems and feelings. Parts of the film were made in Park Ridge and Elmhurst.

Richard Penley, one of the Elk Grove teachers running the drug seminar told the board, "The underlying basis of the film is communication." He added that when presented to groups, the film should be preceded by an introduction and followed by discussion of the issues raised.

Board Pres. Jack Costello, a member of the class, said that he felt the district could use the film for community groups, including elementary school PTA's and other organizations.

"You certainly can identify people that you have met in that film," Costello said. "I feel it could be used particularly in grade school districts for parents of small children."

Sabbatical try voted down

John McGee, sociology teacher at Prospect High School, lost by a 4-3 vote his second try to get a sabbatical leave to spend next year in northern Wisconsin.

McGee, who was turned down in a 3-3 vote by the Dist. 214 board last month, asked the board to reconsider his proposal. He said he would use the year at half pay to live and work in the small northern Wisconsin communities on the shores of Lake Superior and to read books relevant to the sociology course to compile a book of readings to be used by students when he returns.

"I've had six very good years in the district," McGee said, "and I'll continue to do a good job one way or another." However, he said he felt the year would help him to be a better teacher by giving him time to sort through materials to be used in the course.

Board Pres. Jack Costello, who was absent at the first vote, said he would vote against the sabbatical even though "I don't know any teacher in the district who has more respect from his students or has my own personal respect anymore than you do, John."

Costello said he voted against the sabbatical because "while I support the concept that a sabbatical need not be attached to further education and to further degrees — I feel this sabbatical does not address itself to the major sociological problem of our society which I consider the inner city rather than the north woods."

Music teachers to be hired

The High School Dist. 214 board has agreed to hire two teachers in order to upgrade the district's orchestra program.

The board agreed with a recommendation from Supt. Edward Gilbert that the two teachers be hired and each assigned to four of the district's schools. The teachers could then work with students to improve the orchestra program in all schools.

Although all the district schools have bands, Gilbert pointed out to the board that when orchestra students from all the district schools are brought together, they form only a 75 or 80 piece orchestra. Both Wheeling and Elk Grove high schools, Gilbert said, have "fairly good" orchestra programs but "none of our schools has an outstanding 200 piece orchestra."

Action called discriminatory

The Dist. 214 board heard Monday from residents who are not happy that students in their area were provided options in a recent boundary change shifting them from Hersey to Wheeling High School.

The group of residents of northern Mount Prospect who live between Palatine and Camp McDonald roads told the board that many of their children will be forced to shift to Wheeling from Hersey because they don't have older brothers or sisters now at Hersey.

When the area shifts from Hersey to Wheeling next year, the board has agreed to allow all students now attending Hersey to finish there and to allow younger brothers and sisters of students now at Hersey the choice of which school to attend.

Parents of children without older brothers and sisters said they believe the action is discriminatory because their children will be separated from their friends by the option. "The kids without the option are in the minority," one woman said.

In addition, Lloyd Demel, a member of the River Trails Dist. 26 board and a participant in the past boundary discussions, asked the Dist. 214 board to reconsider its action because "many people are disappointed" with the board's action and because "I think many people believe that boards will not often hear their needs."

Dist. 214 board members explained they had ordered the boundary change both to relieve overcrowding at Hersey and to increase the enrollment at Wheeling, which is projected to have a declining enrollment during the next several years.

Board members said they would give Demel their enrollment projections and will be following the enrollment figures for the two schools in the future, but said they doubted the decision would change unless projections on enrollment change dramatically.

Hisaka's contract subject to village board OK

Cleveland architect chosen for village cultural center

Don Hisaka has been selected as the architect for the proposed $3 million Arlington Heights Cultural Center, to be located south of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library.

Sidney Rosenfeld, cultural commission chairman, will begin negotiations with Hisaka, of Cleveland, on a contract proposal. The contract will be subject to approval by the commission and the Village Board of Trustees.

Hisaka will be charged with coming up with a preliminary design for the multi-use center that will house arts groups and be capable of presenting "little theater" presentations as well as "Broadway" shows and concerts.

HISAKA'S PLANS and models will be used to raise necessary funds to build the center. Money for his fees will come from the Arlington Heights Arts Council, an umbrella organization of local arts groups, and private donations.

An architect's fee for the preliminary designs and models for a project similar in scale to the one envisioned by the commission would run about $25,000. However, Hisaka's fee will be determined by Rosenfeld's negotiations.

Hisaka will be working with a concept put forward by George C. Izenour, of Yale University, an internationally known theater consultant.

Izenour's conceptual study, funded by the village, called for a multipurpose center with an auditorium with an expanding seating capacity. The theater would seat 500 persons for small productions, but could be expanded to seat 1,800 for larger ones. The seats, according to his plans, would be high quality theater seats that would fold away when not in use.

When the additional seating is not in use, the extra space could be used for meetings room or exhibitions.

ROSENFELD SAID Hisaka was selected because of his overall excellence and creative designs, although he has not built a theater before. Another consideration was, according to the chairman, Hisaka's "apparent ability to work with a low budget."

Rosenfeld estimated it would be five or six months until Hisaka's plans and models were finished. The drawings and models will be started after the contract is finalized and Hisaka consults with local groups who would use the center, Rosenfeld said.

The contract talks and local consultations are expected to take about two months and the work on the plans should take about three or four months, Rosenfeld said.

Subdivision homeowners disagree on flood solution

Physician gets probation for tax evasion

An Arlington Heights physician was sentenced Tuesday in U.S. District Court to three years' probation for two counts of income tax evasion.

Dr. Peter L. Sengson Jr. will serve the first 90 days of the sentence in prison, according to Assistant U.S. Atty. Donald Shrine. He will begin serving the sentence June 4, Shrine said.

Sengson was indicted Feb. 25 in federal court for evading income taxes for 1967, 1968 and 1969. On March 12, Dr. Sengson pleaded guilty to the 1967 and 1969 counts and the government dropped the 1968 charge, Shrine said.

Shrine said Sengson claimed a taxable income of $12,500 for both 1967 and 1969. The government said he actually had a taxable income of $22,640 in 1967 and $32,138 in 1969.

Sengson, whose practice was limited to obstetrics and gynecology, had offices at the Northwest Suburban Medical Building, in Arlington Heights, and at Weatherfield Common in Schaumburg.

Crews work to clean up Lake Briarwood oil spill

by KURT BAER

Residents around Lake Briarwood and pollution control officers with the Metropolitan Sanitary District worked to clean up an oil spill Tuesday that threatened to pollute the 20-acre private lake.

Homeowners first detected a slick on the lake Monday and that evening threw up temporary dams along Higgins Creek in an effort to block out the oil, later traced to a new warehouse of the Boyer Rosene Moving and Storage Co., Algonquin Road and Clearbrook Drive.

A malfunctioning fuel pump had spilled hundreds of gallons of heating oil onto the floor of the warehouse building from where it had eventually leaked through the foundation to an unpaved parking lot and into a Higgins Creek connected storm sewer.

The sewer had been sealed off Tuesday and MSD pollution control officers and a representative of Abel Howe, the general contractor that built the warehouse, were supervising a vacuum collection of the trapped oil.

BUT DESPITE THE relatively fast action of the Lake Briarwood homeowners, an undetermined amount of oil did flow into the lake Monday.

State conservation officials were called out late Tuesday afternoon to sample the water and test the fish in the lake to determine the extent of the pollution.

The Mount Prospect Fire Department was summoned to the lake when residents feared the oil might be ignited. However the fire department found that there was no danger of explosion or fire.

Lake Briarwood, an unincorporated subdivision, is pocketed between Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect just north of the Tollway and west of Busse Road.

"We're satisfied with what's being done as far as the clean up, and are grateful for the help of the village and the homeowners," John Tomaras, a pollution control officer with the MSD, said.

BARBARA MAIRE, 2716 W. Briarwood Dr., said that oil had flowed into the lake "all day yesterday." The lake is stocked with fish and is also the home of a number of ducks, she said.

Village legal unit opposes pinball games

Pinball machines will remain illegal in the Village of Arlington Heights if the village board accepts the recommendation of its legal committee.

An Arlington Heights attorney, Thomas Hanlon, is seeking to get the village ordinance which bans pinball machines as a gambling device changed to conform with recent changes in state law.

The machines are outlawed in the village because of their feature of awarding players free games.

Hanlon is representing the Pit 'n' Pub Restaurant, 1711 E. Rand Rd., whose owner wants to install a pinball machine.

But the legal committee voted 2-1 Monday night not to change the village's ordinance. Committee chairman James T. Ryan dissented.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Police Chief L. W. Calderwood recommended the no-change policy, and Village Atty. Jack Siegel said the village could retain its local ban despite the recent change in state law which removes pinball machines from the list of prohibited gambling devices.

"The main purpose of these machines is entertainment," Hanlon told the committee. "We are dealing with a type of equipment as dissimilar to the ancient pinball machine as a 747 is to the Wright brothers aircraft," he said.

He said pinball machines do not afford any "substantial danger" as gambling devices and that the state recognized this when it took pinball off its list of gambling devices.

Asked why the machines have to hold out the promise of free games, Hanlon said, "because it tends to create a certain additional interest, because people tend to remain in the establishment longer and because it tends to draw customers."

He said machines at the Pit 'n' Pub would be supplied by legitimate vending machine companies.

In recommending that the village ordinance be left unchanged, Trustee Frank Palmatier said there was insufficient evidence as to the need for pinball machines in Arlington Heights.

The full village board will decide the issue at its next meeting, May 6.

Court date set for American Paper

Officials of American Paper Recycling Corp. are scheduled to appear in court May 18, charged with violating Arlington Heights' refuse ordinance which allows only one licensed scavenger to operate in the village.

For the past several months, American Paper has been collecting corrugated cardboard from two village discount stores for recycling at its Northlake plant.

The Laseke Disposal Co. and the Village of Arlington Heights have charged the company with hauling other refuse as well in apparent violation of the ordinance which gives Laseke an exclusive contract for all garbage collection in the village.

Judith Troehler wins Harper seat—by 1 vote

One vote made the difference last night as Judith Troehler defeated Stanley Carrier and was seated on the Harper College board of trustees.

In the final official vote tally from the April 13 board election Mrs. Troehler had 1,436 votes to 1,345 for Carrier. Carrier's final total differed by five votes from his previously announced unofficial total, apparently because of an error made by judges in a Prospect Heights precinct in recording the unofficial tally.

The official tally confirmed the election of incumbent William Kelly, Robert Rausch of Hoffman Estates and Shirley Munson of Palatine.

Kelly was then elected board president by a 6 to 1 vote.

Following announcements of the tally Carrier said he would not seek a recount and added that he does not believe Mrs. Troehler will serve her full three-year term. "There will be a vacancy before the year is over," he said. "I will run for her seat when she resigns."

Mrs. Troehler, however, said that she

Judith Troehler

Stanley Carrier

fully intends to serve a full term "unless there are unforeseeable circumstances." She added, "I don't think I would resign out of frustration."

MRS. TROEHLER'S election means that the Harper board has a majority of four women. She is a student at Harper and says she intends to graduate from the school in June 1975.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Troehler was notified that Harper's attorney Frank Hines feels she might be liable to a charge of conflict of interest if she continues as a student at the college after becoming a member of the board even though two other board members served while students at the college.

The advice came in a call from College Pres. Robert Lahti. Mrs. Troehler said the information left her somewhat "shaken" at the time and added that "I wonder why they waited until today to tell me."

Hines said the law under which he has formed his opinion, Chapter 102, Section 3 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, is "admittedly vague and general." However, he said the law, combined with an opinion from the Michigan state attorney general on a similar statute and a new Illinois law providing for a non-voting student member of college boards, may be combined to indicate that a voting student member of the board would be involved in a conflict of interest.

THE LAW CITED by Hines states, in part, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws and constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly . . . in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

Hines said he focuses on the phrase "in any manner interested" and the word

"contract," and added "The relation between a college and a student is primarily contractual."

The law goes on to prohibit public officials from representing persons bidding for a contract before their organization and from accepting bribes in return for votes.

THE LEGAL opinion, Hines said, "doesn't mean the board could refuse to seat her." He said he has advised college officials of this law in the past. Two other board members have served while students at the college, Hines said, adding, "I presume that these past candidates were aware of this, but they simply disagreed with it."

However, board member Larry Moats, who was a student when he was elected to the board in 1969 said yesterday that, although at one point a college committee was formed to study the whole issue of conflict of interest, "I don't recollect that particular statute ever being brought to my attention."

Dist. 214 wrapup

Film on drug problems bought

All seven members of the High School Dist. 214 board volunteered Monday to present a film on student drug problems to community groups.

In addition, the board agreed to buy three copies of the film, titled "An Addict in Every House," which has been used for a seminar being offered this semester by three Elk Grove High School teachers for faculty and administrators in Dist. 214. The film costs about $300 a copy.

The film was shown Monday at the beginning of the Dist. 214 board meeting. It shows parents and children in drug rehabilitation programs talking about their problems and feelings. Parts of the film were made in Park Ridge and Elmhurst.

Richard Penley, one of the Elk Grove teachers running the drug seminar told the board, "The underlying basis of the film is communication." He added that when presented to groups, the film should be preceded by an introduction and followed by discussion of the issues raised.

Board Pres. Jack Costello, a member of the class, said that he felt the district could use the film for community groups, including elementary school PTA's and other organizations.

"You certainly can identify people that you have met in that film," Costello said. "I feel it could be used particularly in grade school districts for parents of small children."

Sabbatical try voted down

John McGee, sociology teacher at Prospect High School, lost by a 4-3 vote his second try to get a sabbatical leave to spend next year in northern Wisconsin.

McGee, who was turned down in a 3-3 vote by the Dist. 214 board last month, asked the board to reconsider his proposal. He said he would use the year at half pay to live and work in the small northern Wisconsin communities on the shores of Lake Superior and to read books relevant to the sociology course to compile a book of readings to be used by students when he returns.

"I've had six very good years in the district," McGee said, "and I'll continue to do a good job one way or another." However, he said he felt the year would help him to be a better teacher by giving him time to sort through materials to be used in the course.

Board Pres. Jack Costello, who was absent at the first vote, said he would vote against the sabbatical even though "I don't know any teacher in the district who has more respect from his students or has my own personal respect anymore than you do, John."

Costello said he voted against the sabbatical because "while I support the concept that a sabbatical need not be attached to further education and to further degrees — I feel this sabbatical does not address itself to the major sociological problem of our society which I consider the inner city rather than the north woods."

Music teachers to be hired

The High School Dist. 214 board has agreed to hire two teachers in order to upgrade the district's orchestra program.

The board agreed with a recommendation from Supt. Edward Gilbert that the two teachers be hired and each assigned to four of the district's schools. The teachers could then work with students to improve the orchestra program in all schools.

Although all the district schools have bands, Gilbert pointed out to the board that when orchestra students from all the district schools are brought together, they form only a 75 or 80 piece orchestra. Both Wheeling and Elk Grove high schools, Gilbert said, have "fairly good" orchestra programs but "none of our schools has an outstanding 200 piece orchestra."

Action called discriminatory

The Dist. 214 board heard Monday from residents who are not happy that students in their area were provided options in a recent boundary change shifting them from Hersey to Wheeling High School.

The group of residents of northern Mount Prospect who live between Palatine and Camp McDonald roads told the board that many of their children will be forced to shift to Wheeling from Hersey because they don't have older brothers or sisters now at Hersey.

When the area shifts from Hersey to Wheeling next year, the board has agreed to allow all students now attending Hersey to finish there and to allow younger brothers and sisters of students now at Hersey the choice of which school to attend.

Parents of children without older brothers and sisters said they believe the action is discriminatory because their children will be separated from their friends by the option. "The kids without the option are in the minority," one woman said.

In addition, Lloyd Demel, a member of the River Trails Dist. 26 board and a participant in the past boundary discussions, asked the Dist. 214 board to reconsider its action because "many people are disappointed" with the board's action and because "I think many people believe that boards will not often hear their needs."

Dist. 214 board members explained they had ordered the boundary change both to relieve overcrowding at Hersey and to increase the enrollment at Wheeling, which is projected to have a declining enrollment during the next several years.

Board members said they would give Demel their enrollment projections and will be following the enrollment figures for the two schools in the future, but said they doubted the decision would change unless projections on enrollment change dramatically.

Learning disabilities school to be established

A school for children with learning disabilities will be started in Arlington Heights this fall.

Summit School of Dundee is planning to expand its operation by providing facilities in Arlington Heights to be called Summit School East.

School officials hope to accommodate an additional 48 students in the new Arlington Heights branch. The school would cut down on traveling time for those who live far east of Dundee.

Presently the school has an enrollment of 96 students from the Chicago suburban area and has a waiting list of 100 youngsters from 6 to 19 years old. There is a personnel staff of 16.

OFFICIALS ARE hoping to lease six classrooms at the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, near downtown. Six teachers will be trained at the Summit School for about six weeks before fore classes start at the new school, Mrs. Kolinski said. Each class will consist of eight students.

Summit School is a not-for-profit organization and is funded mostly by tuition and some contributions. Costs for each pupil is $2,800, however, most of it is absorbed by the school district the child lives in and by state funds. A small portion of the remaining tuition must be paid by parents.

A child whose parents could not provide the tuition would not be turned away, according to Mrs. Kolinski.

Most youngsters are referred to the special school by the school districts who feel they could not provide adequate and proper instruction for these special education students.

Each child attends Summit School in the morning and returns to his public school in the afternoon.

Pupils win essay contest

Two Catholic eighth grade students from Arlington Heights were honored at a recent banquet for winning an essay contest sponsored by the Bishop Boylan General Assembly, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus.

Caroline Battibury won a first prize of $150 and Martin Beach, a second prize of $50 for their essays on "I'm Proud to be an American Citizen and what my Citizenship Means to Me." Both are students of Our Lady of the Wayside School in Arlington Heights. There also was a third prize winner of $25, Tony McCormack of Woodstock.

The banquet was held at Rimas Lodge at Griswold Lake, near Island Lake.

The prize money will be used toward tuition to the catholic high school of the winner's choice.

Prayer vigil April 30

A prayer vigil from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. will be held at the First United Methodist Church, 1903 E. Euclid, Arlington Heights on April 30, the national day of prayer, fasting and humiliation.

A brief prayer service and humiliation will be conducted in the chapel at 7 p.m.

The U.S. Congress has proclaimed April 30 as the national day of prayer, fasting and humiliation in the 93rd Congress.

Palatine netmen gain experience

Palatine head coach John Carlson took his young team to the Rockford West Quadrangular tennis meet to gain some experience. They did just that Saturday.

Dixon proved to be the strongest of the four teams, chalking up 31 points to edge Rockford West's 30. Rockford Boylan had 16 with Palatine last with 13.

Mike Essenberg, a freshman playing fourth singles, beat one of his senior foes — 8-6 over Boylan. He lost 8-3 and 8-4 decisions to Rockford West and Dixon.

Palatine's brother act — Ed and Dana Morganroth — won against Boylan, 8-4. They dropped 8-4 matches to their other foes.

Essenberg and Phil Groesbeck, also a freshman, played second doubles. Although they lost all three tests, Carlson was pleased that his talented underclassmen were in each of them.

Viator golfers rip St. Patrick

The St. Viator varsity golf team recovered quickly from its heartbreaking "overtime" loss to Notre Dame over the weekend to gun down Suburban Catholic Conference rival St. Patrick, 154-103.

The Lions of head coach Ken Peck mastered their home Rob Roy course for five scores that shattered the magic 40 mark en route to the impressive triumph.

Viator's next test at Rob Roy is against highly-touted Mid-Suburban League champion Prospect and Central Suburban League representative Niles East today at 3 p.m.

Maine East wins in golf

Maine East has won its first varsity golf meet of the season, beating Niles East, 177-181, on Monday in Central Suburban play. But the Demons lost to Maine South by one stroke, 176-177, on the Park Ridge Country Club front nine.

Scorers for Maine South were Paul Aschacher 43, Tim Seelos 44, Chuck Stone 45 and Tom Drowdz 45. Maine South counted Stiggleman 41, Becker 44, Ebert 45 and Graf 46. Niles East had Ruttenberg 44, Hanson 45, Kramer 45 and Gagerman 47.

Maine South led in sophomore play, covering the back nine in 186 strokes. Niles East scored 138 and Maine East 197.
